CM Revanth seeks Centre's nod for Tummidihatti barrage

CM Revanth urges Jal Shakti Minister Patil to expedite barrage approval, environmental clearances and water-project permissions for Telangana.

HYDERABAD ■ TSIT BUREAU:

Chief Minister A.Revanth Reddy on Tuesday urged Union Jal Shakti Minister C.R. Patil to help secure Maharashtra's approval for the proposed Tummidihatti barrage. He said Telangana had already submitted the information sought by Maharashtra for the project.

The Chief Minister, accompanied by Irrigation Minister N. Uttam Kumar Reddy, met Patil in New Delhi to discuss Telangana's projects in the Krishna and Godavari basins. Revanth Reddy sought an early agreement between the two states to build the barrage at a full reservoir level of +152 metres. At that level, he said, water could flow by gravity to Yellampalli, reducing the electricity needed for pumping and the associated cost.

He also requested environmental clearances for the Palamuru–Rangareddy and Dindi lift irrigation schemes, the Sitarama Sagar multi-purpose project and the Gouravelli reservoir. Delays in approvals were increasing construction costs, he told the Union Minister.

Revanth Reddy sought early clearance from the Central Water Commission for the Sammakka Sagar project, whose detailed project report has been submitted. He said Telangana was holding talks with Chhattisgarh to obtain a no-objection certificate.

The Chief Minister also pressed for the swift installation of telemetry equipment under the Krishna River Management Board to measure water use. Telangana had already deposited Rs.4.15 crore for the first phase, he said, and requested early completion of that phase and the subsequent two phases.

Minister G.Vivek Venkataswamy, MP Gaddam Vamsi Krishna, MLA Gaddam Vinod, state irrigation adviser Adityanath Das and Chief Minister's Secretary Manik Raj were among those present.

SC to Hear Plea Against CEC Gyanesh's Individual Powers Next Week

New Delhi ■ (TSIT):

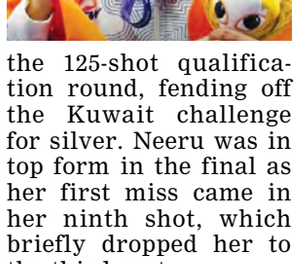

The Supreme Court is set to hear next week a plea challenging the individual exercise of powers by Chief Election Commissioner (CEC) Gyanesh Kumar. The petition questions the CEC's authority to take unilateral decisions, arguing that such actions may undermine the collective decision-making process of the Election Commission of India.The plea reportedly raises concerns over the concentration of power in the hands of a single commissioner, which could affect the neutrality and functioning of the poll body. Petitioners have sought judicial intervention to ensure that key decisions are made through proper consultation and established procedures.The matter will be taken up for hearing next week, with the apex court expected to examine the legal and constitutional aspects of the issue. The case assumes significance given the Election Commission's crucial role in conducting free and fair elections in the country.

Neeru Dhanda Wins Trap Gold

Nagoya ■ (TSIT):

Indian trap shooter Neeru Dhanda clinched the historic gold in the women's trap individual event at the 2026 Asian Games with an Asian record score in the final here at Aichi Pref. General Shooting Gallery on Tuesday.

Neeru, who topped the qualification with 118, set an Asian record with a score of 28 in the final to become the first Indian woman to clinch the gold in the trap event in Asian Games history. Moreover, Neeru is the first-ever Indian medallist at the Asian Games in the trap individual events.

Moreover, Neeru won a silver medal in trap team shooting earlier today with Aashima Ahlawat and Manisha Keer. The Indian team shot a combined score of 328 after three days of the 125-shot qualification round, fending off the Kuwait challenge for silver. Neeru was in top form in the final as her first miss came in her ninth shot, which briefly dropped her to the third spot.

But she regrouped quickly in the third and fourth series with perfect hits and moved on top of the pile with 19 hits in 20 shots. She then maintained her gold medal position despite missing a shot in the fifth series. She then wrapped up the glittery gold medal with a perfect five hits.

