5 dead, 20 hospitalised after suspected spurious liquor consumption

Bhavnagar, Aug 20: Five people have died and 20 others are undergoing treatment after allegedly consuming spurious liquor in Kharkhadi village of Ghogha taluka in Gujarat's Bhavnagar district, triggering a major police investigation. Following the incident, a team of the State Monitoring Cell (SMC) has reached Bhavnagar on the directions of Gujarat Deputy Chief Minister. A Forensic Science Laboratory (FSL) team has also begun collecting evidence from the suspected site where the liquor was allegedly adulterated.

ED searches nine Kozhikode premises over alleged CMRL money trail

Kozhikode: The Directorate of Enforcement (ED), Kochi Zone, conducted searches at nine premises in Kozhikode on August 18 in connection with an alleged corporate fraud and money laundering case involving Cochin Minerals and Rutile Limited (CMRL). The searches were carried out under the Prevention of Money Laundering Act (PMLA), 2002. According to the ED, the investigation stems from a probe by the Serious Fraud Investigation Office (SFIO) into alleged corporate fraud and bribe payments linked to CMRL. The ED said its earlier investigation had indicated that proceeds of crime were allegedly generated under the management of CMRL, led by SN Sasidharan Kartha, and that payments were made to various individuals.

4 killed, 7 injured in truck collision inside Hanogi Tunnel

Mandi (TSIT): Four people were killed and seven others injured after two trucks collided head-on inside the Hanogi Tunnel on the Chandigarh-Manali National Highway in Himachal Pradesh on Thursday morning. The accident occurred at around 7:45 am, triggering panic in the area. The impact of the collision was severe, leaving four people dead, while seven others sustained injuries.

Congress shares historical records to counter BJP's offensive on Vande Mataram

New Delhi (TSIT)

The Congress on Thursday reached into the archives of the freedom movement to counter Prime Minister Narendra Modi and the BJP in the renewed Vande Mataram row. The party has released 12 historical letters, notes and resolutions involving Mahatma Gandhi, Jawaharlal Nehru, Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel, Subhas Chandra Bose and Rabindranath Tagore to defend the party's decision to adhere to its 1937 position on the national song. Congress MP Jairam Ramesh released the compilation a day after the Congress Working Committee (CWC) decided that the party would follow the position arrived at by its leadership in 1937 and sing the first two stanzas of Vande Mataram at official party programmes.

"To clear up all the misinformation that the PM and his acolytes have been spreading, this is a compilation of 12 letters and notes penned by the many founding fathers of the Indian Republic, documenting their thoughts on Vande Mataram," Ramesh said. The documents, dating from September 1937 to July 1939, record exchanges involving Gandhi, Nehru, Patel, Rajendra Prasad, Bose, Tagore, C Rajagopalachari, J B Kripalani and Govind Ballabh Pant at a time when the national movement was debating the place and manner in which Vande Mataram should be sung. At the centre of the compilation is the CWC resolution adopted in Kolkata on October 28, 1937, which dealt with the use of the song amid concerns over portions of its original text.

The historical trail begins with Rajendra Prasad's September 28, 1937, letter to Patel and includes Bose's correspondence with Tagore and Nehru in October that year. Tagore's October 19 response to Bose and his October 26 letter to Nehru also form part of the record. The compilation further contains correspondence from January 1939 involving Kripalani, Rajagopalachari, Patel, Govind Ballabh Pant and Nehru, besides a note by Gandhi. It concludes with Gandhi's note published in Harijan on July 1, 1939. The release comes amid a political contest between the Congress and BJP over Vande Mataram, with the Congress accusing the ruling party of distorting decisions taken by leaders of the freedom movement.

The CWC on Wednesday said there was no ambiguity in the party's position and resolved to abide by the decision taken by its leadership in 1937. The Congress maintains that the first two stanzas, centred on praise of the motherland, were accepted after deliberations involving some of the foremost leaders of the national movement. Written by Bankim Chandra Chattopadhyay and later incorporated into 'Anandmath', Vande Mataram became a rallying cry during the freedom struggle. The debate over its use, however, pre-dates Independence, with concerns then raised over the religious imagery contained in the later portions of the original composition. After Independence, Vande Mataram was accorded the status of the national song, while Jana Gana Mana became the national anthem.

Shivakumar seeks freeze on Lok Sabha seats

MAHABALIPURAM: Karnataka Chief Minister D K Shivakumar on Thursday urged the Southern Zonal Council to adopt a resolution seeking to retain the Lok Sabha's existing 543 seats for the next 25 years and use the 1971 Census as the basis for delimitation.

Addressing the 31st meeting of the Southern Zonal Council, Shivakumar said southern states should not be politically disadvantaged for successfully implementing population-control measures. He said the South's economic contribution and achievements in population stabilisation must be matched by adequate political representation. "We welcome the assurance that no southern state will lose seats. But representation is not only about numbers. It is about weight and voice," he said.

Shivakumar called for the 1971 population basis to be honoured during delimitation and urged the Union government to maintain the existing strength of 543 Lok Sabha seats. He also proposed that women's reservation be accommodated within the existing number of seats rather than waiting for a fresh delimitation exercise.

"Women have waited long enough for their rightful representation," he said, stressing that their reservation should not be delayed.

The Chief Minister appealed to other southern Chief Ministers to support the proposal, saying protection of the region's political voice was essential to maintaining fairness in India's federal structure. He also linked political representation with equitable distribution of resources.

Omar Abdullah calls US-Pakistan row a bilateral matter

SRINAGAR (TSIT): Jammu and Kashmir Chief Minister Omar Abdullah on Thursday said the dispute between the United States and Pakistan over remarks by US Ambassador to India Sergio

Gor was a matter between the two countries. Abdullah was responding to Pakistan's decision to summon the US envoy in Islamabad and lodge a formal protest over Gor's remarks during his recent visit to Jammu and Kashmir. Gor had described Kashmir as an important part of India and indicated that the United States would reconsider its travel advisories concerning the region. "Whatever the US ambassador said, he said. Now it is between the two countries," Abdullah said.

CM Vijay urges Centre, neighbouring States to follow SC verdict on Cauvery

The Supreme Court on August 17 had directed the Karnataka government to comply with the Cauvery Water Management Authority's (CWMA) directions on releasing water to Tamil Nadu and sought a status report on the releases.

CHENNAI (TSIT):

Tamil Nadu Chief Minister Vijay on Thursday urged the Centre and neighbouring States to implement the Supreme Court's verdict on the Cauvery water dispute and ensure that decisions of the Cauvery Water Management Authority are followed.

Addressing the 31st Southern Zonal Council meeting chaired by Union Home Minister Amit Shah at Kovalam near Mamallapuram, Vijay said Tamil Nadu's river-water rights must be protected and the rights of downstream States should be safeguarded, according to a Daily Thanthi report. The Supreme Court on August 17 had directed the Karnataka government to comply with the Cauvery Water Management Authority's (CWMA) directions on releasing water to Tamil Nadu and sought a status report on the releases. The Cauvery Water Regulation Committee (CWRC) had directed Karnataka to release 12,000 cusecs of water daily to Tamil Nadu for 15 days from August 12. The CWMA subsequently upheld the decision.

Vijay seeks NEET exemption, fair share of funds. Vijay also reiterated Tamil Nadu's demand for exemption from the National Eligibility-cum-Entrance Test (NEET), saying the examination affects poor and rural students seeking admission to medical courses.

Massive search operation by Navy, Coast Guard for seven missing Andhra fishermen Amaravati (TSIT) : A massive search operation was underway in the Bay of Bengal for seven fishermen from Andhra Pradesh who had set out to sea earlier this month, officials said on Thursday. Agriculture Minister Kinjarapu Atchannaidu said the search operation involves two Dornier aircraft, a helicopter, and seven boats of the Navy and the Coast Guard. He said Navy boats were deployed for extensive search from Visakhapatnam towards Paradip. A Navy vessel is also searching towards the port area. Dornier aircraft from Visakhapatnam, Kolkata, and Chennai were engaged in the search operation.

