Trump denies Iran $300 billion Iran fund reports, calls them 'fake news'

WASHINGTON (TSIT)

US President Donald Trump rejected reports that his administration is weighing a $300 billion fund for Iran as part of the agreement that has been virtually signed to end the conflict.

"Iran has agreed to never have a Nuclear Weapon! Also, the story that the U.S. is paying Iran 300 million Dollars is Fake News, put out by the Democrats!!!" Trump wrote in a Truth Social post. His remarks came just hours after Vice President JD Vance suggested that Iran "could have access" to a $300 billion reconstruction fund if it complies with the terms of a deal, with funding expected to come from Gulf nations.

"That's the sort of thing they could have access to, funded by the Gulf Coast coalition, so long as they honor their end of the obligation," Vance said in an interview with CBS.

Vance was likely referring to the Gulf Cooperation Council, which includes Bahrain, Kuwait, Oman, Qatar, Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates. Moreover, CNN quoted US official's earlier briefing to reporters, saying, "We discussed the possibility of releasing frozen funds, sanctions relief, you know, a big $300 billion fund to rebuild their country, and all of these things are going to be tied to performance."

No trace of missing girl in Andhra, dolls used in search operation

AMARAVATI (TSIT)

With the two-year-old girl missing from a palm oil plantation in Andhra Pradesh's Kakinada district remaining untraced for more than 10 days, authorities engaged in search operations have planted two dolls attached to an iron trap to ascertain the presence of wild animals in the area. The police and forest department personnel have placed two dolls resembling the missing child near the plantation where she went missing on June 6. They also inserted meat into the dolls to attract wild animals. Officials supervising the search operation are keeping vigil around these dolls through camera traps.

CM Chandrababu Naidu Unveils "CBN@361 Degrees" Book in Singapore

THE SOUTH INDIA TIMES, VISAKHAPATNAM.

Andhra Pradesh Chief Minister N. Chandrababu Naidu unveiled the book "CBN@361 Degrees - Polymath" at a special event organised by the Kakatiya Cultural Association in Singapore. The Chief Minister released the book and presented the first copies to Shilpak Ambule, High Commissioner of India to Singapore, Minister P. Narayana, and representatives of the Kakatiya Cultural Association. The book has been authored by Shakhamuri Srinivasa Prasad, Chief Editor of Repatikosam daily, and translated into English by retired IAS officer K.V. Satyanarayana. The publication analyses the decisions taken by Chandrababu Naidu at various stages of his political career, portraying him as a visionary leader and examining his approach to governance and development.

Speaking on the occasion, the author stated that Chandrababu Naidu's style of leadership and decision-making reflects the qualities seen in internationally acclaimed leaders such as Lee Kuan Yew, the founding Prime Minister of Singapore, and former New Zealand Prime Minister Jacinda Ardern. He observed that Naidu's emphasis on long-term planning for Andhra Pradesh and his commitment towards the development of Amaravati as the state capital stand as examples of his visionary outlook.

Former AP RERA Chairman Ramanath noted that the book brings to light several lesser-known aspects of Chandrababu Naidu's leadership through opinions and observations expressed on different occasions. Representatives of the Kakatiya Cultural Association also presented the Chief Minister with a commemorative silver coin issued to mark the birth centenary of Lee Kuan Yew.

The association announced that the book would soon be released in Telugu, Hindi, and other Indian languages. They further revealed that the digital edition of the previously published book, "Chandrababu X.0," had recorded nearly eight million downloads. According to the organisers, the themes discussed in CBN@361 Degrees would be valuable for political researchers, students of leadership studies, and those pursuing management education. The event was attended by former AP RERA Chairman Ramanath, K.V. Satyanarayana, Shankara Prasad, and several prominent members of the Telugu community in Singapore.

Kharge demands resignation of Education Minister first, as govt blocks Telegram channel

NEW DELHI (TSIT):

Congress President Mallikarjun Kharge launched a sharp attack on the Modi government on Tuesday, demanding the immediate resignation of Union Education Minister Dharmendra Pradhan over the ongoing row surrounding the NEET examination and repeated instances of paper leaks across competitive exams.

In a strongly worded statement, Kharge criticised the government for temporarily blocking the messaging app Telegram in connection with the NEET re-examination process. He alleged that instead of addressing the root causes of the crisis, the government was resorting to desperate measures such as deploying the Indian Air Force for question paper transport, blocking digital platforms, and shielding the main culprits behind paper leaks while arresting only minor players.

"Modi ji should first demand the resignation of his Education Minister, Dharmendra Pradhan, who has effectively blocked the futures of crores of young people," Kharge said through his X handle in a post. He pointed out that over the last decade, as many as 90 paper leaks have occurred, severely impacting around 9 crore youth aspiring for government jobs and higher education.

The Congress chief highlighted the human cost of these scandals, noting that around half a dozen young aspirants have taken their own lives due to the setbacks. He expressed anguish over parents who borrowed heavily to fund years of coaching for exams like NEET, SSC, UGC-NET, and CUET, only to see their children's dreams shattered by repeated leaks.

CM Revanth orders comprehensive Kharif action plan for farmers

HYDERABAD (TSIT) BUREAU:

Chief Minister A.Revanth Reddy has directed officials to implement a comprehensive action plan for seed procurement, fertilizer distribution and crop procurement to ensure hassle-free agricultural operations during the upcoming Kharif season. Chairing a high-level review meeting of the Agriculture Department at the MCRHRD Bodhi Pavilion on Monday, Chief Minister emphasized the need for a transparent and technology-driven system covering every stage of farming from seed distribution to procurement of harvested crops.