India eyes China route amid Pakistan airspace ban

New Delhi/Mumbai ■ (TSIT):

India is exploring the possibility of securing access to Chinese airspace over Xinjiang for its airlines, a move that could significantly shorten flight times to Europe and North America and reduce the financial burden caused by Pakistan's continued closure of its airspace to Indian carriers.

Government sources indicated that discussions on alternative flight paths have featured in broader India-China engagement, as New Delhi seeks to improve international connectivity and support the rapid expansion of its aviation sector. Any such arrangement would require clearance from Chinese authorities, as parts of the Xinjiang airspace remain under military control.

Indian airlines, particularly Air India, have been among the worst affected by Pakistan's refusal to reopen its airspace since bilateral tensions escalated last year.

Flights to Europe, the US and Canada are being forced to take longer routes over the Arabian Sea and Central Asia, increasing fuel consumption, crew costs and travel times. Industry estimates suggest that the additional operational burden runs into hundreds of millions of dollars annually.

> Indian airlines, particularly Air India, have been among the worst affected by Pakistan's refusal to reopen its airspace since bilateral tensions escalated last year

Air India has formally urged the government to pursue discussions with Beijing to allow the use of a corridor over Xinjiang, arguing that access to the route could restore competitiveness on key long-haul sectors and improve aircraft utilisation. The airline has estimated substantial weekly savings if such an arrangement is secured.

Skills and Technology Key to Better Governance: CM Naidu

Visakhapatnam,TSIT : Chief Minister N. Chandrababu Naidu said technology, continuous learning and employee skills were essential for improving governance and citizen services. Addressing the Mission Karmayogi – Sadhana Shrunkhala 2026 regional conference in Vijayawada, he said Andhra Pradesh ranked first in employee capacity building, followed by Karnataka and Odisha. Around 7.89 lakh AP employees have registered on iGOT and completed over two crore courses, he said. Naidu stressed that capacity building should be measured by improvements in public services rather than certificates alone. He called for simplification of outdated procedures and greater use of AI and digital technologies in governance.

He also highlighted the AP Capacity Building Policy and urged employees to continuously upgrade their skills to achieve the goals of Viksit Bharat 2047 and Swarna Andhra. The CM presented awards to AP, Karnataka and Odisha for their rankings. Piyush Kumar, Principal Secretary, Finance Department, and V.R. Alaparthi, Executive Director, APSDPS, received the AP award. The names of the Karnataka and Odisha recipients were not specified in the official material available.

MEPA extends Rs.25,000 financial assistance to accident victim Vishnu

Hanumakonda, September 29, TSIT :The Mudiraj Employees and Professionals Association (MEPA), Telangana, extended financial assistance of Rs.25,000 to Chiluveru Vishnu, a young man from Sundarayya Nagar Colony in the 5th Division near Kakatiya University, who was critically injured in a recent road accident.

Vishnu sustained severe injuries in the accident and reportedly went into a coma while undergoing treatment at a hospital. Having lost both his parents at a very young age, Vishnu has been dependent on his grandmother for support. The family is extremely poor and does not even have a proper house.

Concerned about Vishnu's condition, colony residents Neerati Raju and Siraboyina Satish, along with his friends and relatives, approached MEPA seeking financial assistance for his treatment.

After learning about the family's situation, MEPA Founder and State President Puli Devender Mudiraj, along with around 50 MEPA donors and friends, mobilised Rs.25,000 for Vishnu's support. The assistance was handed over to Vishnu's grandmother at their residence in Sundarayya Nagar Colony on Tuesday.

Speaking on the occasion, Puli Devender Mudiraj said that Vishnu had been actively involved in serving the community and expressed hope that supporting his recovery would enable him to continue helping others. He said MEPA decided to extend financial assistance considering the family's economically disadvantaged circumstances. He also urged members of the Mudiraj community to consider obtaining individual and group insurance through community organisations, noting that unexpected emergencies could arise at any time.

