RBI to inject over Rs 2 lakh crore in banking system to ease liquidity

Mumbai (TSIT): The Reserve Bank of India (RBI) on Friday announced a series of liquidity-enhancing measures that will pump in more than Rs 2 lakh crore into the banking system to ease liquidity pressure. The RBI said it will use a combination of open market bond purchases, a foreign exchange swap, and a variable rate repo operation to ease liquidity conditions in the financial system. The steps are being undertaken following a review of current liquidity and financial conditions. As part of the measures, the central bank will conduct a 90-day variable rate repo (VRR) operation for an amount of Rs 25,000 crore on January 30, allowing banks to borrow funds at market-determined rates against collateral assets to be provided by them. A VRR is a tool where banks borrow short-term funds through an auction, with the interest rate determined by market bids, not fixed in advance.

As per the MoU, Blaize intends to set up a Research and Development (R&D) Center in Telangana focused on advanced AI computing. The proposed facility will support applied AI initiatives, government-led projects, and deployment-oriented solutions aligned with the State's strategic priorities.

The collaboration outlines a framework for working with relevant line departments and ministries of the Telangana Government to identify potential AI use cases. KTR questioned by SIT for seven hours in phone tapping case Hyderabad (TSIT): The Special Investigation Team (SIT) probing the telephone-tapping case on Friday questioned Bharat Rashtra Samithi (BRS) working president and former Telangana minister K. T. Rama Rao for over seven hours.

Rama Rao returned to BRS headquarters, Telangana Bhavan, after he was examined by SIT officials at Jubilee Hills Police Station.

Hyderabad Police Commissioner V. C. Sajjanar, who is supervising the SIT, said that Rama Rao was examined in detail. "Relevant aspects of the case were elicited and are being analysed with the evidence on record. He was instructed not to contact or influence any witnesses and informed that he may be summoned again, if required," Sajjanar said in a statement. He clarified that Friday's examination of Rama Rao was conducted solely in connection with a case registered in 2024 relating to allegations of widespread unauthorised and illegal phone surveillance and interception involving thousands of citizens from all walks of life, including politicians, businesspersons, journalists, judiciary and eminent personalities.

"It has been noticed that misleading and baseless information is being circulated by certain sections of the media and individuals, claiming that phone interception was done on security grounds and that no illegality was involved. The Investigating Agency is not concerned with such false narratives.

The investigation is being conducted strictly in accordance with the law, fairly and professionally," the Police Commissioner added. Meanwhile, addressing BRS leaders and cadres after returning to Telangana Bhavan, Rama Rao described the entire proceeding as a "calculated diversionary tactic."

KTR asserted that the Congress-led government is utilising investigative agencies to create "entertainment" for the public, aiming to distract them from the state's mounting administrative failures and unfulfilled electoral promises. The BRS leader stated that he fully cooperated with the investigation, answering every query posed by officials over the seven-and-a-half-hour session.

Congress discusses poll strategy for Kerala, Tharoor skips meeting

Congress president Mallikarjun Kharge claimed the people of Kerala are yearning for change, and the UDF will ensure progressive and development-oriented governance in the state.

New Delhi: Ahead of the assembly elections in Kerala, the Congress' top leadership held a strategy meeting with leaders from the state, even as Shashi Tharoor skipped the key brainstorming session amid reports that he is "upset" at Rahul Gandhi ignoring him at a recent event.

The Congress, however, denied that anyone was upset. It claimed that Tharoor had already discussed his inability to attend the meeting with the leaders.

Discussing poll preparedness, campaign strategy and seat-sharing within the UDF alliance in Kerala, the party's top leadership stressed the importance of maintaining unity among the state unit ranks to ensure victory in the upcoming polls expected to take place in April.

Congress president Mallikarjun Kharge claimed the people of Kerala are yearning for change, and the UDF will ensure progressive and development-oriented governance in the state.

Leader of Opposition in the Lok Sabha, Rahul Gandhi, attended the meeting held at Kharge's residence, where all senior Kerala Congress leaders were present.

AICC general secretary, organisation, K C Venugopal, the party's in-charge for Kerala affairs, Deepa Dasmunshi, senior observers for listened to the views of Kerala leaders, and we are unitedly going for elections. We are very much sure that we are going to cross 100 seats in this election," Venugopal told reporters after the meeting.

Chennithala said, "We also discussed the seat-sharing arrangement within the UDF alliance and how to move forward. The Congress and UDF had a big victory in the panchayat elections, and we are fully confident that the Congress party will form the government in the state with a majority in the next election." Asked why Tharoor was absent at the meeting and whether he was upset over being sidelined, Chennithala said, "No one is upset, and there is no 'narazgi'. He had a programme in Calicut, and that is why he could not come. He had spoken with us earlier. There is no question of anyone being upset."

On Tharoor giving priority to a literary festival over the key strategy meeting, he said, "Because he was invited earlier (at the literary festival) and he had talked to us that he has to go there. There is no one getting upset." On whether the Congress will announce a chief ministerial candidate, the senior leader said, "No face will be announced, and a decision on this will be taken after the election."

Hasina accuses Yunus regime of 'bartering' Bangladesh to foreign interests, calls for overthrow

New Delhi (TSIT): Ousted Prime Minister of Bangladesh, Sheikh Hasina, said on Wednesday that her nation faces the threat of its territory and resources being 'bartered' away to foreign interests and called upon her countrymen to unite and 'overthrow' the interim regime led by Mohammad Yunus. In a possible reference to the US, China, and especially Pakistan, gaining wider acceptance in the Yunus-led regime, Hasina said, "Dangerously, there is a treacherous plot to barter away the territory and resources of Bangladesh to foreign interests." Hasina's recorded audio message in English was played at an event, 'Save Democracy in Bangladesh', in New Delhi on Wednesday evening. She exhorted her countrymen, reminding them about the 'liberation war' of 1971, and added, "Overthrow the foreign-serving puppet regime of Yunus." Hasina, who was ousted following public protests in August 2024, accused her successor and head of the interim government, Mohammad Yunus, of being a "murderous fascist, a money launderer, a plunderer, and a corrupt, power-hungry traitor who has bled our nation dry with his all-consuming paradigms".

Andhra liquor case: YSRCP MP Midhun Reddy appears before ED

Hyderabad, Jan 23 : YSR Congress Party MP P. Midhun Reddy on Friday appeared before the Enforcement Directorate for questioning in the multi-crore liquor scam. The Lok Sabha member from Rajampet, who is one of the accused, appeared before the ED officials at the agency's regional office in Hyderabad.

The ED is conducting a money laundering investigation in the Rs 3,500 crore liquor scam, which allegedly occurred during the YSRCP rule. The ED has taken up the probe based on an FIR issued by the Andhra Pradesh police.