Meeting was attended by Deputy Chief Minister Mallu Bhatti Vikramarka, Ministers Tummalala

Nageswara Rao and D. Sridhar Babu, Rajya Sabha MP Vem Narendar Reddy, Chief Secretary K. Ramakrishna Rao, CMO Principal Secretary Seshadri and senior officials. To ensure effective implementation of agricultural operations, the Chief Minister ordered the immediate formation of a high-level official committee headed by the Agriculture Secretary.

The committee will include the Director of Agriculture, Managing Director of Civil Supplies and Planning Department Secretary and will monitor seed distribution, crop sowing, farmer registrations, crop data collection, yield estimation and procurement activities across the State.

Stressing the importance of preparedness, Revanth Reddy instructed officials to formulate advance plans to address challenges such as unseasonal rains, transportation, storage, weighing and marketing issues during procurement. He directed officials to ensure that farmers receive the benefits of Minimum Support Price (MSP) and government procurement policies without delay. Chief Minister also ordered adequate supply of seven identified fine variety paddy seeds following the government's decision to provide a bonus on fine rice varieties. These seeds will be made available at subsidized rates through Rythu Vedikas, which are being transformed into integrated farmer service centres.

Mahabubabad land dispute sparks concerns over administrative neutrality

MAHABUBABAD (TSIT)

A land dispute in Edulapusalpalli village of Mahabubabad district has raised questions over administrative neutrality after allegations surfaced that a revenue official facing complaints became directly involved in proceedings related to the disputed property. The controversy centres on Survey Nos. 447 and 448, where ownership and revenue records are reportedly under dispute and subject to ongoing litigation. Ahmed Khan, State Organising Secretary of the Telangana Muslim Associations JAC, has approached the District Collector for the second time, seeking intervention from the Telangana Chief Secretary and the Chief Commissioner of Land Administration (CCLA).

According to representations submitted by Khan, complaints were earlier lodged regarding alleged irregularities in the handling of land records and administrative decisions connected to the disputed survey numbers. He alleged that before an independent verification process was completed, the concerned Tahsildar visited the disputed land on June 12, despite complaints against the officer remaining pending before higher authorities.

Khan questioned whether official proceedings related to the land were conducted in accordance with prescribed procedures and sought clarification on the circumstances under which certain administrative orders were issued. He also alleged that no comprehensive survey was conducted at the site and claimed that his application for digital authentication of land passbook records has remained pending for more than a year.

No Israel without me: Trump slams military strikes in Beirut

Evian-le-Bains (France): United States President Donald Trump, on Tuesday, June 16, while highlighting Washington's support for Tel Aviv, claimed that "there would have been no Israel without me," and that the state would have been "blown up a long time ago" had he not gotten involved. "Without the United States, there would be no Israel, without me, there would be no Israel, cause no other President was willing to do what I did," he said.

Trump made the remarks while speaking to reporters during a bilateral meeting with Qatar's Emir Sheikh Tamim bin would not "exist right now as it would have been blown off the face of the earth hundred per cent," adding that "every smart person in Israel knows that." According to the US President, the war between Israel and Hezbollah in Lebanon has continued for far "too long and too many people are being killed."

Trump indicated that he was upset, while referring to the recent Israeli military strike in Lebanon's capital, Beirut, as it had come moments before the Iran-US peace deal was announced. "I saw that attack, I saw where it went. That was vicious.. too much. You know you can do too much also," he said.

Vigilance Probe at Andhra University Triggers Concern

The South India Times, Visakhapatnam: The ongoing vigilance inquiry at Andhra University, one of the state's oldest and most prestigious institutions of higher education, has sparked widespread debate within academic circles. The investigation, reportedly focusing on past recruitments, administrative decisions, and various university projects, has created an atmosphere of uncertainty among faculty and staff. Concerns are being expressed not only about the inquiry itself but also about the manner in which it is being conducted. University sources point out that major decisions in autonomous institutions such as Andhra University are typically taken through established statutory bodies. The Executive Council, which includes the Vice-Chancellor, Registrar, and government representatives, is responsible for approving important administrative and academic decisions. Against this backdrop, the direct initiation of a vigilance investigation into decisions taken through such institutional mechanisms has become a matter of discussion among educationists. According to academic circles, previous allegations involving university affairs were generally subjected to preliminary scrutiny by expert committees or retired senior officials. Further action would usually be based on the findings of such committees. In the present case, however, the absence of any publicly known preliminary review before the vigilance inquiry has drawn attention.

Particular concern is being expressed over the reported summoning of members associated with earlier faculty recruitment processes, including scrutiny committee members, subject experts, and former university administrators who had served in various official capacities. Academicians fear that questioning individuals who participated in duly constituted selection procedures may discourage qualified experts from accepting similar responsibilities in the future. Some faculty members have also reportedly voiced dissatisfaction with the way the inquiry is being carried out. Repeated appearances before investigating officials and prolonged waiting periods are said to have caused stress among those involved. Sources indicate that a few employees have opted for leave, while others are experiencing considerable mental strain due to the ongoing proceedings.

No Water or Power Shortage for Visakhapatnam Due to Data Centres: MP M. Sribharat

The South India Times, Visakhapatnam: Visakhapatnam Member of Parliament M. Sribharat has dismissed concerns that the proposed data centres in the Greater Visakhapatnam region would lead to shortages of water and electricity in the city, describing such apprehensions as baseless.