CJP protests: Former SC judge R Subhash Reddy to head 5-member panel to probe alleged police excesses

Other members include former Punjab and Haryana HC Chief Justice Ravi Shankar Jha, former Delhi HC Judge Shalinder Kaur, former CBI Director Rishi Shukla and ex-Meghalaya DGP L.R. Bishnoi

New Delhi (TSIT) The Supreme Court has set up a five-member High-Powered Enquiry Committee (HPEC) headed by former top court judge Justice R. Subhash Reddy to look into alleged police excesses against student protesters and violence against police personnel during the CJP protests here last month.

The other members of the panel are former Punjab and Haryana High Court Chief Justice Ravi Shankar Jha, former Delhi High Court Judge Shalinder Kaur, former CBI director Rishi Kumar Shukla and ex-Meghalaya DGP L R Bishnoi.

An order to this effect passed by a Bench of Chief Justice of India Surya Kant, Justice Joyymalya Bagchi and Justice V Mohana passed on August 18 was made public by the top court on Thursday. The committee will examine use of excessive force and violence against protesters by the police, including the deployment of pellet guns, as well as the alleged use of force and violence by protesters against police officials and other security personnel and damage caused to public and private property. The points of reference also included "the desirability of banning the use of metallic kinetic projectiles or pellets fired from pump-action rifles or projectile-action guns, having regard to the grave and, at times, irreversible bodily harm occasioned by their deployment against protesters" and "the necessity of ensuring that police and security personnel wear proper uniforms and visible nameplates at the time of effecting arrests or using force during crowd-control operations, so as to secure accountability and enable the identification of individual officers."

The panel will also examine the allegations pertaining to the monitoring and surveillance of protesters by police personnel, and the extent to which such measures, if undertaken, were consistent with the protesters' constitutional rights to privacy and free assembly as also the provision of medical and other requisite support, including award of compensation, to victims of alleged police abuse, including the manner and adequacy of such support extended thus far. The injuries sustained by the police forces in the course of discharging their duties, as well as the consequent mental and emotional trauma borne by their kith and kin merits due recognition and consideration on a par with the grievances raised by the Petitioners shall also be examined. The order came on petitions seeking an impartial probe into the alleged disproportionate use of police force against protesters at Jantar Mantar and other locations across India.

Karnataka submits revised Mekedatu dam DPR; 8.90 lakh trees to be felled for project

Karnataka has proposed constructing a 67-TMC dam across the River Cauvery at Mekedatu, a move that has been strongly opposed by the Tamil Nadu government.

CHENNAI: The Karnataka government has submitted a revised Detailed Project Report (DPR) for the proposed Mekedatu dam to the Central Government, with the report stating that around 8.90 lakh trees would be felled for the project, according to a Daily Thanthi report.

Karnataka has proposed constructing a 67-TMC dam across the River Cauvery at Mekedatu, a move that has been strongly opposed by the Tamil Nadu government.

The revised DPR reportedly contains details of the forest land that would be submerged, the number of trees that would be affected and the compensatory measures proposed by the Karnataka government.

The Karnataka government had first submitted the DPR for the Mekedatu project to the Central government around five years ago. The project was then estimated to cost Rs 9,000 crore and was proposed to meet Bengaluru's drinking water requirements and generate 400 MW of electricity.

However, the Central government returned the earlier DPR citing technical issues and asked Karnataka to submit a revised report. Against this backdrop, the Karnataka government has now resubmitted the revised DPR.

The proposed project involves constructing a dam with a storage capacity of 67 TMC. The report states that around 4.75 TMC of water from the project would be utilised to meet Bengaluru's drinking water requirements. 8.90 lakh trees to be felled, 12,500 acres of forest land to be submerged under Mekedatu project. According to the revised DPR, around 12,500 acres of forest land would be submerged once the Mekedatu project is implemented. As a compensatory measure, around 20,000 acres of land in areas including Dakshina Kannada and Shivamogga have reportedly been identified for allocation to the Forest Department.

The project is also expected to have a significant impact on the forest cover in the Mekedatu region. Around 8.90 lakh trees are proposed to be felled as part of the project. Of these, around seven lakh are classified as small trees, while around one lakh are categorised as large trees. The remaining trees are also expected to be affected by the project and associated construction activities.

The complete details contained in the revised DPR have not yet been made public. Rs 9,000 crore Mekedatu project proposed to meet Bengaluru's drinking water needs and generate 400 MW. The Mekedatu project was originally proposed with an estimated cost of Rs 9,000 crore. Karnataka has maintained that the project would primarily help meet the drinking water requirements of Bengaluru while also generating 400 MW of electricity.

The proposed dam across the River Cauvery has, however, remained a contentious issue between Karnataka and Tamil Nadu. The Tamil Nadu government has consistently opposed the project, citing concerns over its impact on the State's share of Cauvery water.

Sameera Group announces Rs 300 cr realty projects in Tamil Nadu

CHENNAI: The Chennai-based realty player Sameera Group has announced its "10 Projects in 10 Days across 10 Districts" programme, a Rs 300 crore initiative in TN. The company will launch the 10 residential projects across the State between August 23 and September 1, 2026, comprising a mix of plotted developments and villas.

CM Vijay urges Centre, neighbouring States to follow SC verdict on Cauvery. The latest initiative will mark a significant expansion of Sameera Group's footprint across key growth markets in TN.

The new projects will come up across Tiruchy, Madurai, Tirunelveli, Vellore, Ranipet, Kanchipuram, Chennai, Krishnagiri, Tiruvannamalai and Chengalpattu.

Each project is planned across approximately 10 acres, with around 200 units and plot sizes beginning from approximately 800 sqft. Jayakumar Murugesan, MD, Sameera Groups, said, "We are simultaneously expanding into several important growth markets across TN. This initiative reflects both the scale of our ambition and the execution capability we have built over more than four decades in the real estate sector."

M Sandeep Kumar, MD, Sameera Groups, said, "These launches have been planned to address the growing demand for organised residential developments across emerging markets in TN. The projects will offer a mix of plotted developments and villas, supported by gated environments, parks and other community infrastructure. Our focus is to create well-planned developments that can offer customers both a quality living environment and long-term value."

There are bigger problems than MLAs not having car, says DMK

CHENNAI: The principal opposition party, the DMK, on Wednesday questioned the urgency of Chief Minister C Joseph Vijay's announcement of official vehicles for the MLAs. Wondering what prompted the chief minister to make such a decision, DMK organising secretary RS Bharathi said there were so many issues affecting the people that merited immediate attention. "The people are suffering, and there are many burning issues afflicting the state. What is the urgency for this? The government could have waited," Bharathi told PTI, reacting to Vijay's announcement in the Assembly today. When pointed out that some of the first-time MLAs from the ruling TVK don't own a car, he asked, "Then why not the party fund them or ensure a loan to buy the vehicle?" Another DMK leader, Dr Ezhilan, criticised the decision, pointing out that many legislators are wealthy as per their election affidavits. Spending hugely on providing them vehicles and allowances contradicted the state government's claim of a financial crisis or empty coffers, he told reporters here.

Raise Cauvery issue at Shah meet, urges Premallatha

CHENNAI: DMDC chief Premallatha Vijayakant on Wednesday urged Chief Minister Vijay to firmly take up the Cauvery water dispute at the Southern Chief Ministers' Conference in Chennai today. She said CM Vijay must secure the state's rightful share for tail-end farmers facing crop distress. We have only been receiving surplus water from the Cauvery until now. Only when that rightful share of water arrives and flows to the tail-end areas will farmers benefit today. Considering all this, our chief minister must urge this with (Karnataka CM) DK Shivakumar and our Home Minister Amit Shah to secure our rightful water share in the Cauvery," Premallatha added. She further demanded that the state leadership take up the matter regarding the recent killing of three Tamil youths in Karnataka forests.

AIADMK members stage walk-out as Speaker postpones discussion

CHENNAI: The opposition AIADMK members staged a walkout from the Tamil Nadu Assembly on Wednesday after Speaker JCD Prabhakar ruled that an issue the party wanted to raise would be taken up on Thursday.

As Chief Minister C Joseph Vijay was making a slew of announcements, the House was suddenly disrupted when AIADMK leader Edappadi K Palaniswami asked the Speaker to take up an issue for which his party had given a notice.