Former Rajya Sabha member V. Vijayasai Reddy had appeared before the ED on Thursday. Vijayasai Reddy, who quit YSRCP and also resigned as Rajya Sabha member in January last year, was questioned for seven hours. The Special Investigation Team (SIT) of Andhra Pradesh, which is probing the case, had arrested Midhun Reddy on July 19. He was released on bail on September 30.

The case relates to the multi-crore scandal allegedly committed by manipulating excise policy and receiving kickbacks from distilleries. After the TDP-led NDA came to power in 2024, a case was registered at the CID Police Station in Mangalagiri under Sections 409, 420, 120 (B), r/w 34 and 37 of IPC and Section 7, 7A, 8, 12, 13 (1), (b), 13 (2) of the Prevention of Corruption Act, 1988.

The Criminal

Investigation Department (CID) initially conducted an investigation following a complaint by an official of the Excise Department. Later, the government constituted the SIT, headed by NTR District Commissioner of Police S.V. Rajashekhar Babu, to probe the case.

The SIT found large-scale irregularities and fund misappropriation in the liquor policy implemented during 2019-24. Investigators reportedly uncovered a kickback network involving nearly Rs 3,500 crore siphoned off over five years.

There are allegations that the YSR Congress Party leaders encouraged the new liquor policy, floated new brands, received kickbacks from the distillery companies, causing huge losses to the government. The SIT has named several accused in the case, including MPs, retired IAS officers, distillery companies and shell company owners.

the Central and state governments are giving top priority to the sector.

Stating that power distribution companies (DISCOMs) are also providing counter-guarantees, he

Sensex, Nifty close sharply lower amid sustained FII outflows

Mumbai, Jan 23 : The Indian equity markets posted strong losses on Friday, flipping early gains amid continued selling by foreign institutional investors. At the closing bell, the Sensex lost 769 points, or 0.94 per cent, to settle at 81,537. The Nifty declined 241 points, or 0.95 per cent, to close at 25,048.

The broader markets posted stronger losses than the benchmark indices as Nifty Midcap 100 index lost 1.95 per cent, while the NSE Smallcap 100 declined 2.06 per cent.

Nifty 50 and Sensex began the final day of the trading week slightly up, tracking global cues as geopolitical tensions over Greenland eased.

But the indices dipped sharply due to strong foreign selling and mixed earnings reports leading to investors maintaining a cautious outlook.

On the sectoral front, all indices were in the red. Nifty Realty fell the most down 3.42 per cent. Nifty Media dropped 2.79 per cent while Nifty PSU Bank declined 2.43 per cent. Nifty Auto eased 1.25 per cent while Nifty Oil and Gas slipped 1.30 per cent. Analysts said that Indian equity markets went on a sell-off mode despite an optimistic global market and supportive domestic PMI data. The sentiment was weighed down by an uptick in crude oil prices, a sharp depreciation of the rupee, FII's selling and earnings delivery falling marginally short of expectations amid premium India valuations.

Looking ahead, market sentiment will likely remain cautious as investors keenly wait for the upcoming Union Budget and the US Fed's interest rate decision, they added. Market watchers predicted that if better-than-expected results for Q3 FY26 are reported for some companies, they could trigger only a stock-specific reaction because foreign institutional selling is expected to continue in the near term. The rupee slumped 41 paise to touch 91.99 against the US dollar in intraday trade on Friday, amid persistent foreign fund outflows. Analysts said that intervention from the central bank has kept the volatility in check to some extent, but could not reverse the overall negative trend for the domestic currency.

Optimist raises USD 12 million in seed funding led by Accel and Arkam Ventures to build future-ready air conditioning solutions

Accel and Arkam Ventures have led the round with participation from angel investors

Capital to be deployed to scale manufacturing, R&D, and go-to-market operations

Hyderabad 2026: Optimist, a technology-led cooling solutions startup, focused on building future-ready air-conditioners has raised USD 12 million. The seed and pre-Series A round is led by Accel and Arkam Ventures along with prominent angel investors.

Founded in 2024 by Ashish Goel, (ex-CEO & co-founder of Urban Ladder), and Pranav Chopra, Optimist is a technology innovator that aims to transform customer's lives. With deep customer research and understanding of their lifestyle, it is designing and manufacturing cooling solutions specifically for India's changing needs. The products are built to operate reliably under extreme heat and power constraints.

Ashish Goel, Co-Founder & CEO, Optimist, said: "India has a population of over 1.4 billion people, but less than 130 million have access to real cooling today. That gap is the real problem we are trying to solve. Cooling in India can not be addressed with products designed for other markets and adapted here. It needs solutions that are designed in India, for India, built for our heat, our homes, our power conditions, and our realities."

Over the last year, Optimist has invested in innovation and reimagining cooling solutions through its R&D efforts and multiple product testing cycles in real-world environment. The R&D efforts are anchored at Nalanda, its in-house innovation lab in Gurugram. With in-house R&D and manufacturing, the company is able to shorten development cycles, build a product that reduces electricity bills, while easing pressure on electricity grids. This supports the government's Make in India objective of strengthening domestic manufacturing and technology capabilities.

Prashanth Prakash, Partner at Accel, said: "As cooling demand rises alongside climate pressures, efficient and reliable air conditioning will become critical infrastructure. Optimist is an example of a deep tech consumer start-up which is a combination of in-house engineering and manufacturing, along with its focus on real operating conditions, positions it well to build a scalable and differentiated cooling platform for India."

The company plans to sell its products through a mix of direct-to-consumer channels and exclusive Optimist brand stores, initially targeting residential and small commercial customers. Optimist air conditioners will be available in February 2026 in Delhi NCR, Rajasthan, Telangana and Bangalore, followed by expansion in other cities.

Bala Srinivasa, Managing Director at Arkam Ventures said, "Air Conditioner penetration in India is less than 10%. The Optimist team is reimagining how cost effective and efficient cooling can address heat stress impacting hundreds of millions of Indians. Our conviction is based on this team's ability to solve hard engineering problems, while obsessing over customer delight, product design and on-the-ground execution needed to build a category-defining consumer durables company for India." As extreme heat becomes a structural challenge, Optimist aims to support India's cooling needs with energy-efficient solutions that will benefit the larger population, for whom air conditioning solutions is still a distant dream.

ECONOMIC POTENTIAL OF THE UAE-INDIA AIR CORRIDOR FOR INDIA

The UAE-India air corridor enables economic value by bringing inbound travellers and boosting India's aviation spend.