Colony elders Siraboyina Sarangapani, Karunakar, Sadanandam, Ravi and Satish appreciated MEPA's continued efforts to support members of the community. They assured the organisation of their continued cooperation and called for unity and collective efforts for the welfare of the Mudiraj community.

MEPA State Vice-President Ponnam Raju Mudiraj and State Secretary Neerati Raju Mudiraj expressed their gratitude to all 50 donors who contributed towards Vishnu's treatment and support.

Vishnu, while receiving the assistance, thanked MEPA and all those who supported him during his difficult time. He said he would continue to serve the community and contribute to its welfare as a way of expressing his gratitude.

No Delay on Farmers' Issues: Collector

Tirupati, September 29: District Collector Dr. S. Venkateswar has directed Nava Food Factory owner Abdul Ali to come forward with a clear action plan for the payment of dues owed to farmers. He made it clear that the dues payable to farmers must not be delayed any further and that necessary steps should be taken to ensure payment within the stipulated time frame.

On Tuesday evening, a review meeting was held at the VC Hall of the local Collectorate on the issue of payment of dues by Nava Food Factory, Yeravaripalem, to farmers. District Collector Dr. S. Venkateswar, Joint Collector R. Govinda Rao, Srikalahasti RDO Banu Prakash Reddy, District Horticulture Officer Jaya Bharath Reddy, and Nava Food Factory owner Abdul Ali participated. Farmers from Yeravaripalem, Chinnagottigallu, Rompicherla and other mandals were also present. Discussions covered payment of dues, details of assets, and the timeline for payments.

Speaking on the occasion, the Collector stated that despite several extensions given earlier for the payment of dues related to Nava Food Factory in Yeravaripalem, full payments had not been made. Taking into account the long wait endured by farmers, he directed that a clear time-bound payment plan must now be submitted. He made it clear that the amount due to farmers cannot be postponed until another season. If it is not possible to pay the entire amount at once, a firm action plan must be given to clear the dues in two or three instalments within three months. He advised that government incentives should not be linked to the payment of these dues and that the amount payable to farmers should be mobilised from the resources available with the management.

The Collector directed the management of the concerned unit to submit complete details of personal, company-related and other assets to the Joint Collector within two days. These asset details should be listed in order of priority and used as the basis for preparing the payment plan. He made it clear that failure to clear the dues within the stipulated three-month period would necessitate further action through legal process against the assets submitted. He also directed that a notarised affidavit relating to the dues payable to farmers must be submitted. The affidavit should include details of the assets held and a clear undertaking that, in the event of non-payment within the stipulated time, recovery proceedings would be initiated against the relevant assets as per legal provisions to ensure payment to the farmers. A draft of the affidavit should be prepared and submitted to the concerned officials within two days, after which it should be notarised and furnished.

The Collector further directed that details of farmers who attended the meeting, as well as other creditors, should be collected. A village-wise and farmer-wise list should be prepared containing the farmer's name, village, amount due, and relevant agreement details. Priority should be given to payment of dues to farmers facing urgent financial difficulties, while a clear overall action plan for clearing the entire dues must be in place.

He noted that farmers have already been waiting for a long time for their dues and that some of them are facing financial hardship. With interest and other financial burdens mounting on the outstanding amounts, any further delay would place an additional burden on the farmers. Officials are monitoring this issue with the highest priority, keeping the welfare and financial interests of farmers in mind. The Collector advised the owner of Nava Food Factory to resolve the issue without allowing it to lead to legal action. He stated that if payments are not made within the three-month deadline, the legal recovery mechanisms available to the government would have to be enforced as per the rules. The government will not hesitate to take necessary steps to protect the interests of farmers. As long as there is scope to resolve the issue through mutual understanding between the farmers and the representative of the concerned unit, that route should be pursued; however, no further delay that harms the interests of farmers will be permitted.

