

Telangana to play key role in country's development

Khammam (TSIT): Telangana will play a key role in the country's development and the government is working to make the state a leading contributor to India's growth, Deputy Chief Minister Bhatti Vikramarka said. He said the government was moving ahead with a long-term vision of inclusive development and economic growth by 2047.

Farmer welfare remains a priority, with Rythu Bharosa, crop-loan waiver and Rythu Bima benefiting farmers. Irrigation facilities are being expanded through the Sitarama Lift Irrigation Scheme and Paleru Link Canal to bring additional ayacut under for women are among the major initiatives. Roads, drinking water, sanitation, drainage and urban infrastructure are being developed across Khammam district. Mining revenue is being utilised for development in mining-affected areas, while skill training and sports facilities are being promoted for youth. Tourism projects at Khilla, Paleru, Nelakondapalli and Madhira are also being taken up, he said. The government's objective is to combine economic growth with welfare and ensure that the benefits of development reach all sections of society, Mr Vikramarka said.

Development, welfare top priority

Bhadradri Kothagudem (TSIT): Development and welfare have been given top priority by the Telangana government, Minister Tummala Nageswara Rao said during the Independence Day celebrations at Pragathi Maidan in kothagudem. He said the main canal and three pump houses of the Sitarama project had been completed, providing irrigation to 1,11,818 acres of Nagarjunasagar ayacut through the Enkur Link Canal. The project is providing irrigation to 1,57,574 acres of new ayacut in Bhadradri Kothagudem and Khammam districts, while steps are being taken to stabilise another 42,935 acres. More than 1.29 lakh acres are receiving irrigation through the canal in Aswapuram mandal. The government has sanctioned Rs.350 crore for the development of the Bhadrachalam Sri Sitarama Chandraswamy temple ahead of the Godavari Pushkarams. Works are being taken up on a fast track to provide facilities to devotees. A railway line from Pandurangapuram to Malkangiri has also been sanctioned, with efforts underway to extend the works up to Sarapaka. Land acquisition is in progress for the proposed greenfield airport at Kothagudem. Under the farm loan waiver scheme, loans worth Rs.455.33 crore belonging to 63,614 farmers have been waived. The district is emerging as a major centre for oil palm and cocoa cultivation, with oil palm grown in 91,438 acres. Over 9.67 lakh people are benefiting from the food security scheme. Under Mahalaxmi and Gruha Jyothi, LPG cylinders are being supplied at Rs.500 and free power up to 200 units is being provided to 1,88,964 consumers.

Women in the district have made 5.44 crore free bus journeys so far. Through Indira Mahila Shakti and Stree Nidhi, loans are being provided to women's groups to promote self-employment and businesses. As many as 19,008 houses have been provided to beneficiaries under various housing schemes.

activities. The occasion also highlighted the role of healthcare in nation-building, with hospital teams continuing emergency, critical care and essential medical services throughout the day. The celebrations reaffirmed the hospitals’ commitment to providing accessible, compassionate and quality healthcare towards building a healthier and stronger India.

IRIFM Celebrates 80th Independence Day

Secunderabad, August 15: The Indian Railways Institute of Financial Management (IRIFM) celebrated the 80th Independence Day with patriotic fervour and enthusiasm at its Moula Ali campus. Dr. K.V.V. Satyanarayana, Additional Director General/IRIFM, unfurled the Tricolour and addressed the gathering comprising officer trainees, faculty and staff. In his Independence Day address, the ADG highlighted the significant achievements and ongoing transformation of Indian Railways, emphasising the pivotal role of its workforce and training institutions in strengthening the organisation and contributing to the nation’s growth. Highlighting the progress of IRIFM during the year 2025-26, he informed that the Institute conducted 71 courses, trained 2,976 officers and staff and generated 13,530 trainee days. compared with 35 courses in the previous year. Since commencement of training in 2019-20, IRIFM has conducted 221 courses and trained 7,627 officers and staff. The ADG also highlighted several major milestones achieved by the Institute during the year, including the receipt of the three-star “Utkrisht” accreditation under the National Standards for Civil Service Training Institutions 2.0 framework of the Capacity Building Commission; foundation of CHIRAG Centre for HR Information Systems, Research and Analytics in Governance; commissioning of a fully equipped Digital Studio; completion of the seventh batch of the flagship programme on Forensic Accounting, Corporate and Government Accounting and Finance; and strengthening of collaborations with various leading institutions. He also highlighted the expanding training mandate of IRIFM, which now caters to officers and probationers from different disciplines, including Accounts and Health, besides various specialised and customised programmes for Indian Railways. The ADG appreciated the dedicated efforts of the faculty and staff in meeting the growing training requirements of the organisation. He called upon the IRIFM family to continue striving for excellence and to work towards taking the Institute from Utkrisht to Ati-Utkrisht. The celebrations also featured cultural performances by IRHS Probationary Doctors undergoing training at IRIFM, adding to the patriotic spirit and festive atmosphere of the occasion. The programme concluded with a reaffirmation of IRIFM’s commitment to excellence in training and capacity building for Indian Railways.

Five army personnel missing after flash flood in Arunachal

Itanagar, Aug 15: Five Army personnel went missing after a flash flood triggered by heavy rainfall swept away two shelters at an Army camp in Arunachal Pradesh's Dibang Valley district, while four people were killed in a major landslide at a road construction site in Upper Subansiri district, officials said on Saturday. According to the State Emergency Operations Centre, both incidents occurred on Friday evening.

The landslide occurred at the Keojaring-Byaching road cutting site in Upper Subansiri, where several people were reportedly trapped under the debris.

Four people — Tadu Baki, Taji Rai, Markosh Basumatari and Babul Ali — were reported dead. The body of Babul Ali has been recovered, the district disaster management officer said.

Personnel from Nacho Police Station have been deployed for search and recovery operations. Fire and Emergency Services personnel are being mobilised from Daporijo, while a State Disaster Response Force (SDRF) team will assist in the operation.

In Dibang Valley, two shelters at the 5th Grenadier's Pasu Pani Army Camp were washed away by a flash flood caused by heavy rainfall on Friday evening.

Officials said seven Army personnel were swept away in the flood, of whom two were subsequently rescued. Five remain missing. They have been identified as Havaldar Upendar and Army personnel Kundan, Vinod, Aditya and Samunda. Two search and rescue teams from the 5th Grenadier have been deployed to trace the missing personnel. Teams from the 58th Battalion of the Indo-Tibetan Border Police, 62 RCC of the General Reserve Engineer Force, local volunteers and the Arunachal Pradesh Police have also been sent to assist in the search operation. An SDRF team from Pasighat is proceeding to Anini to assist in the rescue efforts.

INDIA AT 80: THE NATION THAT STOPPED WAITING

India marks its 80th Independence Day today, and with it, eight decades of a nation's argument with its own destiny. Every anniversary is an occasion to celebrate; this one is an occasion to reckon, with the battles fought within our borders and beyond them, with the price paid for the freedom we now take for granted, and with the distance travelled from a fragile young republic to a civilisation that once again speaks in its own voice. There was a time, not so long ago, when India was reduced in the Western imagination to a curiosity: the land of snake charmers, a country whose poverty was assumed and whose potential was doubted. Visitors from the West arrived expecting to be unimpressed and often were. We had no seat at the high table of diplomacy; at best, we were permitted to stand at its edge, non-aligned by policy and, in truth, unaligned with power itself. The world's trajectory was decided elsewhere. India watched and waited. That India no longer exists. Today's India is not non-aligned; it is multi-aligned, courted rather than courting. We are among the world's five largest economies, and when we choose to deepen economic ties with a nation, the relationship reshapes not just our future but theirs. We no longer wait at the edge of the table; we help set its terms. The West, out of old habit, still offers its sermons on democracy. But India's answer is no longer rhetoric, it is our young population building, launching, and governing a future of its own making. Indian private enterprise now reaches into space without waiting on the state's permission or purse. A generation once caricatured for its restlessness is, in fact, laying the foundations of what may well be remembered as the Indian century. None of this arrived without cost. For nearly four decades, half of independent India's life, the nation has fought a war that was never formally declared: Pakistan-sponsored terrorism in Jammu and Kashmir and beyond. From Pulwama to Pahalgam, the intent behind these attacks was never only to kill civilians and spread fear. It was to slow India down, to choke a rising power in its own blood before it could rise further. Pakistan, having failed its own people, chose instead to export chaos to ours. That strategy has not gone unanswered. The surgical strikes of 2016, following the Uri terror attack, and the Balakot airstrikes of 2019, following the Pulwama attack, announced a new doctrine of response. But Operation Sindoor in 2025, launched after the Pahalgam attack, marked a paradigm shift, a demonstration that India's patience has limits, and its reach does not. The image of a base near Rawalpindi in flames is one that Pakistan's military establishment will not soon forget. India intends that it shouldn't. Alongside this external vigilance came an internal reckoning. The abrogation of Article 370 in 2019 closed a chapter of manufactured separatism that had defined Jammu and Kashmir for over three decades, opening instead a slow, uneven, but real path toward development and opportunity. Change in J&K was never going to arrive overnight after decades of neglect, but it has, finally, begun to arrive. Elsewhere, in the forests and hinterlands of the Red Corridor, another war quietly turned.