The Speaker repeatedly appealed for order, urging the members to adhere to established democratic procedures. He reassured that the urgent issues submitted by members had already been forwarded to the government for necessary action and would be formally addressed the following morning. Emphasising the Assembly's heavy legislative schedule for the day, which included discussions on crucial grants for three government departments, the Speaker insisted on maintaining decorum and requested members to resume their seats. However, unsatisfied with Prabhakar's decision, the AIADMK members staged a walkout. Later, speaking to reporters outside the Assembly complex, Palaniswami launched a sharp attack on the ruling TVK government over its response to a recent tragedy involving a fisherman from Palaniswami noted that his party has been insisting on discussions about the TN fisherman shot dead by Iranian pirates but has not received a concrete response Mayiladuthurai.

Massive fire at paper mill in Tirunelveli district guts lakhs worth goods

CHENNAI: Goods worth several lakhs of rupees were destroyed in a massive fire that broke out at a private paper mill in Vadukampatti near Kallur in Tirunelveli district on Wednesday (August 19).

According to the Daily Thanthi report, firefighting operations continued for the second day on Thursday (August 20) as the blaze could not be brought under control.

On Wednesday afternoon, old paper bundles stacked in one part of the mill suddenly caught fire amid scorching heat. Strong winds at the time caused the fire to spread rapidly across the premises. More than 50 firefighters in six fire engines led by District Fire Officer Bhanupriya, rushed to the spot after being alerted. Firefighting operations continued through the night, but the blaze remained uncontrolled. Around 25,000 tonnes of old paper bales worth several lakhs of rupees were destroyed in the fire.

Study finds many continue Ozempic for weight loss despite side effects

New Delhi: GLP-1 receptor agonists, originally developed for type 2 diabetes, are now witnessing soaring demand for weight management, with drugs like Ozempic gaining widespread popularity, particularly on social media. Ozempic is the brand name for semaglutide, a GLP-1 receptor agonist that mimics the hormone glucagon-like peptide-1 (GLP-1), which regulates blood sugar, insulin secretion and appetite. While the drug continues to be prescribed for diabetes, its off-label use for weight loss has surged globally.

A recent study published in the Journal of Medical Internet Research found that many users are willing to continue using Ozempic despite experiencing unpleasant side effects, primarily because of the weight loss benefits. Instead of conducting a traditional clinical trial, researchers used "infoveillance," analysing 60 anonymous public reviews from the website Drugs.com to understand real-world patient experiences with Ozempic for weight loss. The study found that perceived effectiveness was the main factor driving satisfaction and continuation of treatment. Patients who reported significant weight loss or improvements in appetite and food cravings were more inclined to tolerate side effects.

Around 67 per cent of users reported a significant drop in appetite or food cravings. Many described a reduced desire for sugary and greasy foods, allowing them to eat less without feeling deprived. Gastrointestinal issues such as nausea and vomiting were the most commonly reported side effects, though their severity varied. Importantly, these side effects did not significantly impact overall satisfaction or decisions to continue treatment in most cases. However, individuals who experienced minimal weight loss or non-gastrointestinal side effects were more likely to discontinue the medication. Common side effects associated with Ozempic include nausea, vomiting, diarrhoea, abdominal pain, constipation and fatigue. Less common but more serious side effects may include pancreatitis, kidney problems, allergic reactions and gallbladder issues. Ozempic works in three primary ways. It stimulates the pancreas to release insulin when blood sugar levels are high, helping to control post-meal glucose spikes. It slows gastric emptying, which prolongs the feeling of fullness and reduces blood sugar fluctuations. It also acts on appetite-regulating centres in the brain to reduce hunger and cravings. Health experts emphasise that individuals prescribed GLP-1 medications for diabetes should strictly follow medical advice. For those considering such medications solely for weight loss, they should be used as part of a broader strategy that includes balanced nutrition, regular physical activity and sustainable lifestyle changes. While medications like Ozempic can aid weight reduction, experts caution that they should not be viewed as a standalone solution. Consulting a qualified healthcare professional before starting any weight loss medication remains essential to ensure safety and suitability.

India's UPI Miracle Has Created A Difficult, Rs 20,000-Crore Question

Parliament has reopened a question that the country thought was settled: should UPI ever charge? On August 6, the Lok Sabha passed the Taxation and Other Laws (Amendment) Bill, 2026, by a voice vote, and on August 10, the Rajya Sabha, since this is a Money Bill, returned it after discussion, completing the process. It now goes to the President for assent. The change reads small on paper and large in effect. It amends Section 10A of the Payment and Settlement Systems Act, 2007, which until now shielded UPI and RuPay debit from any charge because they were prescribed under the Income-Tax Act. That automatic shield is gone. From here, whether a payment mode stays free depends on what the government chooses to notify. The case for charging begins, reasonably enough, with a bill nobody disputes. Running the world's largest real-time payment network is not free. Every tap that looks instant sets off authorisation, settlement, reconciliation, fraud screening, dispute handling, cloud capacity, and round-the-clock monitoring, and all of it costs money. One estimate puts the yearly cost of running UPI and RuPay debit infrastructure as high as ₹20,000 crore. As volumes keep climbing - July 2026 alone saw 2,366 crore transactions worth ₹29.9 lakh crore - that bill only grows. So the question the new law opens is fair: if security and a coming wave of AI need real investment, must UPI finally charge? Right Problems, Wrong Solutions The costs behind all this are not imaginary. The National Payments Corporation of India (NPCI) chief has said AI will define UPI's next chapter, taking it from about 750 million daily transactions towards a billion, onboarding half a billion more users, and hunting the mule accounts that already run into lakhs of cases a year. Voice onboarding in many languages, models trained on financial data, and real-time fraud engines are not cheap, and all of it needs steady funding. The RBI Governor has put the question plainly: who, in the end, pays for the plumbing? It helps to recall how that plumbing was paid for, because "free" never meant "unfunded". UPI was built and run by NPCI as public infrastructure, not a profit centre, and its scaling and security were financed the way a public good is: from the exchequer. The government reimbursed banks through an incentive scheme, ₹1,389 crore in 2021-22 and a peak of ₹3,631 crore in 2023-24, paying 0.15% on low-value merchant payments. That model carried UPI from a standing start in 2016 to accounting for nearly half of all real-time payments on the planet. The strain is that this public funding has thinned even as the network has swelled. The Standing Committee on Finance found that incentive payouts of ₹8,730 crore over four years to 2024-25 covered barely 11% of the industry's cost. The 2026-27 budget set aside ₹2,000 crore, less than before, even as daily volumes touch record highs. So banks and processors now carry a rising share of a growing bill, and want durable revenue, not a subsidy that shrinks each year. Where It Hurts The Most And yet, the leap from "the costs are real" to "therefore charge each transaction" skips the harder question of design. Most of what UPI spends on is fixed, infrastructural cost, not something that rises neatly with each ₹40 payment to a vegetable seller. A per-transaction fee is a blunt tool for a largely fixed bill. Worse, it lands where it does the most damage: at the point of acceptance, on the smallest sellers, whose whole reason to accept digital money was that it cost nothing.

Manmohan Singh, Bachchans, And Other Secrets Of 10 Janpath: The Sonia Gandhi Story