Diageo India unveils new McDowell's No.1

Warangal, 29th September 2026: Diageo India has unveiled a major transformation of McDowell's No.1, one of India's largest whisky brands, marking a landmark reinvention in its 125-year history. The reinvention pairs an upgraded blend with extra Scotch, retaining traditional Scotch codes while modernising them for a new generation, alongside a refreshed premium identity. With over 30 million cases sold annually, the transformation marks a pivotal moment for the Indian whisky category. As consumer preferences shift from value measured by price to value defined by quality, craftsmanship, and experience, McDowell's No.1 is responding by helping redefine the mass premium segment, delivering elevated quality without compromising accessibility.At the heart of the transformation is an upgraded blend: a fusion of select imported Scotch, Indian malts, and premium grain spirits, matured in select oak and American barrels and blended across India and Scotland for extra smoothness. Validated through over 100 quality checks, the liquid has a light aroma with notes of vanilla, gentle grain sweetness, and mellow malt, complemented by subtle hints of matured wood and delicate sweet spice. On the palate, gentle sweetness layers with soft malty, woody, and vanilla notes, leading to a clean, smooth finish.

Amor Hospitals holds heart health camp at LiftTrade

Hyderabad, September 29th, 2026: On the occasion of World Heart Day, Amor Hospitals organised a comprehensive Heart Health Awareness Camp at Lift Trade Pvt. Ltd., aimed at encouraging employees to prioritise cardiovascular health through early assessment, awareness and timely medical attention. More than 200 workers were assessed during the camp, with the medical team providing individual guidance and recommending the appropriate future course of action wherever further evaluation or follow-up was indicated.

World Heart Day is observed annually on September 29 to raise awareness about cardiovascular disease and the importance of recognising risk factors and warning signs. The World Heart Federation's 2026 campaign, "Don't Miss a Beat," highlights the need to recognise symptoms that may otherwise go unnoticed and take proactive steps towards protecting heart health.

Commenting on importance of heart health, Dr. Kishore B. Reddy, Managing Director, Amor Hospitals said, " Heart health cannot be protected only when a person develops symptoms. Regular health assessments and awareness of risk factors can help identify potential concerns early and encourage people to take timely action. Workplace health initiatives such as this are particularly valuable because they bring preventive healthcare closer to people where they spend a significant part of their day. Our objective at Amor Hospitals is to promote a culture where people do not wait for a health problem to become serious before seeking medical attention."

" Our heart works continuously throughout our lives, yet we often take it for granted. Modern lifestyles, stress, reduced physical activity and unhealthy eating habits can gradually affect our health. A heart health camp is not just about screening, it is about creating awareness and encouraging people to make small, sustainable changes in their everyday lives. We are happy to partner with organisations such as Lift Trade in taking this message directly to employees and their families," added, Wing Commander Mr M K Bose, CEO, Amor Hospitals.

Adding further, Dr. Imran, Cardiologist, Amor Hospitals said, " Heart disease does not always announce itself with obvious symptoms. Conditions such as high blood pressure, diabetes, high cholesterol and other cardiovascular risk factors can remain unnoticed for a long time. This is why regular health assessments are important, particularly for people who may have a family history of heart disease or follow a sedentary lifestyle. A workplace heart health camp provides an opportunity to identify potential concerns early, create awareness and guide individuals on the appropriate next steps. The message on World Heart Day is simple, do not ignore warning signs, know your health numbers and take timely medical advice when required."

Ibrahimpatnam, Mallapur, Birpur, and Raikal mandals. A budget of Rs. 220.41 crore has been allocated across departments, with Rs. 10 crore each earmarked for renovating the Dharmapuri Ugra Narasimhaswamy Temple and the Kotilingala Temple.

Kamineni doctors urge young adults not to ignore heart symptoms

Hyderabad, September 29, 2026: On World Heart Day, cardiologists at Kamineni Hospitals, LB Nagar, called for greater awareness of cardiovascular risk among younger adults, noting that heart disease may not always present with the commonly recognised symptom of severe chest pain. The cardiologists cautioned that heart disease should not be considered a condition affecting only older people or those with obvious lifestyle-related risk factors. Younger adults may also have unnoticed risk factors, including high blood pressure, diabetes, high cholesterol, family history, and other underlying conditions. Regular physical activity and an outwardly healthy appearance do not completely rule out cardiovascular risk.