Addressing a media conference held at the GVMC headquarters on Tuesday morning, the MP said the city's current daily water requirement for industries, townships and domestic consumption stands at 470-480 MLD, while the existing supply is around 410 MLD. He noted that once the Polavaram Project is completed and additional infrastructure is put in place, Greater Visakhapatnam will have a total water capacity of 2,110 MLD within the next two to three years. Sribharat stated that even after meeting the requirements of the proposed data centres and the Visakhapatnam Steel Plant, hundreds of MLD of water would still remain available. He added that the government is also focusing on desalination projects to address future demands. A proposal has already been prepared for setting up a 100 MLD desalination plant at Pudimadaka in the first phase, with the treated water intended primarily for industrial use. The MP also rejected concerns regarding electricity shortages. He said the city's present power consumption ranges between 1.5 and 2 gigawatts.

NO ONE IS WINNING THE AI RACE

Nvidia is worth more than every company listed on the Indian stock market combined. But on a single day in January 2025, it lost roughly $600 billion, marking the biggest single-day wipeout in US stock market history. The driving factor behind this loss was that a Chinese lab had done for $6 million what top US labs had spent hundreds of millions attempting.

Throughout history, scarcity has been the catalyst for innovation, and that is what DeepSeek-R1 [arXiv] demonstrates: building smarter, not bigger. The US had blocked the sale of NVIDIA's most powerful AI chips, such as the H100 and B200, to Chinese companies. This restriction is the exact reason why DeepSeek had limited compute power and had to train their massive models on the less capable H800 graphics processing units (GPUs).

Rather than accept those constraints, the DeepSeek lab refined both architecture and infrastructure in tandem to train massive models far more efficiently, while keeping in mind their hardware realities. They proved they could bypass these hardware restrictions and train world-class models on older chips at a fraction of the cost.

The immediate impact was panic. Stocks for Nvidia, ASML, Google and Microsoft all plummeted the week DeepSeek launched as investors feared a massive shift. If DeepSeek could achieve frontier performance with such lean resources, the multi-billion-dollar demand for massive GPU clusters might simply evaporate.

Geopolitically, it shattered the illusion that the US was at the forefront of AI research. This forced the existing giants to pivot away from simply throwing more compute at models and hoping for better results. Instead, they began adopting an efficiency-first framework. China has since shut Nvidia out of its market, citing security concerns. They want AI sovereignty, with a homegrown ecosystem using Huawei chips. Sixteen months on, Nvidia, as well as other companies focusing heavily on AI are doing better than ever. An ever-increasing demand for compute obliterated the investors' apprehensions. This phenomenon predates modern technology, stretching back to the steam engine.

The English economist William Stanley Jevons in his 1865 book The Coal Question, wrote: "It is a confusion of ideas to suppose that the economical use of fuel is equivalent to diminished consumption. The very contrary is the truth." He argued that more efficient technology would accelerate the depletion of England's coal reserves, not slow it. AI compute is the latest example of this. The demand for it has skyrocketed, when intuitively, efficiency should have made massive compute obsolete.

DeepSeek-R1 was also the first open-source reasoning model. For closed-source, proprietary models, the benefits primarily flow to the model creator and the cloud provider running those workloads. OpenAI and Anthropic are the clearest examples of this. Open-source models, however, benefit startups, individual developers, enterprises and entire ecosystems of service providers.

The US strategy to maintain the lead in the AI race relied on the assumption that gatekeeping compute would render China unable to catch up. As Liang Wenfeng, DeepSeek's founder, told 36kr: "We didn't intentionally become a [disruptive force], we accidentally became one."

DeepSeek overthrew this assumption. What followed was a commoditisation shock. These models were now cheaper and more accessible than ever, drawing far more users.

INSIDE THE "RATIONAL FRENZY" DRIVING THE AI SUPER-CYCLE

When Elon Musk stood in a SpaceX hangar in Texas on June 12th and set the Nasdaq's trading day in motion, he ended it as the world's first trillionaire. The flotation pulled in $75 billion, more than any listing before it, ahead of Saudi Aramco in 2019 and NTT back in 1987. The stock rose 19% before the close, which put a price of roughly $2.1 trillion on the business. Take that in and pause. SpaceX booked $18.7 billion of revenue last year and lost $4.9 billion in the process. Set those two figures side by side and sit with the gap, because that gap is the argument of this entire market. The Gap is itself the Reality For three years, the investing world treated artificial intelligence as a riddle to be solved from the outside. How big was the bubble, which trades would it ruin, where were the winners hiding. Commentators of all kinds opined from end of humanity doom narratives to "it's a bubble" valuation analysis. The show went on. The larger shift was the one happening to the floor they were standing on. AI has stopped being one corporate theme among many and turned into something closer to a macroeconomic engine. Pimco has estimated that AI-related spending could add as much as $14 trillion to global investment over five years, a sum it puts at roughly an eighth of world output. The big American cloud companies are on course to pour something like $800 billion into AI data centres this year. Kevin Warsh, newly installed at the Federal Reserve, has spoken of AI as a force that could dampen inflation and clear room to cut rates. Once a single theme begins to move output, prices and the cost of money, a portfolio can no longer treat it as optional. It turns into the climate everyone invests inside. Elon Musk's rockets are not alone in defying gravity. So are AI valuations. Whatever makes AI impossible to avoid is also what has quietly disabled its pricing and this is missed by most folks. As the giants come to market, several index compilers have loosened their own rules so the shares qualify for inclusion sooner. The big low-cost tracker funds that shadow those benchmarks then have to buy, on schedule, regardless of the number on the screen. Credit markets are warping in parallel, with Amazon, Alphabet and Meta said to have roughly doubled their borrowings to around $300 billion in a matter of months, smudging the line that used to separate equity risk from debt risk. The OECD has reached for a coined term, the "equitification" of corporate debt. Bond desks that traditionally limit how much of any one issuer they will hold are now struggling to digest borrowing on this scale. Behind the plumbing sits one plain fact. A swelling share of the world's capital is being placed into these names by rule, not by anyone's considered judgement. This is also a reason for India's FII drought because at this stage we are not a vanguard economy. No JOMO only FOMO A market bid by rule is a peculiar thing. Strategists at Lombard Odier have made the point that when funds stop deciding what a share is actually worth, the task of weighing how concentrated a portfolio has become falls to the dwindling number of people still doing that work by hand. When you are structurally unable to be left out of something, you stop asking what it costs. Inclusion stands in for valuation. Buying on a schedule, at whatever price the tape prints, is the natural enemy of return. The investor setting the marginal price at the top is paying for a narrative, and lined up behind that narrative is a queue of money with no licence to do anything but follow. Return to those two SpaceX figures, and to the question any patient holder ought to put to himself. What is the $2.1 trillion actually a price on? Not the past year's sales, which would imply a multiple fit for a mental ward. Plainly not earnings, given the loss. Starlink, the satellite broadband arm, is the one that turned a profit at all, around $4.4 billion last year by the firm's account. The rest of the valuation is a wager on terminal value, on a future still over the horizon. Server farms in orbit carried up by a Starship that is running behind. A chip plant Musk has nicknamed the Terafab and has not yet been built. Settlements on Mars. What more? A rocket climbs only while its engines are lit, and the thrust under this market flows, the mechanical index demand and a capital-spending boom that keeps feeding itself. Fundamentals are the gravity. The thing no one can yet read is how much fuel is stacked behind the thrust, and by Katie Martin's own reckoning in the Financial Times, that is something the market tends to discover only once it is far too late to act on. Filing the whole episode under mania and leaving it there would be too easy. SpaceX has spent two decades doing things that careful people insisted could not be done.