Political memoirs are often written twice: first by memory, then by self-preservation. The best ones resist the temptation of the second. In this context, Sonia Gandhi's forthcoming memoir, titled Belonging: A Journey of Love and to be published by Alfred A. Knopf on November 10, comes with an unusual burden of expectation. At 544 pages, the memoir promises to travel from her childhood in post-war Italy and her meeting with Rajiv Gandhi in Cambridge to life inside India's first political family, the assassinations of Indira and Rajiv Gandhi, her reluctant entry into politics, and her years at the helm of the Congress. Sonia herself says she wants to reach the motivations, actions, and "very human failings" of a family about which much has been written. Few Indian politicians have wielded so much influence while revealing so little of themselves. Sonia has been the Congress president, Leader of the Opposition, UPA chairperson, National Advisory Council chairperson, and, for ten years, the political pole around which a coalition government revolved. Yet, we know surprisingly little about how she understood her own power. In the mouths and pens of others, Sonia Gandhi's story is usually compressed into one convenient word: dynasty. But dynasty alone does not explain it. She did not grow up inside the Congress, inherit its political vocabulary, or possess unquestioned legitimacy within it. She entered that world through Rajiv Gandhi and, after losing him, had to negotiate it herself. Over the years, she had to fight, win, cajole, reconcile, absorb rebellion, and repeatedly act as matriarch to a party whose veterans were often older, more experienced, and more rooted in politics than she was. Belonging has an opportunity to tell us how she did it. Before Politics Came Family The early chapters may prove among the most revealing precisely because Sonia Gandhi was not born into politics. Politics came looking for her. The geographical arc itself is remarkable: from Orbassano, the comune near Turin where she grew up, to Cambridge; from marriage into the Nehru-Gandhi household to 1 Safdarjung Road, 10 Janpath, and eventually the very centre of Indian power. But the more interesting journey is psychological. At what point did a woman who fiercely guarded her private life begin to regard stewardship of the Congress almost as a familial obligation? She arrived in India as Sonia Maino, married Rajiv in 1968, and entered a household where the private and the political were almost impossible to separate. The publisher's account makes clear that Sanjay Gandhi's death in the 1980 plane crash - and Rajiv's subsequent movement towards politics - will be central to the story. Sonia had herself written of resisting Rajiv's entry with extraordinary intensity, saying she had "fought like a tigress" for their family and their freedom. But Belonging can take us further. What exactly were Sonia's relations with Sanjay? How did she view his enormous influence over Indira Gandhi? Did she merely fear politics for Rajiv, or did she have reservations about the political culture he was inheriting? The Bachchan Saga And then there are the Bachchans. Amitabh Bachchan was not simply another celebrity friend of Rajiv Gandhi. The two families were once extremely close, and Amitabh entered electoral politics in 1984 as Rajiv's friend, winning Allahabad spectacularly. Yet, over time, the friendship disintegrated. What happened? Was the rupture political, financial, personal - or an accumulation of all three? A memoir called Belonging cannot entirely avoid the story of people who once belonged almost to the family and then abruptly did not. Nor can an account of Sonia's political evolution easily bypass 1998-99. Her arrival at the top of the Congress was hardly a coronation without resistance. What did she really make of Sitaram Kesri and the circumstances in which she replaced him? Then came a much more personal challenge. In 1999, Sharad Pawar, PA Sangma, and Tariq Anwar questioned her suitability for the highest office on grounds of her foreign origin - from within the Congress itself. Sonia resigned as party president; the organisation rallied behind her; the rebels were expelled and went on to establish the NCP. It was a defining test of authority. How did she experience it: as humiliation, betrayal, political challenge, or proof that she had finally acquired a constituency of her own? Political memoirs by powerful women - from Golda Meir and Margaret Thatcher to Benazir Bhutto and, more recently, Jacinda Ardern - become historically valuable when they reveal the human calculations beneath public decisions. Sonia's life contains more than enough for a compelling personal narrative. The question is whether she will stop at that fascinating human story - or open the political files as well. Rao, Natwar, And Trust The most intriguing political relationship to revisit may well be Sonia Gandhi's with PV Narasimha Rao. Rao was no outsider to the Gandhi establishment. He had served Indira and Rajiv, and, after Rajiv's assassination, emerged as Congress President and Prime Minister. Yet Sonia and Rao went from a relationship of trust to an estrangement that became one of the defining internal conflicts of the Congress in the 1990s. Why? One answer has long centred on Sonia's dissatisfaction with the investigation into Rajiv Gandhi's assassination. Accounts from Congress figures say she felt the probe was moving too slowly and suspected that the full conspiracy had not been uncovered; she publicly expressed unhappiness in 1995. Her memoir should tell us what she actually believed. The Rajiv assassination itself deserves a fuller reckoning. The LTTE's responsibility for the killing was established through investigation and trial, but Sonia's reported dissatisfaction went beyond the immediate perpetrators. What did she believe remained unresolved? Then comes Natwar Singh, another relationship where affection hardened into hostility. Natwar was more than a foreign-policy adviser. A diplomat, writer, Nehru-Gandhi loyalist, and bibliophile, he belonged to Sonia's intellectual and political circle and often functioned as an informal literary counsellor as well. The rupture followed his exit from government amid the UN Oil-for-Food controversy, after which his memoir One Life Is Not Enough offered an unflattering account of Sonia and disputed her version of why she declined the Prime Ministership in 2004. = What turned intimacy into permanent estrangement? Sonia has so far largely allowed Natwar's version to stand unanswered. Now she has her turn. The Mannohan Mystery When it comes to Sonia's powerplays, nothing will be scrutinised more closely than 2004, and why she chose Manmohan Singh. Once Sonia decided not to become Prime Minister, the choice of the leader was hers. Pranab Mukherjee was senior, vastly more experienced politically and, by Manmohan's own admission, had reason to feel aggrieved. Arjun Singh, too, represented an older Congress order with considerable organisational weight. Was Manmohan chosen because Sonia trusted him? Because he had no faction? Because his integrity and economic credentials reassured India and the world? Or because he was the rare leader who could exercise governmental authority without creating an alternative political centre inside the Congress? There is an intriguing counterfactual. Madhavrao Scindia, who died in a plane crash in 2001 at only 56, had been widely regarded as prime-ministerial material and was effectively Sonia's deputy in the Parliamentary party. Had Madhavrao lived, would Manmohan Singh still have been Sonia's choice in 2004? Her answer would tell us much about how she understood leadership. So would also her account of the UPA arrangement. Critics described her as a "super PM"; admirers argued that the division was perfectly legitimate - Manmohan ran the government while Sonia managed the coalition, party, and political mandate.

HARASSMENT OF GIRL STUDENTS IN SCHOOLS

-Dr. Priyanka Saurabh

(Crisis of trust in the temple of education)

Schools are not just places for learning. They lay the foundation for children's personality development, values, discipline, and a secure future. When parents send their children to school, they trust that teachers will not only impart knowledge but also ensure their child's safety and dignity. But when, under the guise of this trust, a teacher molests, behaves inappropriately, or sexually harasses a student, it's not just the child who suffers the consequences; the entire educational system is put on trial. Reports of inappropriate behavior by teachers toward female students in schools have surfaced from time to time. The nature and facts of each incident may be different, so it's unfair to blame someone based solely on an allegation. However, suppressing a complaint once it's made, attempting to silence the girl, or delaying the matter to protect the institution's reputation is an even more serious problem. The reputation of any school cannot be more important than the safety of its children. The relationship between a teacher and a student is fundamentally based on trust. A teacher possesses both knowledge and authority. Students naturally value their teacher's words and often consider them the most trustworthy adult after their parents. This is why, if a teacher abuses this trust and authority, it is difficult for a child to protest. During adolescence, children often cannot discern whether an adult's behavior is normal or inappropriate. Fear, shame, social pressure, worries about exams and the future, and the fear of whether their voice will be believed can prevent them from complaining. Therefore, simply asking, "Why didn't the child complain earlier?" is not enough. The real question should be: Has the school created a safe environment where the child can speak out without fear? The most dangerous element in such cases is often silence. Many families, fearing social stigma, are reluctant to complain. Some suppress the matter, fearing that the child's education will be affected. School administrations, too, may sometimes try to resolve the complaint internally, fearing a tarnished image of the institution. However, such silence can encourage abuse. If a child's complaint is not taken seriously, it can send the message that the institution's reputation is more important than her safety. This message is deeply concerning for any civilized society. Therefore, parents, teachers, and school management must understand that filing a complaint is not a disgrace, but a step toward safety. Allegations should be investigated impartially, and if proven guilty, action should be taken in accordance with the law and institutional rules. The role of school administration should not be limited to taking action after an incident occurs. Security arrangements should be robust in advance. Proper verification of teachers and staff, a clear code of conduct, rules for dealing with students, and a secure complaint system are essential. Schools should educate children about appropriate and inappropriate touch, how to recognize uncomfortable behavior, and how to report it to a trusted adult. This education should be provided not only to female students, but to all children. They should also be made aware that they are not responsible for any inappropriate behavior. Schools should have a complaint system where children can express their concerns without fear. The availability of female teachers, trained counselors, or other trusted adults can be crucial in this regard. The POCSO Act, 2012, exists in India to protect children from sexual offenses. This law provides important protections in cases of sexual offenses against children under the age of 18. Schools and their staff must have a basic understanding of this law. It is not appropriate to suppress a serious complaint simply by considering it an "internal school matter." Depending on the nature of the case, it may be necessary to inform and cooperate with the appropriate authorities. The purpose of the legal process is not only to punish the accused, but also to protect the safety, dignity, and rights of the victimized child. Even today, after such incidents, questions are often raised in society about a girl's behavior, clothing, time, friendships, or social media activities. This thinking is wrong and harmful. A girl's clothing, her conversation, or her trust in a teacher does not give an adult the right to behave inappropriately. The responsibility lies with the person who abuses their position, age, and authority. Instead of scaring girls in the name of safety, they must be given confidence. They must be assured that if someone makes them uncomfortable, they can speak up without shame or fear. Most teachers shape children's futures with complete honesty and dedication. Therefore, it is unfair to tarnish the entire teaching community with the alleged or proven misconduct of a few individuals. However, this very reason increases teachers' professional conduct responsibilities even more. Teachers have constant contact with children, so they must be especially mindful of boundaries and professional decorum. Schools should have clear rules regarding situations such as personal messages, inappropriate comments, unnecessary physical contact, or private conversations. Teachers' behavior should reflect respect, equality, and security. School administrations should send a clear message that any form of sexual or inappropriate behavior toward children is unacceptable. However, "zero tolerance" should not mean taking action against anyone without investigation. It truly means taking every complaint seriously, following a fair process, ensuring the safety of the child, and taking appropriate action based on the investigation's findings.