Speaking at a media briefing, Dr. M.R.M. Babu, Senior Consultant Cardiologist, said cardiovascular risk should not be assessed solely on the basis of age or physical appearance. "People who appear fit and healthy may still have conditions such as hypertension, diabetes or high cholesterol, or may have a family history of heart disease. The absence of obvious symptoms does not necessarily mean that cardiovascular risk is absent," he said.Dr. A. Ravikanth, Senior Consultant Cardiologist, said symptoms of heart disease can sometimes be mistaken for less serious conditions. "Breathlessness, unusual fatigue or discomfort in the jaw, neck, back or upper abdomen may have several causes, but when such symptoms are new, recurrent or occur with exertion, they should not be ignored," he said.

The hospital recorded 2,287 cardiac procedures over the past year, of which 175 were performed in patients below 40 years of age. In the last month alone, 18 cardiac procedures were performed in patients below 40, highlighting the importance of recognising cardiovascular risk and seeking timely medical evaluation even among younger individuals.Dr. G. Shiva Prasad, Consultant Interventional Cardiologist, said advances in cardiac imaging and intervention have expanded the ability to manage complex cardiovascular conditions. He noted that technologies such as IVUS, OCT, Rotational Atherectomy, and advanced structural and rhythm interventions allow treatment strategies to be tailored to individual patients.

The hospital said its advanced interventional cardiology services include Complex PCI, CTO PCI, IVUS- and OCT-guided coronary interventions, Rotational Atherectomy, TAVR and other structural heart procedures, pacemaker and ICD implantation, and electrophysiology procedures. For selected critically ill and high-risk patients, ECMO and Impella are also available as mechanical circulatory support, when clinically indicated.

Renova Hospitals holds walkathon for World Heart Day

Hyderabad, September 29: Marking World Heart Day, Renova Hospitals, Langar House, organised a three-kilometre walkathon from Bapu Ghat to Dargah on Tuesday to raise awareness about heart health, cardiovascular disease prevention, and the importance of timely medical intervention. Doctors, nurses, and paramedical staff participated carrying placards highlighting heart disease prevention, healthy lifestyle practices, and regular health check-ups. Red balloons were also released to mark the occasion.

Janab Syed Fiaz Sahab, ACP, Golkonda Police Station, the Guest of Honour, flagged off the walkathon and released the balloons. He stressed the importance of recognising warning signs of heart problems early and seeking medical attention without delay.

"Early identification of symptoms and timely medical intervention can play a crucial role in preventing heart-related emergencies from becoming life-threatening. If patients are brought to the hospital at the right time, doctors can take appropriate measures to save lives," he said.Dr Mohammed Shoeb Ahmed, Consultant Interventional Cardiologist, Renova Hospitals, Langar House, cautioned people against tobacco use and excessive alcohol consumption, which are associated with cardiovascular disease. He also highlighted the need to regularly monitor and control conditions such as high blood pressure and diabetes.

"Regular health check-ups are particularly important for people with hypertension and diabetes. Keeping these conditions under control, along with regular physical activity, a healthy diet, and other healthy lifestyle practices, can help reduce the risk of heart disease," he said.

He urged people to incorporate daily walking, yoga, regular exercise, and healthy lifestyle practices into their routine to support long-term heart health. The programme was attended by Dr Zabeeullah, Centre Head; Kaha Zaheer Ahmed, Senior Vice President – Business Development, Renova Group of Hospitals; Dr T Nagesh, Director; Dr Shiva Kumar, Director; Raghu Mohan, General Manager – Corporate Services; and Mohsin, Marketing, along with several other doctors, nursing staff, paramedical personnel, and administrative staff.