Tracing India's Journey Through PM Modi's Independence Day Speeches

There is a simple way to measure the distance India has travelled in the last decade: listen to the prime minister's Independence Day speeches. Things have changed; it is undeniable. But what has also changed is the very nature of what Prime Minister Narendra Modi has to talk about. In the early years of the Modi government, the speeches were often about problems that we may today consider as ordinary: toilets, electricity, poverty, roads, bank accounts, fertiliser shortages. But the prime minister's tone was urgent when he addressed them. The challenge was to fix what was broken, reach those who had been left out. Over the years, his vocabulary began to change. The conversation moved from access to aspiration, from plugging gaps to building capabilities, from solving immediate problems to creating systems that could prevent those problems from defining India again. From dignity to delivery and onwards to dreams - that has been the trajectory our nation has taken in just about 13 years of PM Modi's leadership. Perhaps that is also why the length and sweep of his Independence Day addresses have become a phenomenon in themselves. For a prime minister whose working life is famously relentless, the sheer time devoted to presenting the nation's journey from the Red Fort is telling. These are not simply annual speeches; read together, they become something closer to a running record of the country's transformation. And there is no better starting point than the promise PM Modi made in 2023. He said, in part, "When I came in 2014, I came with a promise of change. Through reform, perform, transform, I have turned this promise into belief. Based on my performance, you blessed me once again in 2019. The next five years will be the years of unprecedented development." It will be impossible to analyse every change, but using the Independence Day speeches as a lens, let's look backwards before looking forward. If "unprecedented development" was the promise, the Independence Day speeches provide an unusually revealing way of asking: what happened to the problems that once occupied the prime minister's attention? The answer lies in how India moved from firefighting to future-proofing. When Poverty Became A Possibility We Could Defeat In 2014, poverty was presented as a national challenge requiring a national resolve. PM Modi asked, "If the people of India could remove such a big empire without the power of the government, without weapons and even without resources, then friends, it is the need of the hour to eradicate poverty, can we not overcome poverty? Can we not defeat poverty?" Seven years later, in the midst of a once-in-a-century pandemic, he said, "The way India has kept the stoves burning in the poor households by providing free food grains to 80 crore countrymen continuously for months during the pandemic is not only astonishing to the world but also a matter of discussion." Readers should appreciate that a decade is a minuscule period in the trajectory of a billion-plus nation. And by 2023, the vocabulary had moved beyond simply fighting poverty, to measuring people who had escaped it: "In my first five-year term, 13.5 crore of my fellow poor brothers and sisters have been freed from the chains of poverty and entered the new middle class. There can be no greater satisfaction in life than this." By 2026, when PM Modi reiterated how 25 crore people had risen out of poverty, it was nothing less than a declaration that we were finally and perhaps for the first time in our history arresting the backward slide and beginning to move forward. The courage to dream big and achieve big is the hallmark of the new India, and the world has been forced to take note of our efforts. The welfare reached the people, and the nation reached for the stars. Few contrasts capture the transformation better than the distance between the 2014 and 2026 speeches. In 2014, the prime minister spoke about something as fundamental as sanitation and dignity: "Can't we just make arrangements for toilets for the dignity of our mothers and sisters?" That was the India that needed to solve first-order problems. But the same national conversation eventually reached semiconductors. This year, announcing seven to eight new semiconductor plants in the pipeline, the prime minister hinted at technological sovereignty. In today's digital world and the age of technology, we understand the importance of chips. Whether it is electronic goods, medical equipment or transportation systems, chips are indispensable to all of them. Without chips, the entire world could come to a standstill.

We were still building, but the 'what' had changed dramatically. We once built for our most basic needs. Today, it builds for the world's most advanced ones. Similarly, in 2016, PM Modi spoke of basic rural infrastructure, that rural roads are a perpetual issue in our country. Every rural citizen craves for pakka roads. In 2025, India's Gaganyaan aimed at becoming aatmanirbhar with tasks like building our own space station. This year, PM Modi spoke about how a homegrown startup was able to send a rocket to space in a first attempt. We are still thinking of connectivity, but in a little over a decade, it has moved from the gamin ilaaka (rural areas) to the great beyond, as outer space is often referred to. There are far too many examples that can be sought out, as they should be - because they show us how far we have come, and how we are going to continue ahead at full steam - all aboard the reform express. Startup India, the prime minister's flagship initiative that redefined how young India viewed the future, is a perfect example. In 2015, it was a resolve. "I have to provide strength to startups and, therefore, I resolve that in the coming days 'Startup India' and 'Stand-up India' will be there." A year later, the resolve had become an ambition to ensure that no district or block was left untouched by startups. By 2021, startups were becoming unicorns; by 2023, India had entered the world's top three startup ecosystems. And by 2025, more than 300 Indian startups were operating in the space sector alone. Nari Shakti Becomes Changemaker Consider once the significance of this journey for India's women, our Nari Shakti. They had to wait for darkness due to lack of toilets - something that the prime minister spoke of in his very first Independence Day address. By 2018, he declared that institutional doors into the armed forces, including the Permanent Commission, had been thrown open to them. By 2023, women in villages were becoming entrepreneurs, technology users and leaders. It is indeed fulfilling to see that while on the one hand our CEOs are dominating the global business landscape, on the other hand one crore mothers and sisters joined women self-help groups and are becoming 'lakhpati didis'. By 2025, PM Modi told us that our Nari Shakti is dominating startups, space, sports and the armed forces and in 2026, he assured that soon, we will see six crore 'lakhpati didis' bolstering our rural economy. We have moved beyond simply empowering women by making them leaders and epicentres of transformation. From ensuring basic dignity towards ensuring 33 per cent representation in parliament and state assemblies. Are these not women-led development in action? The real story of these speeches, then, is not merely what India has achieved, but how profoundly its sense of possibility has changed. PM Modi's speeches are perhaps the clearest measure of change. They show how a nation acquired the confidence to solve problems that once seemed impossible. That is the real audacity of a nation's ambition: to dream bigger, and having travelled far enough to have the confidence and the conviction to transform those dreams into reality.

NOAKHALI TO PARLIAMENT, WHAT GANDHI, NEHRU, JINNAH AND FAIZ WERE DOING ON AUG 15, 1947

On February 20, 1947, British Prime Minister Clement Attlee announced that the British would leave India. On June 3, Viceroy Lord Louis Mountbatten published a plan to transfer power in the next 72 days. The task included the partition of the subcontinent, dividing its army, civil service, railways, police and postal system, and apportioning the respective share of assets down to the office equipment, etc. Mountbatten had a tear-off calendar at his table that showed how many days were left to complete the task. On August 15, 1947, the country's first Prime Minister, Jawaharlal Nehru, made a ringing speech inside Parliament at midnight, saying, "Long ago we made a tryst with destiny, and now the time comes when we shall redeem our pledge..." Minutes after the historic speech, Nehru arrived at the Viceregal Palace (now Rashtrapati Bhavan) to formally invite Mountbatten to become independent India's Governor-General, and handed him an envelope that supposedly contained the names of his Council of Ministers. Perhaps in the excitement of independence, someone had sealed the envelope without putting the list inside. An 'Inauspicious' Day For Mountbatten Some astrologers had considered August 15, 1947, to be inauspicious, but for Mountbatten, it was a red-letter day. In 1945, Tokyo was surrendered by the Japanese Army, where Mountbatten was serving as Allied Supreme Commander. August 15, 1945, is remembered as Victory over Japan (V-J) Day. Across the border, Pakistan came into being on August 14. It was the 26th day of the ongoing month of Ramazan when Mohammad Ali Jinnah hosted a lunch for Lord Mountbatten, while many in the newly created Islamic state were observing fast. Interestingly, Pakistan should have come into existence on August 15. The Indian Independence Act, promulgated on July 18, 1947, in the British Parliament, reads, "As from the fifteenth day of August, nineteen hundred and forty-seven, two independent Dominions shall be set up in India, to be known respectively as India and Pakistan." Thus, legally, Pakistan should have come into existence on August 15, 1947. But August 14 became the official date because Mountbatten had to travel from Karachi to New Delhi. At the time of our country's independence, Mahatma Gandhi was walking barefoot from village to village in Noakhali district of Bengal, in a hostile atmosphere created by riots, making people take a pledge not to kill others. He carried holy books, appealing to Hindus as well as Muslims to ensure peace. There was a moving incident in a village, where Gandhi reportedly asked the local Hindus and Muslims to come out of their hutments for a common prayer and a common pledge for peace. But nobody turned up. Gandhi waited for half an hour in vain. He then came up with an ingenious plan. He approached young boys with a ball and remarked, "Small kids from this village, your parents are frightened of each other, but what fright can you have? Elderly Hindus and Muslims might be frightened of one another. But children are innocent. You are children of God. I am inviting you to play the game of ball." After playing with them for half an hour, Gandhi told villagers, "You have no courage, but if you want that courage, induct it from your children." The Visit To Kingsway Hospital When Gandhi returned to Delhi, he learnt that his disciple, Subhadra Joshi, was hospitalised at Kingsway Hospital in Delhi. Gandhi came to visit her. He asked Subhadra how many innocent lives had been lost in Delhi due to the communal violence. When Subhadra speculated that the figure could be more than a thousand, Gandhi asked if it included some Congress peace-workers too. Subhadra recalled that Gandhi was dismayed to hear her reply, 'none', and he wondered how he could believe that she and the other Congress peace-workers had tried to save innocent lives.