Putting a privately built liquid-fuelled rocket into orbit, recovering boosters to fly them over and over, running the internet down from a constellation of more than ten thousand satellites after every dotcom-era version of that idea collapsed into bankruptcy. Brains on their own settle nothing in markets, yet Musk has produced more of them, and more luck, than his critics ever built into their models. The genuinely awkward thought is that this may be the most rational frenzy ever financed or the most ruinously costly one, and the market has stepped back from the very work that would tell the two apart. From where India's savers sit, none of this is a far-off American show. The same automatic-inclusion logic reaches them through international and feeder funds, through the global passive complex, and through the simple reality that equity sentiment everywhere now follows a small cluster of American mega-caps. A salaried earner dropping a few thousand rupees into a monthly SIP, and a household whose retirement pot quietly tracks an index it has never inspected, are steadily riding the exact same financial wave without once being consulted. Gravity, when it eventually does its work, will not pause to check passports. A bubble is the easy word for this, though it captures only half the truth. The ordinary kind drains away once somebody decides the price is mad; they simply walk. This one is far harder to step out of, pumped up by purchases that happen on autopilot, in a market that has handed the act of pricing to almost no one left to do it. AI investment in the West is now woven into economic life, too large to wave away and, for the time being, too relentlessly bought to interrogate. A great many people are already in their seats with the harness down. The engines are deafening. From inside the cabin, not one of them can make out the fuel gauge. Houston, we have liftoff! The policy designed to kneecap China may have handed the world cheaper AI. The US set out to win an AI race by controlling the hardware. Instead, it may have accelerated the moment when hardware stopped mattering. But what does it even mean to "win"?

Having the best model? No, because every advance gets reproduced by competitors almost immediately. DeepSeek proved that a $500 million "lead" could be replicated in weeks. Market valuation? Also no. The market reflects investor sentiments, not the technological realities. As investor Ray Dalio says in The All-In Podcast, betting on the company and buying its stock are not the same thing.

Being the first to build artificial general intelligence? Maybe - at least that is what the tech giants seem to be focusing on. But how durable is the first mover advantage? According to an article in the Harvard Business Review, "a rapid pace of market evolution makes long-term dominance unlikely". The authors suggest a 'quick in, quick out' approach for companies in spaces where both the market and the technology are developing rapidly. AI fits that description exactly.

Nvidia's CEO Jensen Huang contradicted himself recently after giving a Financial Times interview. Although he told the newspaper that "China is going to win the AI race", he quickly issued a statement afterwards saying "As I have long said, China is nanoseconds behind America in AI. It's vital that America wins by racing ahead and winning developers worldwide."