Yashoda Hospitals holds 1 minute heart challenge

Hyderabad, September 29, 2026: On World Heart Day, Yashoda Hospitals conducted the "1 Minute Heart Challenge" across Hyderabad to promote physical activity in daily life. The initiative received an overwhelming response, with thousands participating at KBR Park, Botanical Gardens, Tank Bund, community centres, Secunderabad Club, gyms, and all four Yashoda Hospitals units.

Children, youngsters, professionals, homemakers, and senior citizens took part in treadmill running, cycling, skipping, push-ups, and other exercises. TPCC's Bomma Mahesh Kumar Goud and Hyderabad City Police Commissioner V.C. Sajjanar, IPS, joined the challenge and extended their support.

Yashoda Hospitals Director Dr. Pavan Gorukanti said modern lifestyles have made physical inactivity a growing concern, but even a few minutes of meaningful activity can make a difference when incorporated consistently into daily routines. Through the challenge, the hospital wanted to show that every minute of movement counts.

The campaign highlighted that busy schedules often make regular exercise difficult, yet short periods of activity can improve health when performed safely. A team of cardiologists, doctors, physiotherapists, nurses, and EMTs monitored the activities. Top performers in calories burned per minute across age groups, genders, and exercise categories received prizes. Doctors encouraged simple steps like using stairs, taking walking breaks, and standing periodically. The overwhelming participation showed Hyderabad embraced the message that every minute of movement matters for a healthier heart and life.

and the local community. The Musheerabad walk started at CARE Hospitals, proceeded to Gandhi Hospital, and returned.

"Heart disease often develops silently over many years. What we eat, how much we move, whether we smoke, and whether we keep track of our blood pressure, blood sugar, and cholesterol all influence our heart health," said Dr Gulla Surya Prakash. "People should not wait for chest pain or another warning sign to start thinking about their heart. Identify one habit that is hurting it and start changing it today."

Dr Krishna Mohan said heart disease may not always give an obvious warning in its early stages, and conditions like high blood pressure, diabetes, and high cholesterol can remain unnoticed for years. He urged people to walk regularly, stay away from tobacco, pay attention to food and sleep, and know their health numbers.

"We should not wait for symptoms before taking heart health seriously," said Dr Naveen Kumar. "You do not have to change everything overnight. Start with one positive step, whether it is walking regularly, eating healthier, sleeping better, or giving up tobacco, and make it part of your daily life." Through the campaign, CARE Hospitals is encouraging people to commit to their heart: move more, avoid tobacco, make healthier food choices, manage stress, get adequate sleep, check blood pressure, blood sugar, and cholesterol, and seek timely medical advice when needed.

Stop advertisements, save youth from the trap of drugs

Celebrities and public figures wield significant influence in society. Their words, behavior, and lifestyles are widely disseminated through the media and social media, making them influential role models, especially for young people. This popularity not only provides opportunities but also creates a moral responsibility. Drug addiction poses a serious challenge to health, education, and social harmony today. Social influence refers to the ability to influence the thoughts, attitudes, and behavior of others. The influence of film stars, athletes, social media influencers, officials, and other public figures is not limited to entertainment or governance; it also assumes a moral responsibility when it impacts life-changing decisions, such as drug use. When public figures normalize or glamorize drug use through songs, films, social media posts, or personal conduct, it can send the message to young people that drug addiction is acceptable, modern, or an easy path to success. Conversely, when they embrace a drug-free lifestyle, speak out against addiction, and support rehabilitation, they can help make refusing drugs a socially respectable choice.

Youth often emulate those they idolize. Athletes who emphasize fitness, discipline, and a drug-free lifestyle offer young people a positive alternative to the culture of instant gratification and addiction. When athletes, fitness influencers, and celebrities openly reject addiction, a healthy lifestyle becomes attractive to young people. The participation of film stars and sports figures in various anti-addiction campaigns has conveyed the message of choosing a healthy and responsible life. Such messages can be effective because they come from individuals young people already admire and respect. Celebrities can also challenge the notion that "everyone does drugs" or that addiction is simply a normal experience of youth. By joining efforts like the Drug-Free India campaign, public figures can contribute to developing an understanding of addiction as a serious health and social challenge rather than a lifestyle. Many public campaigns have also emphasized open dialogue within families and empathetic attitudes toward those affected by addiction.