India is entering a significant period of aviation growth.	But, market is tempered by regulatory bottlenecks in the UAE-India air corridor.
40% of Indian population is considered travelling class.	20% of the air corridor between the UAE-India occurs for approximately 20% of all international traffic in India.
7.2% projected annual growth in the UAE-India air corridor over the next decade.	54.5 million passengers are currently unmet demand in the UAE-India air corridor.
Doubling capacity increases in the Abu Dhabi-India corridor could enable sustained economic growth in India over the next year (2026-2027).	The corridor's unmet demand is expected to grow from 15M in 2025 to 25M by 2030.
$178M increase in current OPEX.	$9B long-term productivity growth by 2030.
$15.2B total spending enabled.	$9B increase in annual consumer surplus by 2030.
170K average jobs supported.
3.5M increase in inbound travellers.
$7.2B total GDP supported.
$1.2B total taxes supported.

Hyderabad: 23 January, 2026: A new study finds that existing limits on flight and seat capacity between India and the United Arab Emirates may not keep pace with rising travel demand, potentially reducing the economic benefits that stronger air connectivity can support.

The analysis shows that 27% of forecast passenger demand between India and the UAE has grown from 24% of the population in 2010 to 40% in 2024, representing an increase of nearly 300 million people. As a result, air travel demand is projected to grow by 7.2% per year through 2035, adding nearly 22 million additional passenger million unsewed passengers on the Abu Dhabi-India corridor alone. This indicates particularly acute capacity constraints on the Abu Dhabi-India corridor.

The report highlights strong structural growth in India's aviation market. India's travelling class—households with sufficient income to travel by air—has grown from 24% of the population in 2010 to 40% in 2024, representing an increase of nearly 300 million people. As a result, air travel demand is projected to grow by 7.2% per year through 2035, adding nearly 22 million additional passenger

Politics of hate speech

As hate speeches continued unabated with impunity, as authorities were not initiating action, a number of concerned citizens began to approach the Supreme Court. The apex court had, in the past, given an important judgment regarding the prevention of hate crimes and registering cases against offenders. But recently, a division bench of the court, though it had reserved orders, indicated that it would close most of the petitions relating to hate speech pending before it since 2021, and added that the petitioners could pursue remedies as per the existing legal provisions. It may be noted that the Centre and a couple of state governments asserted substantial compliance with the court orders. In the last few years, there has been a spate of hate speeches delivered by several prominent political and religious leaders belonging to the Sangh Parivar. They either had the blessings of the ruling party or at least its tacit approval, due to which authorities would not act against them. The Supreme Court had to intervene and ordered prompt registration of cases, and threatened the authorities with contempt of court in case they failed to do so. Even after the court's orders, legal battles had to be waged to make authorities take action. Two things were clear—one, judicial action at the highest level was needed, and two, there is only so much the courts could do.

The limitations of the judiciary and other constitutional authorities have to be seen in the context of the problem being more political than a law-and-order one. The BJP and its affiliates thrive on using religion for political ends, and hate speeches are a part of its playbook. When the state machinery realizes that the party in power is an avowed follower of divisive religious ideologies, it would be extremely reluctant to initiate action.

In the run-up to elections, the BJP would openly use religious rhetoric in electioneering to queer the pitch for the opposition parties.

The propaganda would range from dog whistles by top leaders to brazen Islamophobic speeches by middle-rung leaders of the BJP and the Sangh Parivar, against which even the Election Commission would not take stern, deterrent action. Authorities use every available loophole in the rule book to let the offenders off the hook. Hate speeches have serious consequences, as they permeate the rank and file and often create vigilante forces who resort to harassment, attacks and mob lynching of minorities. According to a research group, there has been an increase in hate speech in online and offline spaces over the years, and they spike during elections. Obviously, most of the speeches target the Muslim population. Hate speech is more rampant in BJP-ruled states due to the inherent permissiveness, which emboldens political and religious leaders to unleash virulent hate speeches. The BJP either refutes all allegations or argues that they are not due to religious strife, or some rare instance is often blown out of proportion by vested interests. When India expressed concern about attacks on Hindu minorities in Bangladesh, the Yunus government's defence seemed like it had taken a leaf out of the BJP's book. Hate speeches and crimes will continue as long as they yield political benefits, which puts the ball in the people's court.

In a startling revelation, the latest Oxfam Global Inequality Report shows that the combined wealth of the world's billionaires reached a record $18.3 trillion in 2025, growing three times faster than recent years. This marked an 81% increase since 2020, even as hundreds of millions worldwide struggle with basic survival. Despite this historic boom at the top, nearly half the world's population still lives in poverty, and one in four people regularly lacks sufficient food, a stark contrast to the soaring fortunes of the ultra wealthy.

Economic Growth or Skewed Prosperity? Contrasting Realities

While wealth creation among the billionaire class might appear as a symbol of economic dynamism, the broader economic reality tells a different story:

Growth largely bypasses the majority: The wealth surge among the richest underscores how capital intensive sectors and asset price inflation (especially in tech and finance) benefit wealthy investors far more than wage-dependent workers, whose incomes lag or even decline in real terms.

Stagnation for the poor: Millions remain trapped in low income brackets, with poverty rates stubbornly persistent and basic needs such as food, healthcare, and education, still out of reach for vast swathes of the global population.

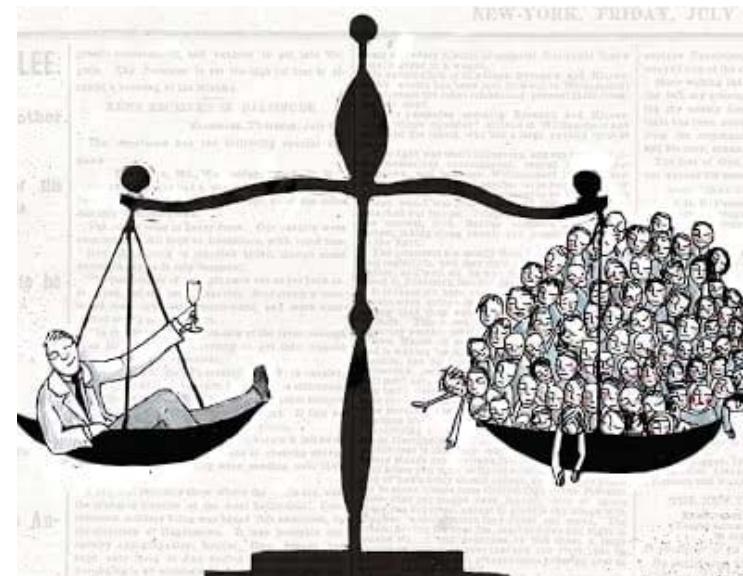

Political inequality deepens: Billionaires are now reported to be 4,000 times more likely to hold political office than ordinary citizens, potentially skewing public policy in favor of elite interests over public welfare. From an economic growth perspective, unequal wealth distribution limits overall demand, weakens human capital investment, shrinks consumer markets, and thus constrains sustainable, long-term development.