Heir Not-So-Apparent: The New Reality Of Indian Politics

There is a temptation to see the Trinamool Congress crisis as a Bengal story alone: Mamata Banerjee's defeat, Abhishek Banerjee's unpopularity with sections of the party, rebel MPs and MLAs testing the limits of loyalty, and a post-power scramble for survival. That would be a mistake. What is unfolding in the TMC is a cautionary tale for nearly every regional party in India attempting to compress legacy, authority, and future into the hands of a chosen heir. The latest twist, with a breakaway TMC faction moving towards the little-known Nationalist Citizens Party of India (NCPI), apparently based in West Bengal and active in Assam and Tripura, makes the crisis larger than a succession drama. It shows how rebellion in Indian politics is no longer merely a matter of walking out. It is increasingly a matter of finding the right procedural shelter, the right symbol, the right legislative arithmetic, and the right minor partner through which a larger realignment can be engineered. The Logic Of Legacy In Indian politics, a founder can build a party through struggle, charisma, ideology, caste mobilisation, regional pride, or personal sacrifice. But the heir rarely inherits all of that. He or she inherits the office, the surname, the access, and often the impatience. The rest has to be earned. This is where the trouble begins. Mamata Banerjee's authority was not inherited. It was accumulated through bruises. She took on the CPI(M) when the Left still looked unbeatable. She built the TMC from a rebel Congress platform into Bengal's principal political force. Her legitimacy came from confrontation, not conciliation. Abhishek Banerjee's rise, however, was read by many inside the party as a transfer of power from aunt to nephew, not as an organic political ascent. As long as the TMC controlled Bengal, such reservations could be contained. But once the state slipped away, what had been tolerated as "succession" began to be described as "nepotism". What had earlier been accepted as authority began to look like entitlement. This is not unique to Trinamool. It is the oldest problem of India's family-led regional parties: those who built the house do not always accept the child who is handed the keys. The Congress, though a national party, has not been immune to this logic, either. Its difference is scale: the Gandhis sit atop a far older and wider organisation, but the same question haunts the party - can inherited legitimacy substitute for organisational renewal, electoral proof, and the trust of leaders who have built their own political capital? In that sense, the crisis of succession is not only regional; regional parties merely experience it faster, more violently, and with fewer institutional cushions.

The Old Guard And Bloodlines In founder-led regional parties, the second-rung leadership often consists of people who spent decades alongside the original leader. They went to jail with them, fought elections with them, raised funds for them, managed caste blocs for them, took blows for them, negotiated with rivals for them, and sometimes saved the party from collapse. They can accept the founder's scolding because they remember the journey. They are rarely comfortable taking instructions from someone they remember entering politics as "the leader's son", "the leader's daughter", "the leader's nephew", or "the leader's chosen one". This is not always personal jealousy. Often, it is a dispute over political capital. The veteran believes they have earned their place through work. The heir believes they have inherited a mandate through blood and proximity. The collision is inevitable. Maharashtra has already shown this twice. In the Shiv Sena, Uddhav Thackeray inherited Bal Thackeray's party, but Eknath Shinde was able to walk away with a majority of MLAs and eventually the party name and symbol. The issue was not only ideology or alliance arithmetic. It was also the discomfort of a street-built party being run from a familial centre that many old hands felt had drifted away from the Sena's original instincts. The Nationalist Congress Party offered another lesson.

Vaibhav Sooryavanshi Needs To Be Told Cricket Is Not A Contact Sport

Dealing with prodigies is always a tricky affair. The younger they are, the easier it becomes to excuse things. A bad reaction gets called passion-using intense emotion to excuse poor communication or toxic actions. Poor behaviour gets passed off as immaturity. And when the talent is as obvious as Vaibhav Sooryavanshi, people often look away because the runs and the sixes just begin to feel bigger than everything else. But there is a danger of looking away. At 15, Vaibhav Sooryavanshi is moving through cricket at 10x speed, that very few have experienced. He has taken apart international bowlers in the IPL, won an Under-19 World Cup, and will soon be launched by India as the most dazzling, aspirational product in the market, as early as the Ireland tour. Which is why what happened in Dambulla on Monday cannot be shrugged off. It was a tied game between India A and Sri Lanka A, the kind that leaves everybody drained. There was confusion over light, uncertainty over whether the Super Over would even happen, and then Sri Lanka A held their nerve to win it. Make no mistake that even during the game there were skirmishes between India A and Sri Lanka A players. After losing a game, frustration was natural. But what came next wasn't. The cameras caught Sooryavanshi in an argument with Sri Lankan players once the game was done. Even while walking away, he kept turning back. Kept engaging. Kept pulling himself back into it. Then came the physical contact. I am not sure how much contact sports Sooryavanshi watches. But cricket isn't rugby. It isn't boxing. You can play hard, you can get in each other's faces, you can let the adrenaline spill over a little. But once the match is over, it is over. There is a fine word that the game has given us 'controlled aggression'. And this wasn't even the first time. In the Under-19 Asia Cup final against Pakistan, there was that needless "dust off my shoe" gesture after his dismissal. It felt immature then, copping criticisms from the opponent coach. Combined with what happened in Sri Lanka, it has begun to feel less like a one-off and more like a trait that the teenager has. Such traits, if left alone, become habits. I do not know Sooryavanshi too well to analyse his attitude, but his Dad reportedly has said that, like any youngster of his age, he struggles to process impulses, resulting in outbursts or aggression.

To channelise it, and channelise it well, is the real issue. Because when a kid is this talented, the people around him often become part of the problem. Everyone tells him how gifted he is. Everyone reminds him how special he is. Very few tell him when he is crossing the line. Every youngster needs that voice before a cheerleader. Indian sport has seen enough examples of what happens when talent outruns discipline. Prithvi Shaw was once spoken about in the same breath as Sachin Tendulkar. The bat speed, the confidence, the records at a young age - it all felt like the beginning of something huge. And maybe it still could be. But somewhere the road bent. Not because his ability disappeared. That was never the issue. It was everything around it. The habits, the distractions, the inability to keep the game at the centre. Talent is fragile that way. It can disappear in plain sight. That's why the comparisons between Sooryavanshi and Sachin need to end now. Not because Sooryavanshi lacks ability. But because comparing every gifted teenager to Tendulkar helps nobody. It puts a weight on the kid and creates a false script for his career. He is his own player. His own temperament. His own flaws. His own road. Look at Deepika Kumari. Few Indian athletes have had her natural ability. Former world No.1, absurdly gifted archer, almost effortless in the way she could shoot. And yet, no Olympic medal.