Peer pressure often pushes young people into drug use. When popular figures promote drug-free living through their platforms, they can contribute to positive changes in societal thinking and behavior. Social media campaigns, digital pledges, awareness programs, and celebrity support for youth-led movements can make de-addiction a common social message. Through well-planned campaigns conducted with influential leadership, large numbers of young people can be engaged. The problem of drug addiction is often exacerbated by silence and shame. When public figures speak openly about their own or others' experiences of drug addiction, they can encourage people to view those struggling with addiction as individuals in need of support and treatment, rather than simply as guilty or criminal. This can reduce social stigma and encourage families to come forward to seek timely treatment for affected individuals. Efforts that combine rallies, cultural programs, expert discussions, and awareness campaigns can help make drug prevention and rehabilitation a community responsibility.However, awareness alone is not enough; it also needs to be translated into concrete and sustained action. Administrative officials and local leadership can utilize celebrity influence to build long-term de-addiction campaigns. Effective campaigns should incorporate awareness, law enforcement, treatment, rehabilitation, and active youth participation.

FROM 'JAN SEWA' TO 'RASHTRA SEWA':

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS OF NARENDRA MODI'S LEADERSHIP

HARSH V SHRINGLA

October 7 marks a quarter-century since Prime Minister Narendra Modi first assumed public office as Gujarat's Chief Minister. The moment deserves analysis rather than nostalgia, because these years are held together not by any single policy but by a governing logic summarised in an idiom: Reform, Perform, Transform. Reform the architecture, perform through saturation delivery, and let transformation be measurable. Beneath it run Nation First and Minimum Government, Maximum Governance: build systems so reliable that citizens meet the state as a service, not a supplicant. PM Modi has developed a distinctive theory of governance: a nation earns its place at the table only after it proves it can govern itself. Twenty-five years after he first took public office, that theory has become India's operating method. He rose from grassroots karyakarta to Pradhan Sevak, and the Seva Sankalp Abhiyan launched on his birthday is that instinct in miniature: turning Jan Sewa into Rashtra Sewa, and asking all 140 crore Indians to carry that vigour towards a Viksit Bharat by 2047. The template was forged in Gujarat, where he took the oath on 7 October 2001, in the wake of the Bhuj earthquake. He answered devastation with reconstruction for resilience. Vibrant Gujarat, launched in 2003, made the state an investment destination; Jyotigram separated farm and household feeders to steady village power. The logic is sequential: rebuild better, institutionalise the lesson, then scale it, as the Coalition for Disaster Resilient Infrastructure later did globally. This foundational trust among Gujarat's populace subsequently broadened across the country, cementing Narendra Modi as India's longest-tenured continuously elected Prime Minister since 2014. India recorded 7.8 per cent GDP growth in the first quarter of FY 2026-27, despite global volatility as global crude oil prices surpassed $100 a barrel; the deliberate policy formulations led to holding retail price increases below 5 per cent by managing energy supply chains directly, so that LPG continued to reach households and fuel continued to reach vehicles, without the disruption several oil-exporting and importing economies elsewhere are experiencing. Capital expenditure has risen from ?2 lakh crore in 2014-15 to ?12.2 lakh crore in Budget 2026-27, even as the fiscal deficit has fallen from 9.2 to a budgeted 4.3 per cent of GDP. Direct benefit transfer via the JAM triad - Jan Dhan accounts, Aadhaar identity, and mobile connectivity—formed the operational backbone of saturation welfare, eventually powering a UPI network that handles 49% of worldwide real-time payments valued at approximately ?314 lakh crore during FY 2025-26. A parallel acceleration unfolded across physical infrastructure, where the pace of National Highway expansion surged from roughly 12 kilometres daily in 2013-14 to 34 kilometres per day by 2025. India's semiconductor story has