ATTACK ON SUKHBIR BADAL:

TIME TO HEAL, TIME TO RETHINK PANTHAK POLITICS

A sacred Sikh space in the Deccan has become the setting for a question Punjab can no longer avoid. What happens when religious identity, grievance and violence begin appearing too closely together? The motive behind the attack on Sukhbir Singh Badal remains under investigation. But the incident raises questions about the direction of Sikh public discourse. I was in Nanded in June, walking through a city where Sikh history feels inseparable from the cultural world around it. Takht Sachkhand Sri Hazur Sahib is a holy centre of enormous importance, associated with Guru Gobind Singh's final days in 1708 and the continuing Sikh presence in the Deccan. That experience challenged the neat categories through which many of us in Delhi have understood Sikhi. Sikhs in the Deccan have absorbed the cultural landscape around them without surrendering their own identity. Then, back in London, came the news that Sukhbir Singh Badal had been attacked inside a gurdwara in Nanded by Jaspal Singh, identified by police as a Nihang. Badal reportedly suffered a penetrating wound to his hand and underwent surgery. A Faith That Leaves Room For Mercy The question is larger than Badal. He carries political baggage. The sacrilege incidents of 2015, during the Akali-BJP government, caused a wound that cannot be dismissed in religious life. The controversies around the handling of those cases and the religious pardon granted to Sirda Dera chief Ram Rahim by the then Jathedar of the Akal Takht for an earlier instance of blasphemy, followed by its revocation, remain embedded in Sikh memory. Badal later sought Panthak and religious forgiveness for wrongdoings committed during his years in power. Sikhi gives considerable space to confession, correction and forgiveness. Gurbani places daya at the heart of the Sikh moral imagination. "Make compassion the cotton, contentment the thread, modesty the knot and truth the twist." — Guru Nanak, Ang 471, Sri Guru Granth Sahib The Guru turns daya into the material from which the sacred thread of the soul is made. Compassion is foundational. Guru Arjan, the fifth Guru, describes the Divine as: "The Supreme Being is the treasure of mercy, compassionate and forgiving." So what should religious wrongdoing produce? A demand for accountability, repentance and justice. The answer cannot be presumed to be violence. And in Nanded, with the motive still unknown, it would be irresponsible to presume that it was. The Nihangs And A Damaging Headline There is another uncomfortable part of this story. The Nihang order has a long and important place in Sikh history, associated with martial service, protection of Sikh institutions and distinctive traditions. In recent years, however, Nihangs have repeatedly entered public headlines for the wrong reasons. In England, the murder of 18-year-old Henry Nowak by Vickrum Digwa became entangled in public discussion about Sikh identity, the kirpan and the convicted attacker's association with Nihang traditions. Sikh organisations condemned the murder. The case also generated wider hostility and misinformation around Sikhs in Britain this year. Now Nanded brings the Nihang identity back into headlines, this time through an attack on the head of the Shiromani Akali Dal inside a gurdwara. This recurring association with acts of violence in public discourse should concern the Sikh community. A tradition known for the kirpan, a symbol whose name is traditionally linked to kirpa, or grace, cannot allow a sword used as an attacking weapon to become its most visible public language. Looking Beyond The Panthak Space Badal is at his strongest when he acts as a public figure for Punjab in all its diversity. Last year, when floods ravaged the state, he was on the ground. During the farmers' agitation, he stood beside farmers.

Shivakumar joins Freedom Festival with Tricolour in Bengaluru

Bengaluru : Chief Minister DK Shivakumar enthusiastically participated in the “Freedom Festival” held in Vidhana Soudha on Saturday as part of the 80th Independence Day celebrations.

Carrying the Tricolour on his shoulders, the Chief Minister walked along the road in front of Vidhana Soudha. Nurses from different places, members of the Women’s Awareness Committee and representatives of the Waste Pickers Association joined him in the march. The CM waved to the youth, children and parents gathered along both sides of the road.

A Sikh man wearing a turban and playing the trumpet welcomed the Chief Minister. Shivakumar also shook hands with a Sikh child wearing a patka.

He later visited the “Freedom Wall” and signed autographs. He played the instrument which was with the children who performed Freedom Festival.

the traditional Byaari dance, adding to the festive atmosphere.

The Chief Minister also visited exhibition stalls showcasing the culture of various districts of Karnataka and learnt about their contributions to the freedom struggle.

He interacted with women and young girls dressed in costumes representing different states and infused them with enthusiasm.

At the stalls, he mingled with children and posed for photographs with people dressed as Kittur Rani Chennamma and Sangolli Rayanna. The Chief Minister also visited the photo booth at Vidhana Soudha and posed for photographs, adding to the celebratory spirit of the Freedom Festival.

Role of youth is very important in building Bhavaikya Bharat : Chinnappa Y. Chikkagade Anekal: Chinnappa Y. Chikkagade recipient of National Youth Award winner of the Government of India, said that the role of youth is very important in building a moral India. He spoke while participating in the 80th Independence Day flag hoisting program held at Muttanallur village panchayat of the taluk.

He said that India has the largest youth population in the world and the future of the country lies in the hands of the youth. He expressed regret that in recent days, youths are prone to various evils including drug addiction, and all sections of the society are responsible for this. We got freedom as a result of many great men sacrificing their lives for the freedom of India. Today, India is one of the fastest growing countries in the world and he called upon the youth to imbibe Indian culture and customs and take responsibility for building a better environment. Muttanallur village panchayat former president K. Vishwanath Reddy said that everyone in India should prioritize Bharatam first. Respect and obey parents and elders. He said that the attitude of raising voice against the injustice and illegalities in the society should be developed. Nagaratna Kantaraju, Bengaluru: ARC Cancer Hospital on Saturday launched a personalised cancer screening initiative for men and women above 40, seeking to make preventive oncology a routine and accessible healthcare intervention and shift the focus from fear of cancer to early detection and informed action.

Launched on Independence Day under the theme ‘Break Free from Cancer Fear’, the initiative brings together preventive oncology consultation, laboratory investigations, imaging, selected cancer-specific screening, tumour-marker testing and personalised cancer-risk assessment.

ARC Cancer Hospital launches personalised cancer screening drive for 40-plus vidual’s age, medical history, lifestyle and family history.

Speaking at the launch, ARC Cancer Hospital Co-founder and Managing Director Dr Srihari R Shapur said affordability and lack of awareness remained major barriers to cancer screening, particularly among middle-class and rural populations.

He said fear and social stigma surrounding cancer often prevented people from undergoing screening at an early stage. “Preventive oncology is not about creating fear, but about identifying cancer at an early stage, when treatment can be less intensive and outcomes considerably better,” Dr Shapur said.

He said screening packages for people above 40 could include oncology consultations, blood investigations, imaging and tests aimed at detecting common cancers.

“Women could undergo mammography and other appropriate examinations, while men could be assessed for prostate-related risks, among other common cancers,” he said.

The initiative also places emphasis on family medical history, with people having a strong family history of cancer being considered for genetic counselling and, where appropriate, genetic

KCPA Inaugurated to Strengthen Clinical Perfusion and Patient Care

Bengaluru : The Karnataka Clinical Perfusionists Association (KCPA) was formally inaugurated in Bengaluru with the objective of bringing together clinical perfusionists across Karnataka, strengthening professional standards, promoting education and research, and enhancing patient safety and quality of care. A Clinical Perfusionist book was also launched during the programme.

Padma Shri Dr. C. N. Manjunath, Member of Parliament, graced the occasion as the Chief Guest, while Prof. Rajesh Shenoy was present as the Guest of Honour. The programme brought together senior clinical perfusionists, healthcare professionals and representatives of allied healthcare organisations.

Those present at the programme included Mr. Madhan Kumar, Scientific Committee, KCPA; Mr. Krishna Prasad T H, President, KCPA; Mr. Gopu Sabapathy, General Secretary, KCPA; Mr. John Peter Patrick, Joint Secretary, KCPA; Mr. Lok

Nath Tiwari, General Secretary, ISECT; and Mr. Tejas Manju, Executive Committee, KCPA.

Clinical perfusionists play a vital role in cardiac surgery and critical care. During open-heart surgery, they operate and manage the heart-lung machine while continuously monitoring and managing the patient’s physiological condition. They provide life-sustaining extracorporeal support by maintaining circulation and oxygenation and facilitating carbon dioxide removal while surgeons operate on the heart.

Their responsibilities have expanded beyond conventional cardiopulmonary bypass to include ECMO, extracorporeal life support, ventricular assist devices, circulatory support, organ transplantation and other advanced extracorporeal therapies.

KCPA aims to promote high standards of clinical perfusion practice and patient safety, encourage continuing professional education and training, facilitate scientific conferences and workshops, promote research and evidence-based practices, and create opportunities for professional collaboration and knowledge sharing. It will also support young and aspiring perfusionists in their academic and professional development.

With rapid advances in robotic and minimally invasive cardiac surgery, heart and lung transplantation, deep hypothermic circulatory arrest, ECMO, isolated limb perfusion and HIPEC, the role of clinical perfusionists has become increasingly specialised and critical.

The association plans to strengthen professional competencies through continuing medical education, scientific conferences, hands-on training, advanced simulation programmes and international institutional collaborations. The inauguration of KCPA marks a significant new chapter for clinical perfusionists in Karnataka, with the association committed to excellence, integrity, innovation and patient-centred care and to strengthening the recognition and advancement of the profession.

Vasavi Educational Institution Celebrates 80th Independence Day with Patriotic Spirit

Bengaluru : The 80th Independence Day was celebrated with patriotic fervour and national pride at Vasavi Educational Institution in Vijayanagar, Bengaluru.

The programme was held under the leadership of Sri D.R. Vijaya Sarathi, Secretary, Vasavi Educational Institutions. Dr. Shivanna, President, Akhila Karnataka Ex-Servicemen Foundation, was the Chief Guest and unfurled the national flag on the occasion.

Addressing the gathering, Dr. Shivanna urged the younger generation to place the nation above everything else and actively contribute to nation-building. He called upon students to always remember the sacrifices of the great leaders who fought for India’s freedom and the brave soldiers who continue to safeguard the nation.

“Education should go hand in hand with discipline, honesty and patriotism. Every young person should develop the spirit of ‘Nation First – We Come Next’ and contribute responsibly towards the progress and development of the country,” he said.

The celebrations featured patriotic songs and cultural programmes presented by the students, creating an atmosphere of national pride and enthusiasm. The programme was attended by the principals, teaching and non-teaching staff, students and parents of the institution.