An India-Pakistan War Test: How Far Would Saudi Arabia And Turkey Go?

The trilateral Mecca security pact between Saudi Arabia (KSA), Turkey, and Pakistan wasn't really a bolt from the blue. For months, there had been confabulations between these three countries and Egypt, and the air was abuzz with a new regional security arrangement that was being worked out. This new arrangement is in addition to the bilateral Strategic Mutual Defence Agreement (SMDA) between the Saudis and Pakistan. The reaction in India to this new strategic realignment in West Asia has swung between two extremes. While some analysts see it as a very negative development with serious strategic implications for India's security, others have expressed deep scepticism about this arrangement working effectively, if at all. Both sides of the argument have made valid observations in support of their assessment of the Mecca Pact. But regardless of which assessment proves accurate, India cannot afford to ignore, much less dismiss, this realignment of two enemy countries (Pakistan and Turkey) with a third friendly country (Saudi Arabia); But nor does India need to get flustered over it. What India needs is a strategy that will not only counter the negative aspects of the Mecca alliance if it works on the ground but also improve its strategic space if the sceptics of the Mecca Pact prove correct. Unsteady Ground While the pact is an outcome of a breakdown of the security architecture that has prevailed in the region over the last 100 years, it is rather premature to imagine whether this alliance is laying the foundation on which a new regional security framework will be built. To call the Mecca Pact an "Islamic NATO" or equate it with the Baghdad Pact (CENTO) is quite a stretch. Both those alliances were led by a dominant power, the US. There is no such power that provides the necessary ballast to the Mecca Pact. If anything, traditional rivalries between Turkey and Saudi Arabia haven't entirely been resolved. Just a few years ago, Erdogan was viciously twisting the knife into the Saudi Crown Prince Mohammad bin Salman (MBS) over the Khashoggi killing. That they subsequently papered over their differences means very little, because in this region, all alliances are temporary and can change virtually overnight. The third leg of the stool, Pakistan, is in it for the money, naturally. Hardly a new NATO - which, by the way, is in total disarray itself. A lot is being made about "collective deterrence against any act of aggression, and...any armed attack against any one of the three States shall be regarded as an attack against them all". But there is no clarity about what this really means. While Article 5 of the NATO agreement defines how the collective defense will kick in, the Mecca Pact has kept the agreement secret. Is this to keep some wiggle room for the signatory countries to opt out of this collective defense clause? Or is the secrecy being kept because the obligations enjoined on each country in the event collective defense is invoked are different and could thus evoke sharp opposition and criticism? In other words, the Saudis, who were unable to defend themselves against Iranian or Houthi attacks, cannot realistically be expected to send in their forces for the defence of Pakistan. Speaking of Houthis, within a few hours of the Mecca Pact, the Houthis fired missiles on Saudi Arabia, and there wasn't even a squeak from the new and much-vaunted security partners of the Saudis. Perhaps Saudi obligation under the pact will be limited to giving money, diplomatic and political support to Pakistan to fight its own war. But what is expected of the Pakistanis? So far, at least, they haven't really delivered on their commitments to Saudi Arabia. Also, why would Turkey, which is a member of NATO, need Pakistan and the Saudis to come to its aid in the event of an attack? A Reality Check While it can be argued that these three countries have militaries with different offensive and defensive capabilities, none of them has the capacity and capability required for out-of-area operations of the kind that the US possesses. Even a significant power like China would be hamstrung in conducting and sustaining operations outside its immediate neighbourhood. Given their current capabilities, for any of these countries to marshal troops to go to another country's aid and fight its wars is a bit far-fetched. It is also not clear if the Mecca Pact is a return to the kind of alliances that existed in the 19th and early 20th centuries, when a bunch of countries, mostly in Europe, would enter into wars on behalf of their alliance partners.

EX-ZAMBIAN MINISTER KILLED IN SECURITY RAID ON OPPOSITION

A former Zambian minister was killed in last week's raid by security forces on a house linked to opposition leader Brian Mundubile a day after the presidential election, the authorities have said. A police spokesman said Mutotwe Kafwaya was fatally wounded by law enforcement officers during what officials have described as an exchange of fire in a security operation in the capital, Lusaka, on Friday. Eleven people were arrested in the raid, with the authorities accusing Mundubile's party, the NRPUP, of being "involved in insurgency" and "militia activity" and storing "high-grade" weapons. Mundubile, who has since gone into hiding, rejected the allegations as "total fabrications". According to official results, incumbent President Hakainde Hichilema won a second five-year term with a 60% share of the vote. Mundubile, who trailed behind with 38%, plans to challenge the outcome in court after alleging the tallying process had been tampered with. Speaking about Kafwaya on Tuesday, the opposition leader said he had had no information of his whereabouts after he had been shot during the raid, which he said took place at his house. The police confirmed Kafwaya's death late on Wednesday amid growing demands for information about him. They said the 49-year-old was killed in a shootout during the raid by a joint security task force, adding that they encountered "gunfire and resistance from unknown individuals, resulting in [them] returning fire". "In the process one unidentified male person was fatally wounded, and the firearm was recovered," the police said, adding that family members had subsequently identified him. Kafwaya first become a lawmaker in 2016 and was appointed by then-President Edgar Lungu as the for minister for works in 2018 and moved to the transport ministry the following year. He served there until 2021, when Lungu lost to Hichilema in the presidential election of that year. He continued serving as an opposition member of parliament.

Donald Trump vows tougher economic measures on Iran and supporting countries

Donald Trump has said he will launch tougher economic measures against Iran, as well as any country that helps or does business with it. The US president wrote in all capital letters on Truth Social that he was launching "the most crushing economic operation ever taken against any country", without providing further details or the names of any nation other than Iran. It comes after a 60-day ceasefire formally expired on Monday without any sign of a diplomatic settlement to the war the US and Israel began at the end of February. Tehran said Trump's threat would only bring further animosity. If realised, it would extend a campaign of economic pressure on Iran aimed at forcing it into submission. The US launched a wave of sanctions on foreign banks and firms that do business with Iran in April when it became apparent that military action had not led to the overthrow of the regime in Tehran nor its surrender, as Trump had initially hoped. Conversely, since the start of the war, Iran has been able to stem the flow of marine traffic through the Strait of Hormuz, raising energy prices globally. Ahead of the US midterm elections in November, Trump is facing pressure over how much the war is costing American consumers. The US president wrote on Wednesday evening that he was launching "economic D-Day" on Iran because it had failed to make a deal with the US. "ANY country that allows its financial institutions, businesses, airports, or government entities to provide any type of lifeline to Iran will itself face TREMENDOUS Economic Consequences," Trump said. He did not specify what punishment countries might face. Trump continued: "Oil smuggling, swap lines, cash transfers, exchange houses, ship registries, front companies - it all needs to stop NOW. You know who you are." It comes a day after the United Arab Emirates (UAE), a US ally, announced it would be severing all financial and economic ties with Iran, following a new missile threat from the country. The UAE's defence ministry said it had detected two ballistic missiles launched from Iran targeting maritime traffic, both of which landed in the sea. Iranian entities have long used Dubai's financial system to transfer money through exchange houses and shell companies.