Iran Coach Fumes After Team Ordered To Leave US Right After World Cup Match

The coach of Iran's World Cup team said it was ordered to leave the U.S. and return to its training base in Mexico only a few hours after opening its politically charged tournament by playing to a 2-2 draw with New Zealand on Monday night. Coach Amir Ghalenoei didn't say who ordered the Iranians to leave earlier than planned. The team had expected to spend the night in California to maximize the normal recovery process after its opening game, only to be told after the match that everyone must immediately get on a plane for the 140-mile trip back to Tijuana. "They didn't even give us time to recover," Ghalenoei said through an interpreter. "After the game today, they said to us, 'You have to leave immediately.' It's very important for us to have time for recovery, (but) we are asked to get on a plane and return to our camp in Tijuana, and we are really troubled by that." The Iranians' World Cup cycle has been in upheaval since the U.S. and Israel began a war against Iran on Feb. 28. Iran ultimately decided to compete even after FIFA rejected its request to move its three group-stage matches out of the U.S. "We don't know why they are returning us, to be honest," Ghalenoei said. "I think it's very strange. It seems like others are doing the planning for us. The decision-making for us is being made elsewhere. We were supposed to come two nights before the game, and we were supposed to stay tonight to recover and return tomorrow at lunchtime. We have no idea why. "I think our team is perhaps the most oppressed in the World Cup." Captain Mehdi Taremi and Ghalenoei both decried the team's lack of many important staff members — including the president of Iran's football federation, coaching support personnel and media officials — who were denied visas by the U.S., amplifying the team's difficult preparations. "We have to leave Los Angeles right now, and it's not good for us," Taremi said about an hour after the match. "I think FIFA have to help us more than this. ... Everything is like a disaster, actually, for us." Iran opened its World Cup with a disappointing draw despite overcoming two deficits and getting the tying goal from Mohammad Mohebbi in the 64th minute in front of a solidly pro-Iranian crowd despite the presence of many Iranian American fans engaged in protest against Iran's government. Iran's next match is also at SoFi Stadium against Belgium on Sunday.

ICC Takes Action Against Pakistan Days After Women's T20 World Cup Loss To India

Pakistan have been fined five per cent of their match fee for maintaining a slow over-rate against India in their Group A match of the ICC Women's T20 World Cup played at Edgbaston in Birmingham on Sunday, the ICC announced on Tuesday. Trudy Anderson of the Emirates ICC International Panel of Match Referees imposed the sanction after Pakistan were ruled to be one over short of the target after time allowances were taken into consideration. In accordance with Article 2.22 of the ICC Code of Conduct for Players and Player Support Personnel, which relates to minimum over-rate offences, players are fined five per cent of their match fee for every over their side fails to bowl in the allotted time. Pakistan captain Fatima Sana pled guilty to the offence and accepted the proposed sanction, so there was no need for a formal hearing. On-field umpires Claire Polosak and Jacqueline Williams, third umpire Eloise Sheridan and fourth umpire Sue Redfern levelled the charge. Deepthi Sharma took five wickets and India bowled out Pakistan for 106 to successfully begin their latest quest for a first Women's Twenty20 World Cup title on Sunday. Sharma spun out the last three wickets in five balls as India defended 170 and won by 64 runs in front of a heavily partisan Edgbaston crowd, a sell-out 18,814, a record attendance for a World Cup group match. Seven months after Sharma starred in India's victory in the final of the ODI World Cup with five wickets and 58 runs, she started this T20 World Cup with another standout performance. Sharma took the first two wickets of Pakistan's chase, which actually started strong. But by the 10th over India was on top and Pakistan needed Muneeba Ali, dropped twice, to go big. But Sharma ran out Ali on 41 in the 11th over with a great direct hit on the run from backward point. With AP inputs When Pakistan captain Fatima Sana fell in the next over at 77.5, her team fell away, too. Sharma's late burst for 5-10 made her the highest wicket-taker in women's T20s with 166.

Maruti Suzuki hosts friendly matches with visually impaired cricketers as part of its employee volunteering CSR program

New Delhi, 16 June 2026: Maruti Suzuki India Limited ("Maruti Suzuki"), under its Employee Volunteering CSR Program – 'eParivartan', hosted a special cricket match with visually impaired players from the Cricket Association for the Blind, Delhi (CABD), an affiliate of the Cricket Association for the Blind in India (CABI). The unique initiative aims to enable social inclusion and cultivate empathy, respect, and teamwork. The match was held at the SportsCue Center for Excellence in Sector 70, Gurgaon, a venue specifically chosen for its fully accessible infrastructure for cricketers with visual impairment. As part of this event, a team of Maruti Suzuki employees played two 10-over matches with players from

CABD. Both matches were won by the team from CABD. The matches were played as per official blind cricket guidelines, including audible balls and adjusted rules for batting, bowling, and fielding. Discussing this initiative, Mr. Rahul Bharti, Senior Executive Officer, Corporate Affairs, Maruti Suzuki India Limited, said, "We thank the Cricket Association for the Blind, Delhi, for giving us this chance to bring both the teams together. Playing alongside these remarkable cricketers reminded our team of their incredible talent, determination, and spirit. There are vital lessons here to be learnt for all of us about the true spirit of sportsmanship and what it means to collaborate closely with diverse groups and persons with disabilities.