‘Bhavishya Belaku Trust’ President Girish Nelkudri celebrated a meaningful Independence Day with special-minded children

Bengaluru: On this special occasion, when the 80th Independence Day celebrations are in full swing across the country, ‘Bhavishya Belaku Charitable Trust’ celebrated the national festival in a different way by spreading the message of love and humanity to the society.

Under the leadership of Girish Nelkudri, the president of the trust, the Independence Day celebrations were celebrated with great pomp and show with the special-minded and visually impaired children of ‘Sri Manukula Charitable & Educational Trust’.

Special cultural programmes were organized for the visually impaired children. The children celebrated by showcasing their talents. Special lunch arrangement: As part of the celebration, Girish Nelkudri lovingly arranged a special lunch for the children.

Everyone should remember the sacrifice, selflessness and patriotism of the great men who fought for freedom: S. Manohar Bengaluru: MEI President S. Manohar has called that Everyone should remember the sacrifice, selflessness and patriotism of the great men who fought for the country’s freedom, including Mahatma Gandhiji, Sangolli Rayanna, Mangal Pandey and everyone to adopt the ideals of the freedom fighters in their lives and contribute to the development of the country in their own way.

The 80th Independence Day was celebrated meaningfully at the premises of The Mysore Electrical Industries Limited (MEI). Speaking after hoisting the flag, he remembered the sacrifice and selflessness of the freedom fighters who fought for the country’s freedom.

Established in 1945, MEI has a history dating back to before independence and has been making its own contribution to the progress of the country’s industrial and electrical sectors, he said.

The Managing Director of the company said that as a result of the sincere efforts and commitment of all the officers, employees and staff, the company has achieved a good production target in 2024-25 and 2025-26 and has earned a profit of about Rs.52 crore. He said that everyone should work together, with greater commitment and responsibility for the development and progress of the company in the coming days. The Managing Director of the company, Mrs. Anita C., General Manager, Mr. Sharanappa, officers Thimmanna, Sudhir, Santosh, Manjunath, Huliappa, Babasaheb Muchandi, Malashree Hoskote, Keerthi, Prabhakar, along with the officers, employees and the presidents and office bearers of the employees’ association of the company were present at the program.

CM Vijay calls for corruption-free Tamil Nadu in maiden Independence Day address

After hoisting the National Flag, Vijay outlined the achievements of the TVK-led government during its first three months in office and listed its priorities for the coming years.

CHENNAI: Chief Minister C Joseph Vijay, in his maiden Independence Day address from the ramparts of Fort St George on Saturday (August 15), called upon citizens and government officials to work towards making Tamil Nadu a corruption-free State. After hoisting the National Flag, Vijay outlined the achievements of the TVK-led government during its first three months in office and listed its priorities for the coming years. "Freedom from corruption and bribery is equal to independence. The TVK-led government is working towards achieving this goal. The government is being administered on the principles of transparency, corruption-free governance, a drug-free Tamil Nadu, women's safety and social justice," he said. Vijay asserted that there would be no compromise on public life and people's welfare, which he described as the government's priority. On the State's relationship with the Union government, he said Tamil Nadu would coordinate with the Centre on administrative matters. However, the State government would oppose any policy decision that went against Tamil Nadu's interests.

The awards were presented by Chief Minister Vijay as part of the 80th Independence Day celebrations at the ramparts of Fort St George, where he also hoisted the national flag and delivered his maiden Independence Day address as Chief Minister.....

Coimbatore college student murder | Amuthan named alleged marijuana users; mother claims list submitted to college, police

MADURAI: The mother of murdered Coimbatore college student Amuthan on Friday alleged that the college administration had obtained a written statement from her son naming students allegedly involved in marijuana use on the campus, challenging the official version that it was due to enmity between student groups, also rebutting the attempts by college management to distance itself from the controversy. Amuthan (19), a third-year student of Hindusthan College of Engineering, was allegedly attacked and killed by a group of more than 20 persons on August 10. Speaking to reporters at a press meet organised by Evidence, a Madurai-based human rights NGO, Amuthan's mother Sumathi said the college administration had questioned her son about the alleged use of marijuana among students after sending his parents out of the room. "They sent us out and obtained a written statement from Amuthan," she said. Evidence Executive Director A Kathir, who met the family as part of a fact-finding exercise, demanded that the police investigate the list. "The list is now with the police. The police should investigate the matter based on the list," Kathir said. He also alleged that one member of the four-member college administration team that questioned Amuthan had disclosed the list outside the college. He therefore demanded that the police investigate the alleged involvement of the college administration in the case. The latest development directly questions the police version that the murder was due to enmity between juniors and seniors.

Days after ban, FSSAI lifts prohibition on 11 liquor brands

CHENNAI: Days after it banned the sale of 11 liquor brands manufactured by Enrica Enterprises Private Limited, the Food Safety and Standards Authority of India (FSSAI) revoked the prohibition order, prompting Prohibition and Excise Commissioner R Gajalakshmi to write to the TASMAL managing director to withdraw the ban on the products. Gajalakshmi, in a letter dated Aug 14, said the FSSAI's Southern Regional Office had informed the department that the prohibition order issued on Aug 11 against the 11 brands had been revoked with immediate effect. The FSSAI said the order was revoked under Section 36(3)(b) of the Food Safety and Standards Act, 2006. However, its latest communication did not specify the reasons for withdrawing the prohibition order. The development came after TASMAL had on Aug 13 directed its senior regional managers, district managers and depot managers to stop transferring the 11 brands from depots to retail outlets. It had also stopped their sale to FL2 and FL3 licence holders and instructed retail outlets not to sell the products until further orders. The action followed an FSSAI inspection at Enrica Enterprises' licensed premises in Poonamallee, Tiruvallur district. Its Aug 11 prohibition order had cited the presence of natural-identical and artificial flavouring substances in the products. The 11 brands are Enrica Old Indie Classic Dark Rum, VSOP Exshaw Gold Brandy, Louis Vernant XO Blended Premium Brandy, McDowell's VSOP Brandy, No.1 McDowell's Fine Brandy, Enrica VSOP Select Brandy, Enrica Platinum Reserve XO Brandy, Enrica Premium French Brandy, Veeran Special Brandy, Honey Bee Fine Brandy and Men's Club Deluxe Brandy.

CHENNAI: BJP state chief Nainar Nagenthiran triggered a political row on Saturday with remarks targeting Tamil Nadu Chief Minister C Joseph Vijay, drawing strong condemnation from Minister A Rajmohan. The remarks, which Nagenthiran presented as a response to Vijay's "kutti kathai" (short story) criticising DMK president MK Stalin, drew condemnation from political parties.

Speaking at a party event at Kamalalayam, the BJP state headquarters here, Nagenthiran mockingly remarked, "When people search for a father in the house and cannot find him, they should ask the mother at home to know who the father is." The remarks sparked widespread backlash, with several leaders condemning them as derogatory and disrespectful. Vijay had narrated a "kutti kathai" in the Assembly following the DMK's defeat in the April 2026 Assembly election, referring humorously to the whereabouts of the opposition leader's "father" in an apparent allusion to Stalin's electoral defeat in the Kolathur Assembly constituency. Several political parties, including the DMK, had criticised Vijay's remarks. Speaking to reporters here, Rajmohan strongly condemned the BJP state chief's remarks, calling them "uncivilised and inappropriate" for a political leader. He said Vijay had taught his colleagues to engage in civilised politics regardless of provocations or personal attacks. Former BJP president K Annamalai also condemned Nagenthiran's remarks, saying he had crossed the boundaries of political decorum and civility. Annamalai said political disagreements and questioning the government's actions were part of democratic discourse, but personal attacks against a leader's family, particularly their mother, were unacceptable and represented a regressive, "third-rate" form of politics that should not be encouraged among the younger generation.

Measles surge in Mongolia crosses 14,000 cases, health authorities urge full vaccination

Ulan Bator, Feb 9: Mongolia is witnessing a sharp rise in measles infections, with the total number of confirmed cases climbing to 14,123, the National Centre for Communicable Diseases (NCCD) announced on Monday. Health officials said most of the newly reported infections have been detected among school-going children who had received only a single dose of the measles vaccine. Citing this trend, the NCCD strongly advised parents to ensure that children complete the recommended two-dose vaccination schedule to guard against what can be a serious and potentially life-threatening illness. Measles is among the most contagious viral diseases known. It spreads through direct contact with respiratory secretions released when an infected person coughs or sneezes, as well as through airborne transmission. The virus can remain infectious in the air or on surfaces for up to two hours, making it extremely easy to spread. Experts note that one person with measles can infect as many as 18 others. Although measles can affect people of all ages, children are particularly vulnerable. Health authorities emphasised that vaccination remains the most effective defence, protecting individuals from severe illness while also preventing community transmission. The measles vaccine is considered safe and highly effective in helping the body build immunity against the virus.

Before the measles vaccine was introduced in 1963 and widely adopted, outbreaks occurred every two to three years and were responsible for an estimated 2.6 million deaths annually worldwide. Despite the availability of an affordable and reliable vaccine, measles continues to claim lives. In 2023 alone, an estimated 107,500 people — mostly children under the age of five — died from the disease. Symptoms typically appear 10 to 14 days after exposure. Early signs include a runny nose, persistent cough, red and watery eyes, and small white spots inside the mouth. A characteristic rash usually develops between 7 and 18 days after infection, starting on the face and upper neck before spreading across the body, including the arms and legs. The rash generally lasts five to six days before gradually fading. Health authorities in Mongolia have reiterated the importance of timely vaccination to curb the outbreak and prevent further spread, especially among children.