Founder of collapsed Chinese property giant Evergrande sentenced to life in prison

The founder of Evergrande, the property giant at the centre of China's housing market slump, has been sentenced to life in prison and had all of his personal property confiscated. Hui Ka Yan pleaded guilty in April to several charges, including embezzlement of assets and corporate bribery. Shenzhen Intermediate People's Court also fined his former companies a total of 15.82bn yuan (£1.73bn; $2.35bn) over multiple crimes, including falsifying records and concealing debt. Hui's sentencing marks a key moment in the fallout from Evergrande's collapse, which shook China's property sector and hit investors and domestic banks hard. Hui and his businesses "seriously disrupted" the Chinese property market, resulting in significant economic losses, the court said. Other Evergrande executives, including Hui's two sons Xu Zhijian and Xu Tenghe, were also sentenced to jail terms ranging from 22 months to 18 years, according to state media. Once ranked Asia's richest man, Hui has seen his wealth and influence dwindle as his company unravelled. Hui, also known as Xu Jiayin, rose from humble beginnings in rural China, where he was raised by his grandmother before venturing into property development and setting up Evergrande in 1996. He oversaw the company's rapid rise through an aggressive expansion programme funded with large amounts of borrowed money. Evergrande became China's biggest real estate developer, with a stock market valuation of more than $50bn (£36.7bn). Hui was once estimated to be Asia's richest person. The firm was dealt a huge blow when Beijing introduced measures in 2020 to control debt in the country's property sector. As the company struggled to meet interest payments on its debts it sold properties at huge discounts to stay afloat before collapsing in 2021. In April, the court heard that the company had taken millions of dollars in pre-sale funding from potential house buyers that were not used for construction. The money had instead been channelled to new property developments, resulting in hundreds of unfinished projects. In March 2024, Hui was fined $6.5m and banned from China's capital market for life for his company overstating its revenue by $78bn. Evergrande's stock market valuation shrank by 99% before its shares were removed from the Hong Kong exchange in August 2025 after more than a decade and a half of trading. Evergrande's implosion has often been blamed for triggering a broader slump in China's property market that continues to weigh heavily on the economy. At its height, Evergrande was the biggest firm in the country's real estate industry, which made up about a third of China's gross domestic product at the time. The property market was a significant driver of growth and an important revenue source for local governments. The industry's ongoing problems have weighed heavily on the world's second largest economy as several other major developers faced financial woes.

Missing teen hiker found dead in Australian bush after eight-day search

The body of a woman has been found in Australian bushland, following an eight-day search for a Sydney teenager reported missing last Wednesday. Police said that while the body was yet to be formally identified, it was believed to be that of 18-year-old Lily Hooper. The confirmation came after the state premier told the New South Wales parliament that she had been found alive before later retracting the statement. The teenager left her home in Sydney to go walking in a nearby national park on 12 August. Her family reported her missing later that night, after she failed to return home by 22:00. Her car was found in a car park at the bottom of a challenging trail in the Nattai National Park. Police said that the body was found in the Southern Highlands at approximately 11:30 local time on Thursday. Hooper's body had been found in dense vegetation and would likely have to be carried out on foot. There was initial confusion as to Hooper's condition, after New South Wales Premier Chris Minns told a parliamentary hearing that she had been found alive. Local media suggested that her family had also been informed that she was alive.

Australia 'outraged' after Israel decides not to open criminal investigation into killing of aid worker in Gaza

Australia's foreign minister has said she is "outraged" over an Israeli military decision not to launch a criminal investigation into the death of aid worker Zomi Frankcom, who was killed in an air strike in Gaza. Frankcom was an Australian aid worker with World Central Kitchen (WCK) who was killed with six other colleagues in an Israeli attack in April 2024. Foreign Minister Penny Wong said in a statement the decision "falls far short of the accountability we expect" and summoned the Israeli ambassador. After meeting Wong, Ambassador Hillel Newman defended the Israel Defense Forces (IDF) and its investigation, saying "there was no criminal intention" and therefore "no criminal responsibility". Frankcom's family said in a statement on Thursday that they were "deeply disappointed" by the IDF's decision. "As a family, we do not believe this to be accurate, and we continue to call for an independent investigation," the statement said. Three British nationals, a Palestinian, a Polish national and a dual US-Canadian citizen were also killed in the attack. The UK has yet to comment on the Israeli decision. Speaking to reporters after meeting Newman, Wong said there were still many "unanswered questions", including why if the first strike on the convoy was "a catastrophic error", two further strikes followed, just minutes apart. She also said the removal of two officers from their positions and the reprimanding of three after an initial probe was "insufficient accountability" for the death of seven people. Drone audio from the attack had still not been handed over despite requests from the Australian government, she said. In its statement on Wednesday, the IDF said the presence of an armed guard with the convoy had not been flagged with it before the convoy set off, and that he was falsely identified as a Hamas fighter. It also claimed the convoy had deviated from the route that had been coordinated with the military. Notwithstanding "serious failures" in the process that led to the killings, "the decisions of the commanders did not raise reasonable suspicion of criminal misconduct," the IDF said. In the same statement, the IDF also said it had also failed to find grounds for criminal investigation into the killing of four employees of Médecins Sans Frontières (MSF), who were killed in two separate attacks in November 2023 and February 2024. In her earlier statement, Wong said the Australian government had learned of Israel's decision late on Wednesday night, adding that the outcome was "especially insulting" as it occurred on World Humanitarian Day.

Belgian car salesman becomes prince after royal parentage confirmed

Belgium's Prince Laurent has legally recognised 26-year-old former car salesman Clément Vandenkerckhove as his son and heir. Vandenkerckhove, the result of a relationship between the royal and Belgian singer Wendy Van Wanten, was quietly brought into Prince Laurent's family at a town hall ceremony six months ago, although details have only just emerged. While he formally becomes a prince, he will not receive a royal allowance. The new prince has had several years to get used to the idea of having a royal father, and he said recently he was not yet sure he would begin using his father's name Saxe-Coburg. "I might want to do that, but I am proud of the name Vandenkerckhove," he told Het Nieuwsblad. "If I were to sacrifice that family name, it would be a betrayal of everything my mother has done for me." He will not be part of Belgium's royal line of succession, unlike his half-sister Princess Louise and half-brothers Prince Aymeric and Prince Nicolas. Nor will he take part in public royal activities. Vandenkerckhove is already well known to Belgians, having been the focus of a Flemish TV documentary last September, in which he described how he got to know his father. His father had been in a relationship with Wendy Van Wanten, whose real name is Iris Vandenkerckhove, before he went on to marry Princess Claire in 2003. During the VTM documentary, Clément described meeting the prince unexpectedly in a shopping centre in 2013, without realising who he was. It was only when he was 16 that his mother revealed his father's identity. Four years later he plucked up the courage to ring him up, and after several more calls they met in person and eventually Prince Laurent suggested they take a DNA test. "We went to the hospital together and I remember him saying 'I'll go first so you're feeling at ease'," he told VTM. Then he received an email from the laboratory which told him of a 99.5% DNA match. Prince Laurent's DNA test is reminiscent of his father, former King Albert II, who had a test after a lengthy paternity battle. Albert admitted in 2020 that he had fathered a daughter during an affair and eventually recognised her as his own.

"TEST OF MIND, NOT CHESS":

Vidit Gujrathi On D Gukesh's World Championship Battle

Grandmaster Vidit Gujrathi believes reigning world champion D Gukesh's title defence against Uzbek challenger Javokhir Sindarov will be a test of mental strength more than chess ability, with the Indian needing to put behind him a difficult run and rediscover the form that made 2024 an exceptional year. Gukesh has endured an inconsistent phase since his World Championship triumph, while Sindarov heads into the marquee clash in excellent form. Vidit, however, said a dip in results does not necessarily indicate a decline in a player's ability. "In chess, performances, if you are not Magnus Carlsen, come in stages. For example, 2024 was an exceptional year for Gukesh. Every tournament, he had the Midas touch. Whatever he played, he was winning," Vidit told PTI. He said form among elite players is influenced by several factors beyond their chess strength. "Their strength is very high. A lot of things affect form - mindset, physical condition and pressure. Sport is about whether you can bring your best on that day." According to Vidit, Gukesh continues to work hard and has brought fresh ideas to his games but has struggled to produce the efficiency that characterised his rise to the world title. "Usually he would convert very well, but now he is missing those wins. He is coming under time pressure a lot. He is working very hard. That's very clear from the games. But something is missing." Vidit, however, felt Gukesh could still return to his best, provided he can overcome the mental baggage of his recent results. "That doesn't mean that in the World Championship, he cannot go back to his 2024 version. It will require a lot of inner strength because when you don't do well, you struggle mentally."