Societal and Political Impacts Beyond Numbers

The Oxfam report highlights that extreme wealth concentration isn't just an economic issue, it's a societal and democratic challenge:

Political power consolidation: With disproportionate influence over media, policymaking, and governance, the wealthy can shape regulations, tax codes, and public pri-ties to protect and expand their interests. Erosion of democratic norms: This "rule of the rich" threatens democratic egalitarianism, where political voice and policy influence should be rooted in citizenship, not bank balance.

Social unrest: Across continents, from Africa to Asia and Latin America, grassroots protests are rising against widening inequality, austerity, and lack of opportunities, illustrating that economic divides can fuel broader instability.

Link to Poverty Reduction - Lost Opportunity

The report and related analyses emphasize a stark moral and economic paradox: the wealth accumulated by the billionaire class, if redistributed could eradicate extreme poverty many times over. Estimates suggest that the recent $2.5 trillion annual increase in billionaire wealth alone could lift millions out of extreme poverty repeatedly.

Yet, that potential remains unrealized, largely because economic systems prioritize capital returns over redistributive mechanisms such as progressive taxation, public investment in social services, and protection of labor rights.

Policy Pathways for Inclusive Growth

To harness economic growth for broad-based prosperity, several strategic responses arise from the Oxfam report and expert voices globally:

Fairer Taxation: Implementing wealth, inheritance, and capital gains taxes on the ultra rich can help fund public services and social safety nets. Public Investment: Redirecting resources toward health, education, rural development, and social protection strengthens human capital and reduces vulnerability.

Corporate Accountability

Efforts to curb monopoly practices, closing tax loopholes, and enforcing labor standards can redistribute economic gains more equitably.

Global Cooperation: International frameworks similar in ambition to climate governance could monitor and address inequality systematically.

Eventually, inequality as a Barrier to Shared Prosperity

The Oxfam report lays bare a central truth: contemporary economic growth can generate enormous wealth, but without fairness and inclusion, prosperity remains narrow and fragile. While billionaire wealth hits record highs, almost half of humanity struggles to meet basic needs, a global imbalance that undermines economic resilience, social cohesion, and the moral foundations of development. If societies aim for sustainable progress and poverty reduction, wealth creation must be matched with equitable distribution, strong public institutions, and policies that empower the many, not just the few.

And Chinese EV makers are setting records — whether it's BYD's sales (besting Tesla by battery-powered vehicles sold for the first time last year) or Xiaomi's speed (its cars are setting records at major racetracks like Nürburgring in Germany).

These vehicles are powered not by oil but by domestically generated electrical power that comes from coal, nuclear, hydroponic, solar and wind.

Though China is the world's largest oil importer, its leader, Xi Jinping, is less brash about coveting foreign resources. The country's leadership is pushing intensively at substituting electricity for oil.

Chinese technology companies are paving the way for a world that will be powered by electric motors rather than gas-guzzling engines. It is a decisively 21st-century approach not just to solve its own energy problems, but also to sell batteries and other electric products to everyone else.

Canada is its newest buyer of EVs; in a rebuke of Trump, its prime minister, Mark Carney, lowered tariffs on the cars as part of a new trade deal. Though Americans have been slow to embrace electric vehicles, Chinese households have learned to love them. In 2025, 54 per cent of new cars sold in China were either battery-powered or plug-in hybrids.

That is a big reason that the country's oil con-

Honey Trap: An Organized Web of Fear, Infamy, and Crime

(In reference to the case reported in Bhilwara district)

DR. SATYAVANI SAURABH

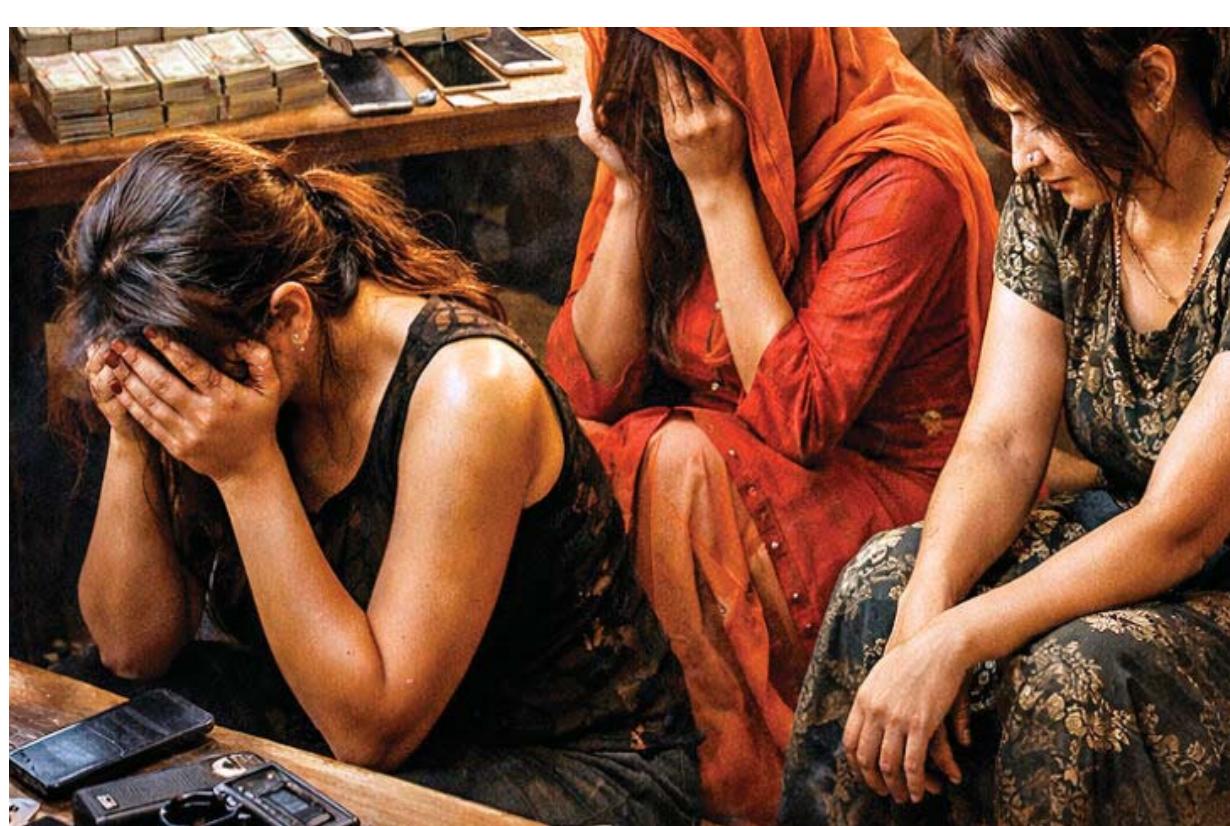

The exposure of an organized gang in Rajasthan's Bhilwara district that honey-trapped and blackmailed civilians not only exposes a criminal network but also raises serious questions about the deepening fear, silence, and stigmatization of society. This case demonstrates how certain gangs are systematically exploiting human vulnerabilities, social inhibitions, and legal fears to destroy people financially, mentally, and socially.