Epilepsy treatable, stigma still keeps patients away from care: doctors

New Delhi, Feb 9: Epilepsy, a neurological disorder marked by repeated seizures due to abnormal electrical activity in the brain, affects more than 15 million people in India. Yet, despite its high prevalence, doctors say many patients delay or avoid medical treatment because of fear, social stigma and deep-rooted misconceptions, particularly in small towns and rural areas. Medical experts emphasise that epilepsy should be treated like any other chronic condition such as diabetes or hypertension. With regular medication, nearly 70 per cent of patients can achieve good seizure control. For those who do not respond to drugs, advanced treatment options now available in India offer renewed hope and improved quality of life. Explaining the condition, Dr Madhukar Bhardwaj, Director and Head of Neurology at Aakash Healthcare, said seizures occur when the brain's electrical signals behave abnormally for a short duration. This can cause symptoms such as shaking, falling, blank staring or loss of awareness. While some seizures are mild and brief, others can be severe and disruptive. Dr Bhardwaj pointed out that myths continue to discourage people from seeking hospital care. "Many still believe epilepsy is caused by ghosts or black magic, that it spreads through touch, or that patients cannot study, work or marry. Another harmful belief is putting objects into the mouth during a seizure. All these are false and can endanger the patient," he said. Dr Neha Kapoor, Associate Director and Head of Neurology at Asian Hospital, said epilepsy has multiple causes and, in many cases, no clear cause is identified. Genetic factors, head injury, brain infections like meningitis, stroke, lack of oxygen at birth and abnormal brain development are some known reasons. She clarified that while stress, sleep deprivation and alcohol can trigger seizures, they do not directly cause epilepsy. Highlighting diagnostic challenges, Dr Praveen Gupta, Chairman of Marengo Asia International Institute of Neuro and Spine, said epilepsy is often missed because not all seizures involve convulsions. "Some seizures appear as brief confusion or staring spells, which leads to delayed diagnosis. Early detection is critical for effective treatment," he said. Dr Gupta added that epilepsy affects people across all age groups, but fear and misinformation result in late referrals to specialists. With timely diagnosis and proper treatment, most patients can lead completely normal lives. He also noted that epilepsy surgery is being successfully performed in India for patients with drug-resistant epilepsy. Surgeons identify and treat the specific brain area responsible for seizures, and advanced techniques, including neuro-robotic procedures, are improving outcomes. Addressing another lesser-known aspect, Dr Vineet Malhotra, Principal Consultant in Urology and Andrology at SCM Healthcare, said epilepsy can also affect men's sexual health. Seizures, stress and some anti-seizure medications may impact hormones, energy levels and libido. However, he reassured that with counselling, lifestyle changes and medication adjustments, these issues can be effectively managed. Doctors collectively stressed that epilepsy is a medical condition.

Telangana HC shields biodiversity body from Income Tax notice

Hyderabad: A Telangana government-run biodiversity body cannot be taxed by the Centre, the High Court has ruled, quashing an Income Tax (I-T) department order that had frozen its bank accounts. Justices P Sam Koshy and Narsing Rao Nandikonda set aside the attachment notice issued against the Biodiversity Conservation Society of Telangana (BIOSOT), ruling on August 6 that its income falls squarely within the protection Article 289(1) of the Constitution gives to state government revenue against Union taxation. The bench went a step further than simply reading down the notice. It clarified that this protection is not a tax break Parliament could choose to withdraw, but a constitutional guarantee that kicks in automatically once income is shown to belong to the state. What BIOSOT is and why the HC ruling matters The verdict turned largely on how the High Court read BIOSOT's character. It was not an ordinary government company or a commercial arm of the state, the bench found, but a body doing sovereign work—conservation duties the Telangana government took up after the Supreme Court directed it to, when BIOSOT was reconstituted in 2014. Its board includes the Chief Secretary and other senior officials, and its mandate is drawn from the Wildlife Protection Act, the Forest Conservation Act and the Biological Diversity Act, tying it directly to the state's constitutional obligation to protect the environment under Article 48A. That combination—sovereign origin, statutory mandate, government control—is what persuaded the court that BIOSOT's money was, in law, the state's money. Dispute over frozen account Trouble began when the I-T department attached BIOSOT's bank accounts through a garnishee notice on December 5, 2025, prompting the society to move court, first in 2025 and again in 2026, after which both petitions were heard and decided together. I-T officials defended the move by pointing to a transaction from assessment year 2019-20, arguing that tax deducted at source under Section 194C applied and was payable. BIOSOT's response was that none of its money came from trade or business at all. Its funds are statutory contributions and payments ordered by courts, kept as a ring-fenced corpus, with only the interest earned spent on actual conservation work. The bench sided with BIOSOT on this, holding that the December 5 notice had been issued without jurisdiction and could not stand. BIOSOT was not an ordinary government company or a commercial arm of the state, the bench found, but a body doing sovereign work.

KDM's 'Bharat Ka Charger' Mobilises 1 Lakh+ Dealers to Honour India's Soldiers

Under its 'Bharat Ka Charger' Initiative, KDM pledges a portion of proceeds from every charger sold towards the education of children from Armed Forces families, transforming its nationwide dealer network into a powerful channel of gratitude and nation-building. Mumbai, August 15, 2026: KDM, the leading lifestyle & mobile accessories brand in India, has announced a nationwide commitment under its ongoing 'Bharat Ka Charger' Initiative, marking India's 80th Independence Day with a purpose-driven campaign dedicated to honouring the country's Armed Forces and supporting the education of children from Armed Forces families. With 1 lakh+ dealers nationwide, KDM India is turning its business network into a force for social impact. Under the initiative, a portion of proceeds from every charger sold will support the education of children from Armed Forces families, linking everyday purchases with a larger national purpose. The 'Bharat Ka Charger' Initiative honours the soldiers who stand at the frontline, protecting the freedom that enables every Indian to dream, build and grow. Through this initiative, KDM India aims to turn gratitude into meaningful action by supporting the education of children from Armed Forces families. N D Mali, Founder of KDM said, "Our soldiers protect the freedom that gives every Indian the opportunity to dream, build and progress. With more than one lakh dealers across the country, KDM India has the ability to turn its business network into a network of contribution. Through Bharat Ka Charger, every charger sold becomes a small gesture of gratitude towards those who protect Bharat and a contribution towards building a brighter future for their children." Through Bharat Ka Charger, KDM India aims to turn everyday purchases into meaningful contributions towards the education of children from Armed Forces families, bringing dealers and consumers together to make patriotism a part of everyday choices.

As Consumers Become More Conscious About What They Consume, BECO Brings Ingredient Transparency to Home Care

15th August 2026: Indian consumers today routinely examine ingredient lists on food, skincare and personal-care products before making a purchase, yet the same scrutiny is rarely applied to detergents, dishwashing liquids and other household products. These products are used every day and come into contact with clothes, utensils and household surfaces, while consumers often have limited visibility into their complete formulations. Unlike packaged food, home-care products in India are not generally required to declare their full ingredient lists, making it difficult for consumers to understand what individual ingredients do and why they are used. As the category evolves, the conversation is also moving beyond cleaning performance towards formulation, transparency and environmental responsibility, with global manufacturers exploring newer surfactants and preservation systems, including ingredients derived from renewable sources or designed to break down more efficiently after use. Addressing this gap, sustainable home-care brand BECO has launched #WarOnWhatsHidden, an initiative that encourages consumers to look beyond front-of-pack claims and understand what goes into the cleaning products they bring into their homes. The initiative draws attention to Benzisothiazolinone (BIT), a preservative commonly used in liquid detergents and household products. Published scientific and regulatory material records that BIT can cause skin irritation and allergic skin reactions in susceptible individuals. The initiative also highlights Linear Alkylbenzene Sulfonate (LAS), a surfactant used in cleaning formulations, which the same published material records can cause skin and eye irritation. Independent, NABL-accredited third-party laboratory testing of samples purchased from open retail found BIT and LAS in Surf Excel Matic Liquid (Top Load) and LAS in Vim Dishwash Gel (Lemon). That testing recorded 277 mg/kg of BIT and LAS upwards of 10% in Surf Excel Matic Liquid (Top Load), and LAS upwards of 8% in Vim Dishwash Gel (Lemon). BECO's own laundry and dishwash liquids are formulated without BIT and LAS. The focus is on helping consumers understand what goes into these products, so they can make more informed choices about what they use at home. The concentrations stated are based on tests carried out on the exact products and variants named, by an independent NABL-accredited third-party laboratory, on samples purchased from open retail. The statements as to what these chemicals can cause are drawn from published institutional and peer-reviewed material, including the OECD SIDS Initial Assessment Report on Linear Alkylbenzene Sulfonate (SIAM 20, 2005), the NICNAS Human Health Tier II Assessment on Linear Alkylbenzenesulfonates (C10-C16) (2014), IPCS International Chemical Safety Card 1189, and the NICNAS Isothiazolinones Human Health Tier III Assessment (2020). Mr. Aditya Ruia, Co-founder, BECO, said, "Consumers have become far more conscious about what they eat and what they put on their skin, but the same curiosity has not yet extended to the products they use to clean their homes.