Jey Uso Drops Three-Word Reaction To The Bloodline's Collapse Years After Shocking Split

Three years have passed since one of WWE's most famous factions finally broke apart, but Jey Uso clearly hasn't forgotten the moment. The former World Champion recently shared a video looking back at the day he walked away from The Bloodline, adding a short three-word message that immediately reminded fans of one of the biggest turning points in the group's history. The post arrives on the anniversary of the split that changed the direction of several WWE stars. While The Bloodline may look very different today, Jey's latest message showed that the moment when he chose to leave the family remains a major chapter in his career. It was a decision that not only reshaped his own future but also altered the path of the entire faction. Why Jey Uso's message matters three years later Before becoming one of WWE's biggest singles stars, Jey Uso was there from the very beginning of The Bloodline story. His rivalry with Roman Reigns helped lay the foundation for what later became the dominant family faction in happened to Jey Uso after leaving The Bloodline. Walking away from the family ended up opening new doors for Jey. Following the breakup, he continued his singles run and eventually captured a World Championship. His journey later brought him back alongside his brother Jimmy Uso. The pair reunited as a tag team and even enjoyed a short reign as Tag Team Champions. Even though the brothers returned to teaming together, their connection to The Bloodline story never completely disappeared. The family may be together again, but new problems are showing. The Bloodline reunited earlier this year, although the group doesn't look the same anymore.

Cleveland Browns Owner Jimmy Haslam Eyes $100 Million Tax Break For $2.6 Billion Stadium Project

Cleveland Browns owner Jimmy Haslam is backing a proposal that could save the franchise roughly $100 million in taxes as work continues on plans for a new $2.6 billion domed stadium in Brook Park, Ohio. According to reporting by Cleveland.com, the Browns want Brook Park to create a special community authority that would own the planned stadium and lease it back to the team. If approved, the arrangement would make the venue publicly owned, allowing construction materials to qualify for certain sales tax exemptions. The potential savings could reduce costs on one of the NFL's most ambitious stadium projects. Cleveland.com estimates the tax exemptions could save around $100 million on a stadium currently budgeted at $2.6 billion. How the Proposal Would Work

Brook Park Mayor Edward Orcutt has introduced legislation to create the Brook Park New Community Authority, which would oversee parts of the development surrounding the stadium. Under the proposal, the City of Brook Park would appoint five members to the authority, while Haslam Sports Group would appoint four. The authority would also manage revenue streams connected to the wider project. The proposal is expected to be discussed by the City Council this week, with a public hearing scheduled for July 15. Browns Stadium Project Targets 2029 Opening The planned stadium is expected to open in time for the 2029 NFL season and will replace the Browns' current home. Funding for the project combines private and public investment.

Lionel Messi's Argentina Chase Brazil's 64-Year-Old Record In FIFA World Cup 2026

Argentina enter the FIFA World Cup 2026 as defending champions. The side defeated France in a closely-fought final of the last edition to clinch their third title, while also ending a 36-year trophy drought. La Albiceleste bagged the glory for the first time in 1978, repeated it in 1986 and then waited for a long time to bring the trophy home again. While Argentina arrive in North America as one of the favourites to win the title, a huge test awaits them as none of the teams has managed to successfully defend the World Cup title since Brazil achieved it in 1962. Football great Lionel Messi remains the centre of attraction in the Argentina squad. He has won every major team and individual honour in the sport. He continues to play an influential role in the team despite ageing. In all likelihood, expect this to be the last dance for the player who has won Ballon d'Or a record eight times. Messi also holds the record with six European Golden Boot awards and two-time winner of the World Cup Golden Ball. Are Argentina serious contenders for the title? Argentina feature a more balanced and mature squad that helped them win the title in the last edition. 17 out of the 26 players that Lionel Scaloni has picked for the event in North America are the ones who won the title in Qatar last year. La Albiceleste have an experienced core that is adept at handling pressure, surviving difficult moments and swinging the momentum their way to produce the desired result.

HERO VISHAL MEETS TAMILNADU CHIEF MINISTER JOSEPH VIJAY

Dearest darling CM Vijay. The word "darling" hasn't changed which I used to call u for the last so many years since i knew u from Loyola college. It all started when I got to know you as a budding star and then seeing u rise up the ladder as the SUPERSTAR facing all odds and criticism and brushing it away with ya silence and success and then moving on to become the Hon Chief Minister of Tamil Nadu. Today, the posting and designation has changed but the person u r hasn't. And it was an absolute delight to meet you and feel the same warmth. From Kalaingar Ayya to Jayalalitha Amma to Stalin uncle to my very own Udhaya it was lovely to say darling to the CM of our state. The fanboy moment in me will always remain. God bless u and thank u for accepting the gesture of not accepting the mandatory bouquet and shawl and instead I used the money to educate three deserving underprivileged girl children in TN on your behalf and in your name. They will be proud and will remember you forever. My sincere thanks once again. All the best CM sir. Wishing you only positivity and growth and looking forward to the best of Tamil Nadu in your tenure.

'Maa Inti Bangaaram' will Become a Big Hit for sure: Producer D. Suresh Babu Pre-Release celebrations"

Maa Inti Bangaaram', produced jointly by Samantha, Raj Nidimoru, and Himank Duvuru under the Tralala Pictures banner, is all set for release on June 19. Directed by Nandini Reddy, the film features Samantha in the lead role. The teaser and trailer have already generated significant buzz among audiences. As part of the promotional campaign, the makers organized a grand pre-release celebration on Monday. Prominent guests including producer D. Suresh Babu, producer Swapna Dutt, producer Janhvi Narang, and director Deva Katta attended the event. Speaking at the event, producer D. Suresh Babu said, "I hope Samantha achieves another major success with 'Maa Inti Bangaaram.' Samantha and Nandini previously delivered a memorable success with 'Oh! Baby,' and I wish this film becomes an even bigger hit. Raj and Himank have worked extremely hard on this project. The film releases on June 19, and I request everyone to watch and support it." Samantha said, "I want to ensure that my fans get to see at least two films from me every year. We have made a wonderful film, and I thoroughly enjoyed being a part of it as an actor. Now, as a producer, I understand the challenges and responsibilities involved. Our team hasn't slept properly over the last week because everyone has been working tirelessly.