Police investigations have revealed that some of the women involved in this gang systematically approached ordinary citizens, cultivated friendships and emotional intimacy with them, then trapped them in compromising situations and threatened to falsely implicate them in rape, kidnapping, assault, or other serious criminal cases, extorting large sums of money. This was not a random crime, but an organized crime conducted under a well-planned strategy.

According to the police, these cases have been registered under serious sections such as blackmailing, illegal confinement, kidnapping, assault, robbery, and criminal conspiracy. This makes it clear that this crime is not limited to the moral or social realm, but is a direct challenge to the

In many cases, it has also emerged that the accused women were not alone. Their husbands, boyfriends, or other male associates played an active role in the conspiracy—sometimes as intimidators, sometimes as false witnesses, and sometimes as facilitators of the alleged kidnapping or assault.

According to the police, these cases have been registered under serious sections such as blackmailing, illegal confinement, kidnapping, assault, robbery, and criminal conspiracy. This makes it clear that this crime is not limited to the moral or social realm, but is a direct challenge to the

The most worrying aspect of this entire matter is that most victims did not come forward for a long time due to fear of social stigma. Indian society still has deep sensitivity regarding personal relationships, morality, and honor. These gangs exploit this mentality and force people to remain silent. Victims fear that contacting the police will damage their reputation in society, family, or at work. Using this fear, the accused repeatedly extort money. In many cases, victims have been extorted for lakhs of rupees, yet the threats persist.

The investigation also revealed that some of the accused women have previously been jailed for honey trapping, while others are currently under investigation in other criminal cases. This suggests that this crime is not the result of a single incident, but rather part of a long-standing network that repeatedly sought new victims.

The police clearly state that silence in such cases empowers the perpetrators. The longer a victim remains silent out of fear, the more they become controlled by the perpetrator. This is why Bhilwara District Superintendent of Police Dhamendra Singh has appealed to the public not to be afraid in any such case and to contact the police immediately.

The police have also assured that the victim's identity will be kept strictly confidential and that her safety and dignity will be respected throughout the investigation. No accused, whether male or female, will be left unpunished. This case raises another sensitive question—the misuse of the law. Laws

Trump is obsessed with oil, but Chinese batteries will soon run the world

Putin meets Trump's envoys as Kremlin says Ukraine settlement hinges on territory

MOSCOW: Russian President Vladimir Putin discussed the settlement in Ukraine with US President Donald Trump's envoys during marathon overnight talks, and the Kremlin insisted that the territorial issue needs to be resolved to reach a peace deal. The Kremlin meeting, which lasted past 3 a.m. Friday, came hours after Ukraine's President Volodymyr Zelenskyy sharply criticized his European allies Thursday for what he cast as their slow and fragmented response to Russia's nearly four-year full-scale invasion that he said has left Ukraine at the mercy of Putin amid an ongoing U.S. push for a peace settlement.

Kremlin foreign affairs adviser Yuri Ushakov, who participated in Putin's meeting with Trump's envoys Steve Witkoff and Jared Kushner, said "it was reaffirmed that reaching a long-term settlement can't be expected without solving the territorial issue," a reference to Moscow's demand that Kyiv withdraws its troops from the areas in the east that Russia illegally annexed but never fully captured. Zelenskyy said after meeting Thursday with Trump in Davos, Switzerland, that the future status of land in eastern Ukraine currently occupied by Russia is unresolved but that peace proposals are "nearly ready." On a positive note, Ushakov told reporters that it was agreed that Russian, Ukrainian and U.S. officials will hold talks on security issues related to a prospective peace deal in the United Arab Emirates on Friday.

Ushakov noted that Trump's envoys informed Putin about Trump's meeting with Zelenskyy, as well as earlier discussions they had with Ukrainian and European officials. The Kremlin talks that he described as "frank, constructive" and "fruitful" began when it was just before midnight in Moscow and lasted nearly four hours.

Witkoff and Kushner were joined by Josh Gruenbaum, the head of the Federal Acquisition Service who serves as a senior adviser on Trump's Board of Peace that Russia has been invited to join. While Russia is considering the invitation, Putin reaffirmed his offer to send $1 billion to the board from Russian assets frozen in the U.S. to help fund rebuilding Gaza.

Bangladeshi politicians hold rallies as campaigning begins for first post-Hasina election

DHAKA: Bangladeshi politicians held election rallies across the country on Friday, as campaigning began for the hugely anticipated polls in February, the first since the 2024 uprising that ousted long-time Prime Minister Sheikh Hasina.

Bangladesh will hold general elections on Feb. 12, and the two main parties contesting it, the Bangladesh Nationalist Party and Bangladesh Jamaat-e-Islami, kicked off campaigning with tens of thousands of supporters on Thursday in the northern city of Sylhet and the capital Dhaka, respectively.

Nearly 128 million of Bangladesh's 170 million population are eligible to vote in polls that will decide on proposed political reforms and bring in new leadership after prolonged political turmoil that followed Hasina's ouster, reshaping domestic and regional dynamics.

"We want to build a Bangladesh that is free from corruption, terrorism and extortion. Our dream is to build a Bangladesh where the grass-root-level working class people also can live with their rights, the women can move freely,

(and) the youths will get enough employment opportunities," Jamaat's spokesperson Ahsanul Mahboob Zubair told Arab News on Friday.

"We are expecting a beautiful and safe Bangladesh following the election next month. We want a free and fair election environment where people would be able to exercise their voting rights without any fear."

After it was crushed during Hasina's 15 years in power, Jamaat-e-Islami is leading a 10-party alliance that includes the National Citizen Party, formed by student leaders who spearheaded the uprising. NCP's Nahid Islam launched their campaign urging voters to "carry forward the progress of reform." Tarique Rahman, BNP chairman and son of the late former Prime Minister Khaleda Zia, is widely seen as a leading contender for prime minister. He has vowed to create jobs for "millions of unemployed youth" and support women's economic independence. More than 1,800 candidates are contesting for around 300 seats in the Bangladeshi parliament in the upcoming polls, which the country's interim leader Muhammad Yunus said will be a benchmark for future votes.

7 Indian fishermen arrested by Sri Lanka Navy for alleged poaching

COLOMBO: The Sri Lanka Navy has arrested seven Indian fishermen for allegedly fishing in the island nation's territorial waters. The fishermen were arrested and their two trawlers seized on Tuesday off Kovilam, in the northern Jaffna peninsula, the Navy said in a statement. Those arrested will be handed over to the Fisheries Inspector of Myliddy, Jaffna, for legal proceedings, it said. Fishermen from both countries are arrested frequently for inadvertently trespassing into each other's waters. The fishermen issue is a contentious one in the ties between India and Sri Lanka, with Lankan Navy personnel even firing at Indian fishermen in the Palk Strait and seizing their boats in several alleged incidents of illegally entering Sri Lankan territorial waters. The Palk Strait, a narrow strip of water separating Tamil Nadu from Sri Lanka, is a rich fishing ground for fishermen from both countries. In 2025, the Sri Lankan Navy apprehended 346 Indian fishermen for alleged poaching and seized 44 trawlers, according to the statement.