NMDC Q1 profit rises 2 pc to Rs 2,007 crore, output up 26 pc

Hyderabad: Telangana government-run NMDC Ltd, India's largest iron ore producer, on Friday, August 14, reported a 2 per cent rise in net profit for the June quarter, helped by a sharp jump in production even as sales grew only marginally. The Navratna PSU said profit after tax for the quarter ended June 30, 2026, stood at Rs 2,007 crore, against Rs 1,969 crore in the corresponding period of 2025-26. Revenue from operations rose 2 per cent to Rs 6,795 crore in the April-June quarter, compared with Rs 6,634 crore a year earlier, the company said in a regulatory filing. Iron ore production climbed 26 per cent to 15.12 million tonne during the quarter from 11.99 million tonne a year ago. Sales, however, rose at a much slower pace of 2 per cent year-on-year to 11.73 million tonne, from 11.52 million tonne in the same quarter last year, pointing to a build-up in inventory. Chairman and managing director Amitava Mukherjee said the company had begun 2026-27 "on a strong footing," with the rise in output and profitability pointing to operational resilience and strategic discipline. Mukherjee said NMDC was on track to meet its production target of 60 million tonne for the current fiscal and was working towards scaling this up to 100 million tonne by 2030. "Our focus is now on scaling volumes, improving productivity and unlocking greater value from our mineral resources. As India moves towards a larger and more self-reliant industrial economy, NMDC will continue to play a central role in securing the iron ore needed for the nation's next phase of growth," he said.

FRANCE'S TOP COURT
BLOCKS SOCIAL MEDIA BAN FOR UNDER-15S

France's top court has struck down a ban on social media for under-15s, saying it infringed upon freedom of expression. The legislation was backed by French lawmakers in July, making it the first European country to block young people from the platforms, after concerns over the harmful effects on children's mental health. Friday's ruling by the Constitutional Council overrides the ban, which Emmanuel Macron had pledged would be introduced in stages from September. Responding to the news, the French president immediately asked Prime Minister Sébastien Lecornu to prepare a new draft that would take into account all the council's points. After lawmakers voted through the bill last month, Lecornu referred parts of the legislation to the council - a nine-member authority that checks whether a law complies with the constitution - for review. The Constitutional Council said it had found that Article 1 of the legislation "constitutes an infringement that is neither appropriate, necessary, nor proportionate" to the freedom of expression and communication for under-15s. The ruling also raised concerns over the law's requirement to provide proof of age to access online services and said it failed to establish "the legal safeguards necessary". Macron's office said after the ruling that the French government would work "as quickly as possible" to propose a new draft and said the president was determined to see the reform implemented by early 2027. The original legislation had envisaged that from September all those under-15 would not be able to open accounts, and verification would be required on all new accounts. And from January, this would have applied to all existing accounts. Opponents have repeatedly questioned the law's viability and raised concerns over privacy, the efficacy of age-verification tools, the risks of young people bypassing them, and how quickly the ban has been designed and brought in. Australia was the first country to introduce last December a social media ban for those under-16, although it is widely acknowledged that many in the country continue to use the platforms.

US AIRCRAFT CARRIER ON WAY TO RELIEVE USS LINCOLN AFTER ISSUES REPORTED ABOARD

A US aircraft carrier is headed to the Middle East to replace the USS Abraham Lincoln, on which thousands of sailors have reportedly faced food shortages and difficult conditions on an extended, nine-month deployment. The USS George Washington, which was near Malaysia on Thursday, could arrive in the region in about nine days, BBC analysis shows. Family members of sailors aboard the Lincoln have expressed concern about their mental health deteriorating due to the conditions, with some sailors having reportedly attempted to jump overboard. While the US Navy has acknowledged supply challenges, it has denied that a mental health crisis was taking place on the Lincoln, which has 5,000 aboard. US President Donald Trump denied that family members were concerned about the welfare of their relatives and dismissed the possibility that the deployment had been too long. "Not nearly long enough," he told reporters on Friday. Trump also confirmed that another ship will replace the Lincoln, although he did not identify it by name. The USS George Washington left a naval facility in Yokosuka, Japan in May to patrol the Pacific region and is now headrier will remain in the Pacific. The Lincoln has been at sea since 11 December on a deployment that was initially scheduled to end in May, tracking data compiled by BBC Verify shows. Earlier this week, the Military Times and Stars & Stripes reported that the families of multiple sailors reported that their loved ones had considered jumping overboard due to conditions on the vessel. The conditions have reportedly included poor sanitation, infrequent ports-of-call, broken plumbing, exhaustion and shortages of fresh food. In an interview with the BBC, a relative of a sailor on the Lincoln claimed that their family member had lost 65lbs (29kg) since the ship headed out to sea and had been suffering from exhaustion because of the constant noise of aircraft and the ship's vibrations.

SOUTH KOREA PROPOSES TALKS TO OFFICIALLY END WAR WITH NORTH

South Korea's president has proposed talks with its northern neighbour on officially ending the war between the two that is technically still active. Lee Jae Myung suggested a "multi-layered security system" to avoid flare-ups along the countries' de-facto border, known as the demilitarised zone (DMZ), and offered to discuss practical ways of halting Pyongyang's nuclear ambitions. North Korea has continually tested ballistic missiles capable of carrying nuclear warheads, which has been perceived in Seoul and nearby Japan as an attempt to intimidate and project power. The conflict between the two occupants of the Korean peninsula has been effectively frozen since an armistice was signed in 1953. However, there have been clashes and tensions along the DMZ in the decades since, along with accusations from both sides of provocations, including dropping balloons carrying rubbish and propaganda. Lee, who became South Korean president last year after his predecessor Yoon Suk Yeol was impeached for attempting to declare martial law, has sought to thaw relations with North Korea and its ally China, which had soured under Yoon. "Let us put down our intentions to threaten each other and begin discussions to end the long-running war as the directly involved parties," he told a ceremony marking Liberation Day, which commemorates the peninsula's liberation from Japanese rule. Lee expressed hope that the two nations "will sit face-to-face for peaceful coexistence and mutual growth", adding this could serve as a forum for discussing "effective ways to halt the advancement of the North's nuclear capabilities". North Korea declared itself a nuclear power in 2022 and vowed never to relinquish its weapons, of which it is estimated to possess dozens. Lee has previously said Pyongyang was producing 15 to 20 more warheads annually, telling the BBC last year he would back a deal between US President Donald Trump and North Korean leader Kim Jong Un to freeze production. He said this was a "realistic" goal, while Seoul continued to push for full denuclearisation. Trump is the only western leader to have met Kim, which happened during the US president's first term. Though he has turned his attention to other regions since returning to the White House, Trump said last August that he hoped to meet Kim again when "appropriate". North Korea has yet to react to Lee's offer. The authoritarian regime's state news agency carried news of Kim marking the country's own Liberation Day commemorations with a wreath-laying and guard of honour. Pyongyang has previously rebuffed Lee's offers of engagement, criticising a deal for the US to build South Korea a fleet of nuclear-powered submarines and denouncing joint drills between the two allies.

Activists try to deliver aid to Palestinians in homes besieged by Israeli settlers

Activists have tried to deliver supplies to Palestinians whose homes in the occupied West Bank have been besieged for days by Israeli settlers. The group left water and food near one of the houses in Qusra where two Palestinian families have been trapped since Sunday, with their power and water supplies cut off. Two of the residents said Israeli forces had prevented the activists from delivering the aid directly to them, and the supplies had to be left outside. The Israel Defense Forces (IDF) denied this. Also on Friday, a number of settlers returned to set up a tent near the site - a day after an operation to disperse them from the area. It was later removed by Israeli forces. The IDF said Qusra was a "closed military zone" and so Israeli civilians - who were among the activists - could not enter the area. "But they weren't prevented from transferring aid to the Palestinian homes in Qusra." It said in a further statement that Israeli civilians had erected a tent in the Qusra area earlier on Friday, "and IDF soldiers operated to remove it while protecting the local residents". About a dozen Palestinian households were told to leave their properties during the operation to disperse settlers on Thursday, including members of the Abu Ridi and Hassan families living in two of their three besieged homes. Qusra Mayor Abdul Azim Wadi told the BBC that Israeli forces were using some of the vacated Palestinian houses as barracks. The Israeli military said the aim was "to protect the residents" and soldiers had been "instructed that the Qusra residents will remain in their homes". A spokesman had previously described the settlers' actions as "deplorable" and "unacceptable", adding that the government would investigate and arrest those responsible. The situation in Qusra began on Sunday when settlers blocked the road to the Palestinian families' gates and cut off their power and water supplies. The first Israeli soldiers who came to the site prayed with the settlers - an act for which the Israeli military said they would be disciplined. An attempt by Israeli security forces to dislodge the settlers on Wednesday led to confrontations with a bigger group. Palestinian security camera video shared with the BBC showed confrontations between Israeli soldiers and border police and a large crowd of settlers. The security forces used tear gas and stun grenades. It is not clear exactly what the settlers in Qusra want. In the past, settlers have forced Palestinians out of their homes and seized their properties. Their stated aim is to empty the area of its Palestinian residents. Settlements are illegal under international law, but the Israeli government has promoted their recent rapid expansion. The case is the latest to draw attention to the relative impunity of settlers and how Israeli forces are struggling to deal with rising settler violence. Since January 2023, 127 Palestinian communities in the occupied West Bank have experienced full or partial displacement, including 47 that have been entirely displaced.

FAMILY STRANDED AT SEA
FOR 16 HOURS AFTER JET
SKI CAPSIZED IN THAILAND

A French family was left stranded at sea for more than 16 hours overnight after their rented jet ski capsized off the coast of Thailand. A 50-year-old father and his sons, five and seven, were left "pale" and "exhausted after swallowing a lot of seawater" before being rescued, local government official Amorn Chomchoey told AFP. All three were taken to hospital for checks but were discharged shortly afterwards, Chomchoey said. The father had rented the jet ski for a 45-minute ride on Koh Samui, one of Thailand's most popular islands for tourists, at around 17:00 local time (10:00 GMT) on Thursday, the Bangkok Post reports. Rescuers were alerted after the jet ski was not returned at the agreed time. People used speedboats and more jet skis to comb the waters surrounding Koh Samui and towards the nearby island of Koh Phangan searching for the family, the Bangkok Post reports. Search efforts had to be suspended overnight before the family were found still drifting at sea the following day, Thai media report. The father and sons were found by rescuers at around 10:00 local time on Friday, according to AFP.