INDIA-PAKISTAN PLAYERS SKIP HANDSHAKES BEFORE MATCH

The Indian men's hockey team swept past their arch-rivals Pakistan in emphatic fashion, beating them 5-3 in their final Pool D match of the FIH Hockey World Cup in Amstelveen, Netherlands, on Wednesday. However, the intense battle on the field did not stop the teams from exchanging pleasantries, as the players shared high-fives before the start of the match. While politics often threatens to overshadow India-Pakistan encounters, the clash in Amstelveen showcased a modern display of sportsmanship. After their respective national anthems were played, the two sets of players lined up and exchanged quick high-fives to show mutual respect, skipping the traditional pre-match handshakes. In the aftermath of Operation Sindoor, the India and Pakistan cricket teams have refrained from shaking hands with each other. However, hockey does not appear to be following cricket's path, at least for now. Even during the Sultan of Johor Cup last year, the two teams shook hands after their match. After full-time in Amstelveen, the India and Pakistan players did shake hands, having skipped the customary gesture before the start of the match. As far as the action on the field is concerned, skipper Harmanpreet Singh and striker Abhishek scored a brace each as India extended their decade-long unbeaten run over arch-rivals Pakistan with a 5-3 win. The defeat ended Pakistan's campaign in the tournament. Playing their first World Cup in eight years, Pakistan fought back after conceding three goals but India held their nerve to seal a memorable win in front of a packed 10,000-capacity Wagener Stadium. Captain Harmanpreet (5th, 21st) scored twice from penalty corners, while Abhishek (11th, 24th) struck two fine field goals and Hardik Singh (34th) converted a penalty stroke for India. Hannan Shahid (22nd, 46th) scored twice for Pakistan, with Sufyan Khan (24th) adding the other from a penalty corner.

INDIA STAR TOLD 'NOT TO PLAY IN IPL' IN BIG VERDICT: "DON'T CHANGE YOUR STRENGTH"

Manav Suthar left everyone impressed with a sensational bowling performance as India registered a commanding 165-run victory over Sri Lanka in the first Test of the two-match series in Galle on Wednesday. The 24-year-old spinner, playing only his second Test for India, picked up six wickets in the second innings to finish with a remarkable 10-wicket match haul. Having made his Test debut against Afghanistan in June, Suthar had already announced his arrival on the international stage with a five-wicket haul. He followed it up with another outstanding display in Galle, playing a key role in India's victory. With India taking a 1-0 lead in the two-match series, former India batter Cheteshwar Pujara urged Suthar to remain focused on red-ball cricket rather than chasing an IPL contract. Pujara also appealed to the Indian team management to "preserve" the young spinner for the longest format of the game. "Try to preserve him. We have had this discussion in the past that, yes, all the young players might want to play the shorter format, but India should be looking to preserve him for the Test format. Yes, he might want to play the IPL, but don't go there. I mean, yes, if he gets the opportunity to play the IPL, that's fine, but don't change your strength," Pujara said on the Sony Sports Network. "I think he doesn't need to change his bowling much. Just when it comes to white-ball cricket, you need to have that flatter trajectory, and I don't mind him playing in the IPL. If he plays in the IPL, that is fine, but don't change your strength," he added. Pujara further stated that Suthar does not need to alter his bowling action, as his natural ability and skill set are already helping him thrive in red-ball cricket. "For someone like Manav Suthar, who is fighting the ball, who is willing to go a little slower, when it comes to red-ball cricket, you don't need to change that. Don't change yourself just for the IPL. I can understand, but don't change your natural ability, which is to flight the ball," said Pujara. Speaking about Suthar's T20 credentials, the Rajasthan-born spinner has featured in five IPL matches and picked up two wickets.

FC Goa Drawn In Tough Group For AFC Challenge League

FC Goa were clubbed with Tajikistan in a tricky group in the AFC Challenge League 2026-27 after the draw was held in Kuala Lumpur on Thursday. After losing to FK Arkadag of Turkmenistan in the AFC Champions League 2 preliminary stage last Wednesday, FC Goa dropped to the group stage of the AFC Challenge League, Asia's third-tier men's club competition. Qadsia SC and Fortis FC finished third in the Kuwaiti Premier League 2025-26 and the Bangladesh Football League 2025-26 respectively, while FC Regar-TadAZ were the Tajikistan Cup 2025 winners. The draw saw 20 teams divided into five groups of four - three in the West and two in the East. They will compete in a single round-robin centralised league format in the group stage from October 17 to 24, 2026. The Gauris will travel to Kuwait, where Qadsia SC will host all Group C matches. In the West, the three group winners and the best ranked runners-up among all groups will qualify for the quarter-finals. In the East, the group winners and runners-up will make it to the last eight. The quarter-finals and semi-finals - both double-legged affairs - are set for March 3-18 and April 7-15, 2027, respectively, with the final slated for May 8.

Treesa Jolly-Gayatri Gopichand Enter World Championships Quarters

Indian women's doubles pair of Treesa Jolly and Gayatri Gopichand stood one step away from a medal after reaching quarterfinals with a straight game win over Japan's seventh seeds Rin Iwanaga and Kie Nakanishi at the World Championships in New Delhi on Thursday. The Indian unseeded pair, which is on a comeback trail after Treesa recovered from an injury, dished out a dominating performance to outwit world No 7 Japanese Rin and Kie 21-16 21-12 in a lop-sided contest. Treesa and Gayatri, who were awarded the Arjuna Award for 2025, had made it to the All England Open semi-finals in back-to-back years in 2022 and 2023.

Manav Suthar Shares Details Of His Practice After Demolishing Sri Lanka In 1st Test

India's young left-arm spinner Manav Suthar revealed that he practised with the Kookaburra ball at home before the Sri Lanka series to adapt quickly to the conditions, and his preparation paid off in the first Test at the Galle International Stadium. Suthar produced a match-winning performance in only his second Test, claiming 10 wickets as India defeated Sri Lanka by 165 runs in the opening Test on Wednesday. The spinner returned figures of 6-55 in Sri Lanka's second innings to finish with match figures of 10-101 and help India take a 1-0 lead in the two-match series. Speaking in a video released by the BCCI, Suthar said he had focused on adapting to the Kookaburra ball following India's game against Afghanistan and had spent considerable time practising with it both at home and in the nets. "I take cricket very seriously. My focus is to improve day to day when I go to practice. I practice as much as I can. My focus after the Afghanistan game was to adapt as soon as possible. I practised a lot with the Kookaburra ball. I practised in nets and at home. I was focusing on in-house games. It was very important," Suthar said. Suthar also credited India's arrival in Sri Lanka 10 days before the Test for giving him valuable time to understand the conditions and get comfortable with the Kookaburra ball. "We came to Sri Lanka ten days ago, and it helped a lot in adapting to the environment and how to play with the Kookaburra ball. I get time to adapt. It has helped me a lot," he said. The 22-year-old said patience was another important factor on a Galle pitch that offered assistance to the bowlers. He revealed that he, Ravindra Jadeja and Kuldeep Yadav discussed the need to remain patient, knowing that new batters could find it difficult to settle.

Top Seeds Aryna Sabalenka, Alexander Zverev Stunned In Cincinnati Fourth Round

Top seeds Aryna Sabalenka and Alexander Zverev crashed out of the Cincinnati Masters in a matter of hours on a rainy Wednesday of fourth-round action. American Tommy Paul saved a match point on the way to a 4-6, 7-6 (8/6), 6-4 upset of Germany's Zverev. But the biggest shock came on the women's side where Czech Sara Bejlek, ranked 35th, stunned world number one Sabalenka 7-6 (9/7), 6-4 in a gritty match that finished up shortly after the clock ticked past midnight into Thursday morning. Former champion Sabalenka led by a break in the opening set and was up 5-1 in the tiebreaker before Bejlek roared back to pocket the set in 65 minutes. Bejlek broke the Belarusian three times in the second set, rallying from 4-1 down and securing the win with a love game capped by an ace. "I lost my words - it feels incredible," Bejlek said after her first win over a top-10 player. "I was playing what I was feeling and not really thinking. I was trying not to be nervous and just play. I believed in myself no matter what," Bejlek, who won the Abu Dhabi hard court title in February as a qualifier, booked a quarter-final clash with American Madison Keys. It was yet another setback for Sabalenka as the start of the US Open looms on August 30. The four-time Grand Slam champion was ousted in the fourth round of the Toronto Masters last week, having lost in the same round at Wimbledon and in the quarter-finals at Roland Garros.