Death toll in Iran protest crackdown is reportedly at 5,002 as Trump says US 'armada' approaching

DUBAI: The death toll from Iran's bloody crackdown on nationwide protests reached at least 5,002 people killed Friday, activists said, warning many more still were feared dead as the most comprehensive internet blackout in the country's history crossed the two-week mark.

The challenge in getting information out of Iran persists due to authorities cutting off access to the world through the internet on Jan. 8, even as tensions rise between the United States and Iran as an American aircraft carrier group moves closer to the Middle East — a force US President Donald Trump likened to an "armada" in comments to journalists late Thursday.

The US-based Human Rights Activists News Agency offered the death toll, saying 4,716 were demonstrators, 203 were government-affiliated, 43 were children and 40 were civilians not taking part in the protests. It added that more than 26,800 people had been detained in a widening arrest campaign by authorities.

The agency's figures have been accurate in previous rounds of unrest in Iran and rely on a network of activists in Iran to verify deaths. That death toll exceeds that of any other round of protest or unrest in Iran in decades, and recalls the chaos surrounding Iran's 1979 Islamic Revolution.

Iran's government offered its first death toll Wednesday, saying 3,117 people were killed. It added that 2,427 of the dead in the demonstrations that began Dec. 28 were civilians and security forces, with the rest being "terrorists." Iran's theocracy in the past has undercounted or not reported fatalities from unrest. The Associated Press has been unable to independently assess the death toll, in part due to authorities cutting access to the internet and blocking international calls into the country.

Embracing realistic unity in a fractured world

In the snow-capped Swiss town of Davos, Canadian Prime Minister Mark Carney on Tuesday delivered a speech that cut through the polite veneer of global forums. Urging leaders to abandon the "rules-based order" as mere theater, he invoked Vaclav Havel's essay "The Power of the Powerful" to critique performative gestures like shopkeepers in Soviet-era Czechoslovakia who displayed unity slogans without conviction. Carney's message was stark: we are not in a smooth transition to a better world but amid a profound rupture, where economic integration has morphed into a tool of rivalry through tariffs and disrupted supply chains. For middle powers like Canada — and, by extension, nations across the Arab world — he said this demands "value-based realism," a blend of principled action and pragmatic adaptation.

Carney's words resonate deeply in our region, as great-power competitions echo from the Arctic to the Arabian Gulf. As the world shifts toward multipolarity, outdated Western models of aid and influence give way to self-reliant progress. Yet, amid this flux, fear often dominates the discourse, breeding disastrous outcomes.

The terminology leaders used to frame our global predicament, be it "transition," "crisis" or "rivalry," reveals the tangled legacy of industrialization, colonialism and now artificial intelligence's grip on labor markets. Global warming, exacerbated by unchecked technology-driven consumption, underscores the urgency. Commercial law, once a unifier, now navigates this practical multipolarity, where AI and manufacturing promise innovation but demand equitable policies.

Carney's Davos address was no abstract lament. He outlined a Canadian strategy that middle powers everywhere could adapt. Dr. Turki Faisal Al-Rasheed This article explores these tensions through the lens of 20th-century German philosopher Carl Schmitt, whose ideas on power dynamics challenge us to confront reality without illusions. Drawing on Carney's realism and Schmitt's stark friend-enemy distinction, we examine how Arab nations can move beyond division to address true threats: poverty, inequality and injustice.

While Schmitt's framework illuminates the raw edges of politics, it must not fuel fragmentation. Instead, it calls for redirecting energy toward sustainable development's four pillars — economic growth, social justice, environmental stewardship and human capital — to build resilient societies. Carney's Davos address was no abstract lament. He outlined a Canadian strategy that middle powers everywhere could adapt: tax incentives to spur $1 trillion in investments across energy, AI and critical minerals; a doubling of defense spending; and fresh partnerships with the EU, China and Qatar. On Ukraine, Canada pushes coalitions for principled support; in the Arctic, it champions Greenland's autonomy against coercive pressures; and in trade, it forges blocs that prioritize shared resilience over isolationist fortresses.

Nostalgia for a unipolar past is no strategy, Carney warned.

Integration, once a bridge, now weaponizes dependencies — think US tariffs on allies or China's supply-chain leverage. Middle powers must name this reality, act with consistency and diversify alliances to stand firm. For Arab states, squeezed between US-China frictions and regional flashpoints, this means leveraging resources like oil and renewables not for confrontation but for mutual gain. Qatar's gas diplomacy or Saudi Arabia's Vision 2030 investments in AI exemplify this shift, turning vulnerabilities into strengths.

Yet, as Antonio Gramsci observed, crises are not endpoints but "morbid symptoms" where old structures crumble, birthing new possibilities. In this interregnum, fear-mongering — labeling every setback an "external plot" — only deepens divides. Collective awareness and political will are essential to steer toward prosperity. Prioritizing human needs over security obsessions, we can redistribute wealth equitably, ensuring no one is left behind in the rush for innovation.

Schmitt's enduring influence lies in stripping politics to its core: the distinction between friend and enemy. In his 1932 masterpiece "The Concept of the Political," Schmitt argued that every domain has its opposition — morality pits good against evil, economics profit against loss — but politics alone hinges on existential stakes. The enemy is not a mere rival or disliked neighbor but a public foe, another threatening a group's survival, potentially through lethal conflict.

This is not about morality; the enemy may even share values, yet their presence endangers one's way of life. A border skirmish, for instance, transforms neighbors into adversaries: one sees defense, the other invasion. Leadership, Schmitt contended, demands sovereign decisions unbound by law or ethics, echoing the views of Thomas Hobbes and Niccolò Machiavelli on humanity's volatile nature. Politics becomes the art of managing chaos: by naming the enemy, leaders forge unity, channeling passion into resolve. War, in this view, is politics intensified — a trial of collective will.

Schmitt forged these ideas in Weimar Germany's turmoil, later tainted by his Nazi ties. Yet, abstracted from that shadow, his theory cuts through liberal optimism. He lambasted liberalism for "depoliticizing society, recasting enemies as market competitors or forum debaters. Wars become "humanitarian" operations, rivals become trading partners. This neutralizes threats but saps vitality, assuming trade and talk can tame primal instincts. Schmitt tied this to theology: politics mirrors sacred battles of the faithful against infidels, demanding reckoning with human frailty — like original sin — before renewal. In our hyperconnected era, Schmitt's warning rings true. Social media amplifies rifts, while liberal inclusivity risks blinding us to real dangers. Digital echo chambers turn debates into tribal wars, eroding the shared ground needed for progress.