Eleven killed in Israeli strikes on southern Lebanon, authorities say

Many Canadians are boycotting the US, so this is where they're travelling instead

Prior to US President Donald Trump's re-election, Kent Truscott and his family, from London, Ontario, had taken multiple trips south of the border, including to California and most recently New York in 2023. But since late 2024, "my family and I have completely decided to boycott the United States", he told BBC. That meant cancelling a trip last spring to Texas to watch the SpaceX Starship launch with his brother. The two had planned to fly down from Toronto, rent a car and stay a week to watch the launch, likely spending "thousands of dollars". Truscott and his wife decided to spend that money in Canada instead - the Atlantic provinces of Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island, to be exact. Their decision is a response to US tariffs and the president's comments about annexing their country. More than a year after Trump's return to the White House, many Canadians like Truscott are still holding firm on their boycott on travel to the US. Even with a slight uptick in road trips to the US in April, Canadians made 800,000 fewer trips that month compared to the same time in 2024, before Trump was elected, according to national data. The boycott has meant a loss of about C$3.3bn ($2.35bn; £1.75bn) in travel revenue for the US last year - money that Canadians have instead chosen to spend overseas or exploring their own country. That financial void has been felt by a number of American cities and states, who have urged Canadians to return through targeted advertisements and special deals. In July, New York City's tourism board said it will offer Broadway tickets and hotel rooms to Canadian tourists at a 30% discount. The BBC spoke to a few Canadians about why they have chosen to avoid the US, where they have gone instead and what it would take for them to return. Not everyone is driven solely by Trump's treatment of Canada, with some noting that the declining Canadian dollar has also made the US less affordable. But many say they feel their country's relationship with the US has hit a breaking point, and that it would take a lot for them to return, if at all.

India's 2011 World Cup-Winning Coach's Big Verdict On Gautam Gambhir Amid Criticism

Coach Gary Kirsten, who was in charge when India won the 2011 Cricket World Cup, has backed Gautam Gambhir amid criticism. The India head coach has been under the scanner for the team's poor performances, especially in Test and T20Is. Under Gambhir, the team suffered white-washes at the hands of New Zealand and South Africa. Of late, the Indian cricket team was clean swept by Ireland in a two-match T20I series before being outplayed by England by a 4-0 margin in yet another disappointing outing in the format. Kirsten said he enjoyed working with Gambhir during his stint as India coach. He added that he was confident of Gambhir's success as a coach as well. "He's a fantastic coach. He's had incredible success. He has won a T20 World Cup (2026) and the ICC Champions Trophy (2025). He's also had success in the IPL (Gambhir was the team mentor for the 2024 IPL champions, Kolkata Knight Riders). His record speaks for itself. I really enjoyed working with him when he was a player. He's a smart cricketer and I knew he'd have success as a coach," Kirsten told Times of India. Kirsten coached India from 2008 to 2011, which included the World Cup glory that saw the side defeat Sri Lanka in the final to clinch the prestigious trophy after a wait of 28 years. Gambhir, who was active as an international cricketer from 2003 to 2016, also played under Kirsten's coaching. "It was a great three years and a privileged one to work with Indian players. There was a lot of skill in that dressing room. What I appreciated was that they accepted me into their space and felt I could add value," Kirsten added. In April this year, Kirsten took over the role of head coach for the Sri Lanka national team. "I've approached the Sri Lankan role with the same seriousness," he said. India and Sri Lanka are set to play a two-match Test series, starting August 15 in Galle. The second and final game of the series will begin on August 23 in Colombo.

Nationwide Talent Hunt To Be Launched With Olympics 2036 In Focus:PM Modi

Prime Minister Narendra Modi on Saturday said India is a strong contender to host the 2036 Olympics and to ensure that the country also has a strong presence in the mega-event, a nationwide talent hunt would be launched to identify prospects in the age group of 5 to 15. Addressing the country from the ramparts of Red Fort on the 80th Independence Day, Modi said the government's flagship Target Olympic Podium Scheme (TOPS), which was launched in 2014, has been a major success in providing support to athletes. "India is making space for itself in the world of sports. We hear our national anthem frequently and see our tri-colour going up very often. TOPS has achieved great success. Whether it is Khelo India Games, University Games, Beach Games, Winter Games, or sports training, sports medicine, sports nutrition, India is moving ahead at great pace," he said. "India's performance is improving, and we are strong contenders to become an Olympic host in 2036. We are hosting the CWG in 2030. There are about 40 disciplines in Olympics, with nearly 350 events. It is sad that we don't compete in at least two third of these events because we are not even able to qualify. "We have decided that in 2036, we should have participation in at least three fourth events. We are launching a nationwide talent hunt for children aged 5 to 15 to identify prospects in every corner of the country. They will get special training to become world class athletes," he added. The fate of India's 2036 bid is expected to be known only in 2029. PTI had reported in January this year that plans to start a talent hunt with the 2036 Games in view were in the brainstorming stage so that the country finds its footing in disciplines like aquatics and cycling. Both these competitions offer over a 100 Olympic medals combined but none so far for India. It's an approach that China adopted for the 2008 Beijing Olympics. It drastically improved its performance in disciplines that it did n't do well previously, such as boxing, canoeing and archery, for a record tally of 100 medals in that edition. Driving India's expansion plan would be aquatics, cycling, rowing and gymnastics. Aquatics, which includes swimming, diving, waterpolo, artistic swimming, and open water swimming, will offer 55 of the more than 350 overall medals that will be up for grabs across 36 disciplines in the 2028 Los Angeles Olympics. But India is not expected to get any of these. Ditto for rowing, which has 45 medals at stake in Los Angeles across 15 events, and cycling, where 22 events will throw up 66 medals. India is hosting the 2030 CWG in Ahmedabad, which is also in the race to host the 2036 Olympics. The talent hunt programme will rely heavily on Artificial Intelligence which will be used for fitness battery tests, which are a series of exercises to measure cardiovascular endurance, muscular strength, speed and agility, flexibility and balance along with movement. "Not every school-going kid would know his sporting capabilities or take to sport naturally.

BCCI To Take Big Call On Ajit Agarkar's Future After Sri Lanka Test Series. Big Details Emerge

The Board of Control for Cricket in India (BCCI) office bearers are set to meet selection committee chairman Ajit Agarkar after India's Test series against Sri Lanka to discuss his future, according to a report by The Indian Express. Agarkar will complete three years as chairman in September and is eligible for a one-year extension. The report claimed that the meeting will take place amid differences of opinion between the selectors and the BCCI regarding Rohit Sharma's future. While the selectors had reportedly informed Sharma that they were looking to replace him in the squad after the England series in July, BCCI secretary Devajit Saikia said that Sharma will "continue to represent the country as long as he is in the scheme of things". The report further claimed that the BCCI wants the selectors to assess Sharma's future on a series-by-series basis in the lead-up to the 2027 ODI World Cup. However, Saikia's comments reportedly left the selectors unhappy. Earlier, former India head coach Ravi Shastri has lauded Rohit Sharma for his brilliant century against England in the third and final ODI at Lord's, stating that the opener has 'shut everyone up' on speculations about his future in the 50-over format. Rohit made a sublime 138 – the first ODI century hit by an Indian batter at Lord's and quashed speculations about the end of his 50-over set-up. He shared stands of 147 and 113 with skipper Shubman Gill (77) and Virat Kohli (74), though it went in vain as India lost by 27 runs and suffered a 2-1 series defeat. "He didn't need to do so, but he shut up everybody, because when you get those kinds of rumours floating around, it's sometimes irritating. When a player has done that much, you don't have to prove anything to anyone." "If he has the desire to play and work hard at his game and he's still enjoying it, I think he should be given the opportunity for as long as he wants. The day will come when he'll feel that he'll go, but when you have that kind of quality, you're thinking of dropping him and then he produces anything like this - first time ever, it was a special innings," said Shastri on Sky Sports.

Record Signing Yan Diomande Included In Real Madrid Squad For Schalke Friendly

Real Madrid coach Jose Mourinho on Saturday named new record signing Yan Diomande and stars Kylian Mbappe and Jude Bellingham in his team's squad for the first time, to face German side Schalke in a friendly this weekend. Los Blancos take on Schalke on Sunday in Gelsenkirchen in their final friendly before they kick off their La Liga season on August 22 at Espanyol. Marc Cucurella, Thibaut Courtois and Ibrahima Konate were also named in the squad for the first time under Mourinho, following holidays after playing with their countries at the World Cup like Diomande, Mbappe and Bellingham. Madrid have overhauled their squad after two straight seasons without winning a major trophy, signing several players including Diomande, for 140 million euros ($162 million) including bonuses from RB Leipzig, as well as Cucurella and Konate.

'Commitment To Growth': Hero MotoCorp's Long Partnership With World Hockey

The connection between Hero MotoCorp and hockey goes back a long way. It was back in 2010 when the company became a major sponsor for International Hockey Federation (FIH) by backing the men's Hockey World Cup in New Delhi. They expanded their support by becoming the official title sponsor for the inaugural Hockey India League (HIL) starting in January 2013. Since then, they have been a close associate of the global hockey body and they once again signed on as the title Sponsor of the Hockey India League for three seasons, starting from 2024-25.