Mumbai Indians' New Post Sparks 'Hardik Pandya' Rumour Ahead Of IPL 2027

Ahead of the next season of the Indian Premier League, there has been a huge buzz regarding Hardik Pandya. Multiple reports have claimed that Mumbai Indians are looking to trade the player before IPL 2027. The all-rounder, who made his IPL debut for MI in 2015, left the franchise ahead of the 2022 season and joined Gujarat Titans. Hardik led GT to the title in their debut season and continued as captain for another year before MI reacquired his services through the transfer window. This time, Hardik was handed the responsibility of leading Mumbai Indians. However, the results did not go as expected, with Mumbai finishing at the bottom of the IPL 2024 points table. The following season, MI reached Qualifier 2 before ending IPL 2026 in ninth place. Amid the ongoing rumours regarding Hardik's potential trade, Mumbai Indians took to social media to post some pictures of the player. Commenting on IPL transfers and trades, former India captain Sunil Gavaskar made a direct appeal. "...there's some speculation in the media about the possible switching of players from one franchise to another. There's, of course, still some time before that window closes. However, while the transfer of a player from one franchise to another is in the public domain, when a trade takes place, the numbers are known only to the two franchises, the player and the BCCI," Sunil Gavaskar wrote in Mid-Day. "In such a situation, the other franchises don't know whether the salary cap that every franchise has for its squad was maintained or breached. That's why it's important for full transparency that the numbers are also made public." He added that full transparency would help maintain the high profile of the IPL. "The IPL is the greatest T20 league in the world and it's therefore crucial that full transparency is maintained so that there's no finger-pointing at it from those jealous of it," he wrote further. Ahead of the next season of the Indian Premier League, there has been a huge buzz regarding Hardik Pandya. A single Mumbai Indians social media post has sent the IPL rumour mill into overdrive, reigniting speculation over whether Hardik Pandya will still be wearing the franchise's colours come the 2027 season. The Mumbai franchise shared a post captioned "Memo: Make it HP coded," accompanied by two images.

Viswanath & sons’ is a film that lived up to suriya sir’s faith: director Venky Atluri

Tamil star Suriya's latest film 'VISWANATH & SONS', directed by acclaimed filmmaker Venky Atluri, features Mamitha Baiju as the female lead. Presented by Srikara Studios and produced jointly by Suryadevara Naga Vamsi and Sai Soujanya under Sithara Entertainments and Fortune Four Cinemas, the film hit theatres on August 14, 2026. With its natural humour, heartfelt emotions and relatable family drama, 'VISWANATH & SONS' is receiving an overwhelming response from audiences. The film has crossed the ₹150 crore gross mark worldwide within just four days and is continuing its successful run. In a recent interaction with the media, director Venky Atluri shared his happiness over the film's success and spoke about Suriya's faith in the story, the writing process, the film's art work, Trivikram Srinivas's reaction, Mamitha Baiju's casting and several other interesting aspects of the film.

What was Suriya sir's reaction when he first heard the story?

Suriya sir immediately liked the story. In fact, he was looking for a family-oriented film, and he had mentioned that to me. I already had this story ready, so I narrated it to him. He really connected with it. He felt that we should tell the story honestly without unnecessarily adding comedy or commercial elements. That is why we were particularly careful with the climax. We also made sure that no character was compromised in the process. Suriya sir watched the film a few days before its release. He was very happy because what he had believed in was exactly what he saw on screen. I feel very happy that we could live up to the faith he placed in the story. You are being praised for having the strength of writing seen in Trivikram Srinivas's films. How do you feel about that comparison? Mani Ratnam sir and Trivikram sir are two of the biggest inspirations behind my decision to enter the film industry. So, being compared with Trivikram sir is a great honour for me. I also understand the responsibility that comes with such a compliment, and I will work even harder to live up to it. I particularly love Trivikram sir's 'Nuvvu Naaku Nachav'. The dialogues are entertaining and humorous, yet they convey profound truths about life. That film inspired me tremendously, and I enjoy writing in a similar space.

How did the story of 'VISWANATH & SONS' originate?

Initially, I wanted to write a story around a relationship involving a significant age difference. If a person reaches the age of 40 without getting married, there has to be a strong reason behind that decision. The story evolved around that idea.

"Killer" release date announcement glimpse raises expectations for the film

Starring Jyoti Poorvaj and Poorvaaj in the lead roles, "Killer/KillR" is a sensational sci-fi thriller. Manish Gilada, Chandrakanth Kollu, Vishal Raj, Archana Ananth, and Gautham Chakradhar Koppishetti play other important roles. Produced by Poorvaaj and Padmanabha Reddy A. under the Think Cinema and AU & I Studios banners, with the blessings of Dhyanam Nannagaru, the film is presented by Urveesh Poorvaj. Poorvaj is directing the movie. Today, the makers officially announced the release date of "Killer." The film is set to have a worldwide grand theatrical release on October 17, on the auspicious occasion of Vijayadashami. The release date announcement glimpse of "Killer" is intriguing from beginning to end and has further increased curiosity around the film. According to the glimpse, on October 17, the day the film releases, aliens make contact with Dr. Poorvaaj, one of India's greatest scientists. The alien informs him that they are sending a spaceship to Earth and asks him to convey the message to others, stating that they intend to save humanity. "Our future is that alien's past." Why did the alien from another timeline choose to contact Dr. Poorvaj? Why does it want to send a spaceship to Earth? What threat is humanity facing? What kind of help is the alien planning to provide?

I am very happy to play the role of Ravi Teja's daughter in 'Irumudi'. The audience will definitely love the film: Baby Nakshatra Mass Maharaja Ravi Teja's most awaited movie 'Irumudi'. Priya Bhavani Shankar is playing the heroine. Directed by Shiva Nirvana and produced by Mythri Movie Makers, this movie has already raised huge expectations with its glimpses, trailer and songs. The movie, which is going to hit the theaters on August 21, is going to provide the audience with a different family entertainer experience with emotions and action. On this occasion, Baby Nakshatra, who played a key role in the movie, shared the features of the movie at a press conference. -My name is Nakshatra. I am from Kerala. I am studying in the seventh grade. So far, I have done six films in Kannada, Malayalam, and Tamil languages.

How did the 'Irumudi' opportunity come about?

-Director Shiva Nirvana first contacted my mother after seeing my reels on Instagram. I am very happy that 'Irumudi' is my first Telugu film. Isn't the story based on 'Irumudi' Ayyappa Swamy? You're from Kerala. Have you ever been to Sabarimala?

I went to Sabarimala once.

How did it feel to work with Ravi Teja?

I felt very happy. He is very friendly with me. I like him a lot. Among Ravi Teja's films, I like 'Vikramarkudu' a lot.

What will your role be like in 'Irumudi'?

-My character's name in this is Manikantha. I am going to be seen as Ravi Teja's daughter. Priya Madam is playing the role of my mother. Both Ravi Teja and Priya Madam are very friendly with me. I have dubbed for this film myself. You worked with big heroes like Prithviraj garu, Shivaraj Kumar garu, and Ravi Teja garu at a young age, right? How does it feel? -I am very happy. I would like to thank my mother on this occasion. She supports me a lot.

How do you balance movies and studies?

-My teachers are especially supportive of me. I am able to make films only with the support of my parents and teachers.

ANAND DEVERAKONDA & VAISHNAVI CHAITANYA'S EPIC – FIRST SEMESTER UNVEILS SOULFUL THIRD SINGLE 'MANASA VACHA'

The makers of the much-awaited youthful romantic entertainer EPIC – FIRST SEMESTER have unveiled the film's third single, 'Manasa Vacha', a soulful musical piece that beautifully captures the emotions of love and longing.