Contemporary thinkers like

French strategist Pierre Conesa extend Schmitt's ideas, showing how enemies are manufactured for control. In "Manufacturing the Enemy," Conesa outlines six enemy types, each a strategic fiction with stark parallels in the Arab world. First, the neighboring enemy thrives on proximity: Iran's shadow over Iraq and Saudi-Yemeni border frictions mirror India and Pakistan's Kashmir grudge. Second, the global enemy pits superpowers — US-Russia over Ukraine spills into our energy routes, much like Cold War proxies.

The intimate enemy wounds deepest in civil wars: Syria's sectarian fractures since 2011 evoke Rwanda's horrors, where kin become killers. The barbarian enemy revives colonial tropes — Western media once painted Algerian fighters as savages; today, Arab Spring protesters face similar smears as "chaos agents."

Then comes the hidden enemy, fueled by conspiracies: accusations of Zionist or Western meddling in Arab uprisings deflect from home-grown woes. Finally, the media enemy weaponizes narratives — Daesh videos demonize the West; state outlets brand critics "foreign puppets."

These archetypes politicize life but pervert Schmitt's intent. Enmity rallies crowds, justifies crackdowns and shifts blame from leaders to phantoms. In resource-rich Arab states, economic dips trigger "infiltration" crises, masking corruption or inequality.

In this interregnum, fear-mongering — labeling every setback an "external plot" — only deepens divides. Herein lies the peril: fabricated enemies distract from real ones embedded in daily struggles. Authoritarians summon foes to inflate patriotism, authorize repression and bury failures like graft. Post-Arab Spring, dissidents were "fifth columnists," protests were "adversary plots." This evades the UN Sustainable Development Goals, our clearest diagnostic.

Consider Goal 1 (No Poverty):

More than 100 million Arabs live below the poverty line, as per World Bank data. Goal 2 (Zero Hunger) falters in Yemen and Sudan, where one in five faces famine. Goal 3 (Health) exposed COVID-19 gaps, with maternal mortality double the global average in spots. Goal 4 (Education) sees 20 percent female illiteracy, stifling innovation. Goal 5 (Gender Equality) battles inheritance biases and job barriers. Goal 8 (Decent Work) grapples with 25 percent youth unemployment in North Africa, spurring migration. Goal 16 (Peace and Institutions) suffers from corruption, eroding trust.

These are not fate but choices prioritizing arms over schools, elites over equity. Schmitt's realism demands naming them: poverty as the ultimate existential threat, inequality as the hidden saboteur. By fixating on externals, we postpone Gramsci's transformation, where crises yield justice. Schmitt's paradigm pierces illusions, but in the Arab world — scarred by colonialism, hooked on resources and mired in intrigues — it risks entrenching chaos, from Libya's militias to Lebanon's sects. The antidote? Redirect enmity inward: declare systemic neglect our collective foe. Invest in SDGs as statecraft — fund education for youth empowerment, green tech for climate resilience, fair economies for shared prosperity.

Environmental pressures and AI upheavals demand this pivot. AI and manufacturing can innovate, but only if policies honor diverse needs, ditching Western aid traps for self-driven growth. Leaders must embody Carney's value-based realism: pragmatic deals with foes-turned-partners, like EU pacts or Chinese infrastructure, while upholding justice. As Gramsci urged, let's seize this interregnum for renewal. Collective will builds sustainable pillars, reducing inequalities and humanizing progress. In unity over division, the Arab world transcends fragmentation. Let politics build, not break, declaring poverty the enemy we slay together. This forges something bigger, juster: a horizon of flourishing for all.

I'm following Rohit Sharma's footsteps as Gambhir and Suryakumar want it from me: Abhishek Sharma

NEW DELHI (TSIT): Swashbuckling India opener Abhishek Sharma said he has been following the aggressive template set by former skipper Rohit Sharma in T20I powerplays after being encouraged to do so by head coach Gautam Gambhir and captain Suryakumar Yadav.

Having made his T20I debut in July 2024, Abhishek's minute-a-mile batting approach has helped him take the No. 1 spot in the ICC rankings for batters in that format.

In 34 matches so far, he has cracked two tons and seven fifties to score 1199 runs at a strike rate of 190.92. "Rohit bhai has done a lot for the country. There is always pressure because of the starts he used to give in the powerplay," Abhishek told JioHotstar when asked about Rohit's influence on him. "When I came into the team, the coach and captain wanted the same from me. I felt it suited my style too because I love to attack from the first few balls. I have been following in Rohit bhai's footsteps and I am really happy to play in this manner and do well for India," he added.

Abhishek said while there is room for improvement in his game, he has complete role clarity.

"I wouldn't say I am fully matured yet, because there is always room to improve. But I feel my job is to play aggressive cricket in the first six overs. 'I have been practicing a lot for that. I know if I give a good start or show good intent early, the team can follow that momentum (and) that is what I always think about," he said.

"I ask them to bowl outswingers, in-swingers, and use the new ball. I also ask them to take certain fielders out for me. In his bid to remain ahead of the competition, the left-hander has also worked on the scenarios of bowlers taking pace off the ball against him. "I know (that) especially going into the World Cup and any match, they won't give me a lot of pace. I realised that in the last few matches, so I have been working on it," he said.

Abhishek said working on his back lift also helped him generate smooth flow of the bat. "I have always had a high grip holding position on the bat. The only thing I worked on was my back lift. I used to keep it a bit low, but now I keep it above my waist so I can get a smooth flow," he said. "When it was low, I was getting late on some balls so I practiced that. But the back lift and the grip are both natural for me," Abhishek added.

"I try to get similar bowlers to bowl at me in the nets. For every bowler in the other team, I find someone similar to practice against," he said.

WHEN DUST SETTLES, TRUTH ABOUT "UNLIMITED AUTHORITY" WILL BECOME CLEAR: GAUTAM GAMBHIR

NEW DELHI (TSIT): India coach Gautam Gambhir has rejected the widely held assumption that he holds "unlimited authority" in team selection and expressed his amusement at being "pitted against his own" after Congress MP Shashi Tharoor described his role as "hardest job after the Prime Minister's".

Tharoor, an avid cricket fan himself, shared a selfie with Gambhir ahead of the first T20I against New Zealand in Nagpur and expressed his admiration for the manner in which the former India opener is performing in his current job despite the relentless scrutiny. In Nagpur, enjoyed a good & frank discussion with my old friend @GautamGambhir, the man with the hardest job in India after the PM's! He is being second-guessed by millions daily but stays calm & walks on undaunted. A word of appreciation for his quiet determination and able leadership. Wishing him all success - starting today!" Tharoor tweeted. Gambhir responded late last night and fleetingly touched upon some of the chatter that has dominated his tenure. "Thanks a lot Dr @ShashiTharoor! When the dust settles, truth & logic about a coach's supposedly "unlimited authority" will become clear.