IGI STADIUM COMPLETELY RENOVATED, DELHI READY TO HOST BEST-EVER WORLD CHAMPIONSHIPS: BAI SECRETARY

After drawing criticism over the state of facilities during the India Open earlier this year, the Badminton Association of India (BAI) on Thursday said the Indira Gandhi Indoor Stadium has undergone a complete renovation and is ready to host the "best-ever" edition of the BWF World Championships. The India Open came under scrutiny after players raised concerns over the condition of the venue, including its cleanliness, training facilities and air quality. The tournament also witnessed unusual disruptions, with matches briefly halted due to bird droppings and even a monkey entering the spectator stands. The controversy erupted after Danish shuttler Mia Blichfeldt criticised the condition of the warm-up and practice areas at the K.D. Jadhav Indoor Hall and the Indira Gandhi Indoor Stadium during the India Open, drawing attention to the poor state of the facilities. "We've worked on every issue that came up then, and I'm happy to say those problems have been resolved completely. I'm confident this will be one of the best World Championships ever," BAI secretary general

Sanjay Mishra told PTI on the sidelines of the draw ceremony for the World Championships, which begin in New Delhi on August 17. "I would especially like to thank the Sports Ministry and SAI because they've worked very hard. Under the guidance of our president, Dr Himanta Biswa Sarma, all the preparations are progressing well," he added.

Venus Williams Falls Again At Cincinnati Open, Singles Skid Hits 13 With 6-2, 6-2 Loss To Qualifier

Venus Williams' losing streak in singles play has reached 13 matches. The seven-time major champion was defeated 6-2, 6-2 by Emiliana Arango on Friday in the first round of the Cincinnati Open. The 46-year-old Williams received a wild-card entry to the WTA 1000 event. She has not won a singles match since July 2025. Arango, a 25-year-old qualifier from Colombia ranked 95th, needed 1 hour, 5 minutes to defeat Williams on the grandstand court at Lindner Tennis Center. Williams had her serve broken in the first game of the match and faced an uphill battle the rest of the way. Arango was 4 of 5 on converting break points and won 71% of her first-serve points. Williams was unable to convert on her lone break opportunity and was only 41% on first-serve points. "That kind of eased my nerves a little bit of having maybe a little bit of breathing room. And then I think I just did a good job of staying on it, trying to make her play as much as possible." Arango said about getting ahead early. Arango will face No. 7 seed and defending Cincinnati champion Iga Swiatek in the second round. Williams' last singles victory came last year in Washington, when she defeated Peyton Stearns. "I think that at all times I was really controlling the point, but unfortunately didn't finish it the way I wanted to," said Williams, who is making her 11th appearance in the tournament. "The encouraging part is that I'm controlling the shots, but I have to just get a little more consistent on that last part." Williams will remain in Cincinnati to play doubles with her sister, Serena, after they received a wild-card entry. They last played doubles together at the 2022 U.S. Open. The Williams sisters were slated to play doubles at Wimbledon before an injury to Serena. They will play Marta Kostyuk and Peyton Stearns in the first round. The doubles portion of the tournament starts Sunday. "I'm excited and hope that we can both go into it fresh, on our toes and ready.

Inter Miami Seek Privacy As Lionel Messi Trains For Major League Soccer Matches

Inter Miami officials have appealed to fans and media to give time to their Argentine legend Lionel Messi as he recovers following the passing of his father, Jorge Messi, and gets ready for upcoming action in Major League Soccer (MLS). As the clock ticks down to the club's season opener, Inter Miami coach Guillermo Hoyos has emphasised the need for privacy as Messi navigates a return to football. Jorge Messi, 68, died on August 8 at a hospital in the central Argentine city of Rosario. "I think everything needs to unfold gradually; there is deep pain involved, and this isn't something that changes overnight," Hoyos told the media on Friday. "So, I believe silence is the best approach: silence, tranquillity, and peace, allowing him to find his own moments. We need to stand by him, sharing in that silence. To me, silence is important, and that helps one eventually find a way forward. He is truly a wonderful person, and he has a wonderful family," he added. Messi reached Rosario last weekend and, according to reports in Argentina, attended a private memorial service. He returned to Miami and rejoined Inter Miami for the Leagues Cup game against Club Leon on Wednesday at Nu Stadium. Messi started the match against Leon on the bench before coming on as a half-time substitute to play the second 45 minutes. "There are no words," Hoyos said about Messi's commitment to the team. "I can't find a label for his worth as a person. We aren't talking about his value as a player, but his worth as a wonderful human being with a huge heart. Sometimes, words just aren't enough." Messi trained with the team on Friday morning as Inter Miami prepared to face Nashville SC on Saturday in MLS action. After the match at Geodis Park, Miami will travel to play Philadelphia Union next Wednesday. Inter Miami officials have appealed to fans and media to give time to their Argentine legend Lionel Messi as he recovers following the passing of his father, Jorge Messi.

‘AASMAAN’ Should Bring Meghamsh a Great Success, I Wish That as a Mother: Shanti Srihari at First Look & Motion Poster Launch

Presented by Mrs. Kondaru Srinivasa Rao under the Sri Kleemkara Celluloid banner, AASMAAN stars Meghamsh Srihari in the lead role and is directed by Ram Nandan. The film is produced by Kondaru Venkatesh and Mannem Srikanth. AASMAAN is being made in Telugu, Tamil, Kannada, Malayalam and Arabic. On the occasion of the birth anniversary of late actor Srihari, the makers unveiled the film's first look and motion poster on Saturday. The motion poster has generated curiosity around the film.

It features Meghamsh standing with a torch in his hand inside a giant palm. The forehead of the person to whom the palm belongs, along with a uniquely designed bindi, can also be seen. People holding torches surround the palm, raising intriguing questions about the identity of the person and Meghamsh's character in the film.

PREITY MUKHUNDHAN OWNS THE FRAME IN GOLD

Tamil actress Preity Mukhundan, who has tasted back-to-back success with Blast and Idhayam Murali, has an exciting lineup coming up. She will next be seen in the Telugu film Emo Emo Idi opposite Roshan Meka, directed by Sailesh Kolanu. Apart from this, Preity also has the Tamil film Dashamakan in her kitty and is set to make her Hindi debut opposite Kartik Aaryan in Naagzilla. Amid this busy schedule, the actress has surprised fans with a striking new photoshoot, dressed in a beige corset-style outfit with intricate embroidery and a matching polka-dot skirt, styled with dramatic fringe detailing on the shoulder. The dramatic lighting and vintage-inspired styling give the pictures a bold, editorial feel, quite different from her usual looks.

20,000 Students Unite in Tirupati for Grand Tiranga Rally on Independence Day

Tirupati, August 15, 2026: Marking the spirit of Independence Day and reinforcing the message of 'Har Ghar Tiranga', over 20,000 students from Mohan Babu University and Sri Vidyanikethan International School came together for a grand Tiranga Rally in Tirupati. The rally witnessed the participation of students from Mohan Babu University and Sri Vidyanikethan International School, who marched together carrying a spectacular 100-foot-long Indian Tricolour. The sight of thousands of students walking together with the national flag created a powerful display of patriotism, unity and national pride. Vishnu Manchu, Pro-Chancellor of Mohan Babu University, joined the students during the rally, along with the Vice-Chancellor, faculty and staff members. His participation encouraged the students to come together and celebrate the values embodied by the national flag. The rally was organised in the spirit of the 'Har Ghar Tiranga' campaign, encouraging the younger generation to celebrate Independence Day with pride and strengthen their connection with the nation. "Speaking on the occasion, Vishnu Manchu, Pro-Chancellor, Mohan Babu University said*, "Tiranga is a symbol of the sacrifices of our freedom fighters and the hopes and aspirations of every Indian. Seeing thousands of students from Mohan Babu University and Sri Vidyanikethan International School come together with such enthusiasm is deeply inspiring. As educational institutions, it is our responsibility to nurture young minds who are not only academically strong, but also conscious of their responsibility towards the nation."

SHRIYA ENJOYS SUNNY DAY IN PETERSBURG

Shriya Saran, who once ruled the big screen alongside top heroes like Prabhas, Mahesh Babu and Rajinikanth in Telugu and Tamil cinema, continues to remain a strong presence in the industry even at 43. The actress was last seen in Mirai and is currently busy shooting for the Hindi thriller Drishyam 3 alongside Ajay Devgan. Amid her packed schedule, Shriya took time off for a family vacation to St. Petersburg with her husband Andrei Koscheev and their daughter Radha.

PART 1 WAS A DISASTER, PART 2 IS HEADING TOWARDS BLOCKBUSTER!

Emraan Hashmi's Awarapan 2 is turning out to be one of the biggest surprises at the box office this year. Despite receiving mixed reviews from critics, the film has opened strongly and is now heading towards super-hit status. Interestingly, the first Awarapan was a box-office failure. However, the film slowly gained a cult following through its songs, emotional story, and Emraan

Hashmi's performance, which helped it earn a loyal fan base over time. According to trade estimates, the film has been made on a budget of less than Rs 50 crore by Vishesh Films. In a remarkable start, it reportedly recovered nearly half of its budget on the very first day. Trade circles are expecting First Weekend collections to touch the Rs 50 crore mark, which would put the film on a strong path. If the current trend continues, Awarapan 2 could recover its entire budget within its first weekend itself, which is huge. Another surprising aspect is its performance in South Indian cities, especially Hyderabad. Despite facing competition from Vishwanath & Sons, the film is attracting strong occupancy. All eyes are now on its first weekend box office numbers. The new version of Tera Mera Rishta from Awarapan 2 may have arrived with fresh voices, but for many listeners, the song still belongs to Pakistani singer Mustafa Zahid. A clip of Saaj Bhatt and Subodhh Sharma performing the reimagined track from Awarapan 2 is doing the rounds on social media. However, instead of discussing the new rendition, fans flooded the comments section with Mustafa's name. "Only Mustafa Zahid," read several comments, while another user wrote, "Not able to beat Mustafa Zahid." One fan simply declared, "Sorry, only Mustafa Zahid."