Every department has poured their heart and soul into this film. Raj & DK and Nandini Reddy have been tremendous pillars of support. Raj & DK are among the most hardworking people I know. I thank all the guests who came to support us. I will always remain grateful to my fans for continuing to shower me with love. 'Maa Inti Bangaaram,' releasing on June 19, is a film that will entertain and connect with everyone." Producer Raj Nidimoru said, "I thank Suresh garu, Swapna, and Janhvi for being here. The Telugu film industry is filled with immense passion and love. Vasanth and Dharmendra have been the pillars behind 'Maa Inti Bangaaram.' Through this journey, we have had the opportunity to work with several talented artists and technicians. Working with Nandini garu was a wonderful experience. While writing the film was one challenge, Samantha's performance elevated it to another level. She is an exceptional actress. We have worked on many Hindi projects, but the kind of excitement and response this film is receiving is something I have rarely witnessed. I hope everyone watches it on the very first day." Director Nandini Reddy said, "Many of us have been working around the clock for the last few days to bring this film to audiences. This has been possible only because of an incredible team that never stopped giving their best. One of the greatest strengths I have in this industry is the friendships I've built over the years. Working with Raj was extremely easy and enjoyable. Collaborating as a team helped us learn a lot from one another. I believe I have delivered the best possible version of the film, just as I promised. Himank carried this project on his shoulders. I also hope I have lived up to the trust Samantha placed in me. Audiences will get to see a version of Samantha unlike ever before, ten times more powerful than what they have seen so far." Producer Janhvi Narang said, "I'm delighted to be part of this event. I have always admired Nandini Reddy's filmmaking style. This film feels like it was tailor-made for Samantha. Congratulations to the entire team." Producer Swapna Dutt said, "The trailer of 'Maa Inti Bangaaram' looks fantastic. Nandini Reddy is my first best friend, and Raj is also one of my earliest friends in the industry. I strongly believe this film is going to be a blockbuster. We are also re-entering film distribution through this project." Mythri Movie Makers producer Y. Ravi Shankar said, "There is a special positive vibration in the title 'Maa Inti Bangaaram' itself. Samantha is truly like gold to all of us. Every film she has done with our banner has been a blockbuster, which is why she has become our own 'Maa Inti Bangaram.' The action sequences featuring Samantha in a saree are stunning. I was genuinely surprised after watching the teaser and trailer. The film is expected to open big, and I hope it becomes a massive success." Producer Himank Duvuru said, "The moment Raj narrated the story and revealed the title, I could already visualize the outcome. Raj, Samantha, and I initially worked on the project together, and later Vasanth, Nandini, and many others joined the journey. I'm confident audiences will thoroughly enjoy the film when it releases on June 19." Director DK said, "We have previously worked with Samantha on two series projects, and every single time she has given her absolute best. She has done the same for this film as well. After watching the trailer, even I became excited to see the final product. I am eagerly waiting to watch the film with audiences. This is the first project Raj has done without me being directly involved, and I sincerely wish the film tremendous success."

Nagabandham is visually mesmerizing. It offers a great theatrical and divine experience to the audience: DoP S. Soundararajan Virat Karna is the hero of the epic adventure thriller 'Nagabandham - The Secret Treasure' directed by Abhishek Nama. Kishore Annapureddy and Nishitha Nagi Reddy have produced this film on a huge budget under the banner of Nick Studios. Nabha Natesh, Aishwarya Menen, Jagapathi Babu, Mahesh Manjrekar, Rishabh Sawhney and other key roles are playing in this film. The promotional content that has already been released has created a sensation across the country. The film will be released worldwide on July 3. On this occasion, DOP S. Soundararajan shared the features of the film in a press conference. How did you get involved in the Nagabandham project?

"I had earlier done the film Devil with Abhishek garu. Since then, I have a very good relationship with him. Abhishek garu started this story with a very big vision. I got involved in this project right from the script stage. The idea of 'Nagabandham' excited all of us a lot. First, we locked the story. Then we planned how grand and engaging it should be visually.

What part of the work did you find challenging? -I have done fantasy films before. I have experience in glamorizing and elevating the visuals. But this film is very special. This film was made in a very natural style. I shot each scene with natural lighting to immerse myself in the story. I did not over-glamorize or create unnecessary drama anywhere. It's a film with a very big budget and VFX. What kind of challenge did you find as a DOP? -We use visual effects in two ways. One is for grandeur, the other is to make it seem real. But making that visualization look natural is a big task. It is practically not possible to take a lot of people and shoot in the Himalayas. Visual effects are useful in such a situation. But making them look natural and real is a very difficult task. All the VFX in this film are also very natural and real.

The visuals in this film all look very real. What kind of groundwork did you do? -The director, I and the art director visited many temples together. We visited the Sri Anantha Padmanabhaswamy Temple in Thiruvananthapuram. We photographed every detail there. Even though the film is based on the same temple, we named it "Srirangapuram". We decided on the name to combine the splendor of Srirangam and Thiruvananthapuram. We did a lot of research on the topics related to that temple. Also, art director Ashok created amazing sets. If you step into the Anantha Padmanabhaswamy Temple set, you will feel like you have actually entered a temple. Every set was designed so wonderfully. I have done big films before. But I have never done a film with such a huge set. Lighting such a large set and shooting at high speed is very challenging work. The shooting was done on a huge scale.