Varun Chakravarthy is a magician with the ball: Sunil Gavaskar

NAGPUR: Batting legend Sunil Gavaskar has described Varun Chakravarthy as a "magician with the ball", as the mystery spinner continues to flummox batters with his deception and unique variations.

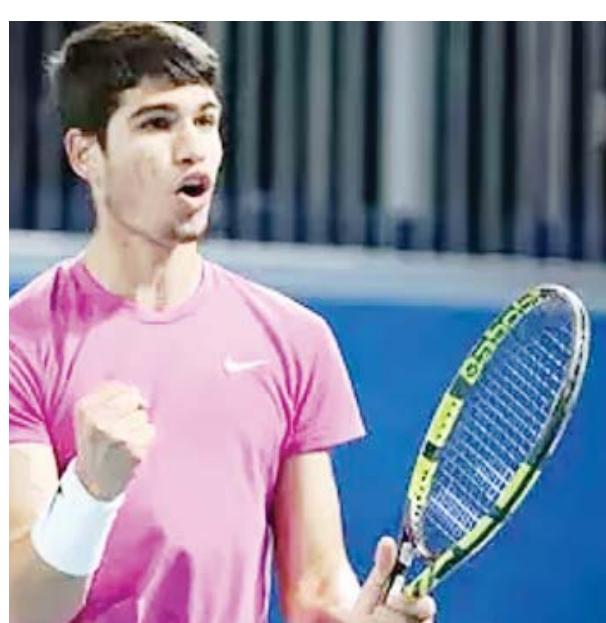

Chakravarthy picked up two big wickets at crucial junctures in India's victory over New Zealand in the first T20I here on Wednesday. "Varun looked a little rusty, but that's understandable. He picked up two wickets and the economy rate, when the batters are going hell-bent for leather, was pretty decent as well. The important thing is that his body language was good.

"Often, you know, his body language, sometimes when he's taken for a few runs, can be a little bit down. That didn't happen," Gavaskar said on JioHotstar. The former India captain added, "He (Varun) was walking back to the mark, upright, wasn't looking fazed by the fact that he'd been hit for a couple of sixes, and that's always a very good sign.

However, taking a hard-line position, Bangladesh's sports advisor Asif Nazrul, after a meeting with national team players, announced that the ICC's assessment was not acceptable to them. "While our cricketers have worked hard to qualify for

Carlos Alcaraz wins third-round match but loses 'drop-shot battle' at Australian Open MELBOURNE (TSIT): Carlos Alcaraz acknowledged that while he won the third-round match, he lost the battle of the drop shots against Corentin Moutet. That could be a first for the 22-year-old Spaniard, who grew up relentlessly practicing his drop shots and is now at the Australian Open chasing a career Grand Slam. The left-handed Moutet mixed things up for Alcaraz in an almost festival Friday vibe on Rod Laver Arena, his blend of drop shots, slice, tweener, half-volleys, angled volleys and even an underarm serve keeping the world's No. 1-ranked player on his toes.

We won't play in India but still hopeful of justice from ICC: Bangladesh refuse to budge on T20WC the World Cup, the security risk regarding playing in India remains unchanged.

This concern is not based on abstract analysis..." Nazrul said in a press conference while declaring that the country won't play in India.

"...we are not convinced that they can ensure the safety of our entire team, journalists, and spectators. "We are not giving up hope yet; our team is ready. We expect the ICC to provide justice by considering our genuine security risks and allowing us to play in India. Lankash

Bangladesh are due to play four games in India (three in Kolkata and one in Mumbai). The country raised security concerns after pacer Mustafizur

Rahman was ousted from the IPL on BCCI's instructions for unspecified "developments all around."

"It is crucial to weigh the loss of not playing against the potential catastrophe of pushing players, fans, and journalists into a risky regional political situation. This is a government decision, as the state is responsible for determining whether its citizens face security risks abroad," Nazrul asserted.

The ICC on Wednesday refused to accept its security concerns, saying that the Bangladesh Cricket Board was repeatedly linking its participation in the tournament to a "single, isolated and unrelated development concerning one of its player's involvement in a domestic league." "In the absence of any independent security findings that materially compromise the safety of the Bangladesh team, the ICC is unable to relocate fixtures," the ICC had stated.

AUSTRALIAN OPEN:

Australian Open: Djokovic one away from 400 Grand Slam match wins

Novak Djokovic....

MELBOURNE (TSIT): Novak Djokovic and Stan Wawrinka made it a day for the ages at the Australian Open.

Djokovic improved to 399 wins in Grand Slam matches with a 6-3, 6-2, 6-2 victory over Francesca Maestrelli on Thursday, making the 38-year-old, 24-time major winner just one shy of becoming the first player ever to 400.

He's aiming to win an unprecedented 25th Grand Slam title. And if he does, he'll beat Ken Rosewall's record (aged 37 in 1972) as the oldest man in the Open era to win a major singles championship.

The Rosewall name was prominent on Day 5 at Melbourne Park, where he was among the invited VIPs. Wawrinka, at 40 years, 310 days, became the first man over 40 to reach the third round of a major since Rosewall in 1978. It took a 4 1/2-hour 4-6, 6-3, 3-6, 7-5, 7-6 (3) come-back victory over 21-year-old qualifier Arthur Gerasimov. That's the longest match of the 2026 tournament so far. Wawrinka, who is retiring at the end of the year, will next face No. 9 Taylor Fritz. His was one of three high-profile matches that finished around the same time, with Jannik Sinner continuing his bid for an Australian Open three-peat after beating James Duckworth 6-1, 6-4, 6-2 on Rod Laver Arena.

The defining feature of Naomi Osaka's first two rounds quickly moved from fashion to friction when her 6-3, 4-6, 6-2 win over Sorana Cirstea ended in tension. "I think this was her last Australian Open so, OK, sorry she was mad about it," Osaka said. With Sinner facing an Australian wild card, "she said.

he got the prime time night slot and bumped 10-time Australian Open winner Djokovic into the afternoon session.

That didn't bother Djokovic as much as the dropped service game in the third set - his first of the tournament. It stung Djokovic, who broke the Italian qualifier at love in the next game and finished on an eight-point roll. He said he took extra time out in the offseason and fine-tuned some skills as he chases his biggest goals.

"When I have more time, then I obviously try to look at my game and different elements that I can really improve. Otherwise, what's the point?" he said.

"That's the kind of mentality I try to nurture. It's been allowing to me play at the highest level at this age." Iga Swiatek beat Marie Bouzkova 6-2, 6-3 and later said she's been trying to take lessons from Djokovic's attitude to sustained success and longevity.