advanced rapidly in a short period. In 2021, the country had no commercial chip plant. By 2026, twelve units stand approved, and five are in production. Students across hundreds of colleges are now designing chips. None of this was inevitable. Each was a decision made and defended, before consensus existed. Abroad, that same discipline has matured into convening power. Hosting the BRICS Summit 2026 in New Delhi under India's chairmanship, PM Modi brought together leaders from across a fractured world, several of them active protagonists in the very conflicts dividing it, and secured a rare consensus outcome in a volatile political season. Under India's chairmanship this year, BRICS has prioritised the Global South: the New Development Bank has expanded its corpus so that developing nations can draw concessional loans for their own priorities, and the summit has introduced climate mitigation instruments, early-warning systems for farmers, and India's own Digital Public Infrastructure for BRICS countries to adopt. That achievement is a clear vindication of his Vishwamitra approach to foreign policy: India as a genuine friend to the world rather than a partisan of any bloc, at a moment when such neutrality is rare and increasingly sought after. It echoes an earlier decision. When COVID-19 struck as a once-in-a-century shock, and few vaccine-producing nations were willing to share their supply, PM Modi launched Vaccine Maitri, positioning India as first responder and net security provider to the Global South rather than just a bystander to its distress. That same conviction that inspired Vasudhaiva Kutumbakam, the world as one family, was placed at the heart of India's 2023 G20 presidency, projecting India's rise as reassurance rather than competition. PM Modi's message to the Summit was unusually direct for a communiqué season: humanity is one family, conflicts must be resolved through dialogue and diplomacy; as he put it plainly, this is not an era of war. This same proactive ethos extends across the Indo-Pacific. The SAGAR framework - Security and Growth for All in the Region - conceived by Prime Minister Modi in 2015, has now evolved into MAHASAGAR, anchored in a single, steadfast belief: Indian assistance arrives before a formal appeal is even articulated. When Nepal suffered a devastating earthquake in 2015, Indian relief teams reached the site within hours. As Sri Lanka faced severe economic distress in 2022, nearly $4 billion in financial support was dispatched long before multilateral agencies finalised their assessments - a swiftness echoed when Operation Dost deployed field hospitals to Turkey and Syria in 2023. That same resolve routinely ensures the safe return of countrymen caught in overseas conflicts. Operation Ganga brought thousands home from war-torn Ukraine in 2022, Operation Kaveri navigated complex cross-domain risks during Sudan's 2023 crisis, and Indian military transports were among the first to evacuate citizens as Kabul fell in 2021. Guided by PM Modi's unyielding commitment that no Indian be left behind during international crises, these missions prove that acting as a net security provider is a deeply ingrained institutional practice. Perhaps that is the truer measure of these twenty-five years. While many nations contend with unrest and instability, India has been steadied by a leadership willing to take hard decisions on domestic and international issues. The international order of the past seventy-five years is giving way to something genuinely new, and India is well positioned to meet it. October 7 marks a quarter-century since Prime Minister Narendra Modi first assumed public office as Gujarat's Chief Minister. The moment deserves analysis rather than nostalgia, because these years are held together not by any single policy but by a governing logic summarised in an idiom: Reform, Perform, Transform. Reform the architecture, perform through saturation delivery, and let transformation be measurable. Beneath it run Nation First and Minimum Government, Maximum Governance: build systems so reliable that citizens meet the state as a service, not a supplicant. PM Modi has developed a distinctive theory of governance: a nation earns its place at the table only after it proves it can govern itself.

India Has A 'Lobbying' Problem In Washington, And It Has Come Back To Haunt It

ABHISHEK KADIYALA

The Lindsey O. Graham Sanctioning Russia and Iran Act of 2026 gives President Donald Trump the authority to impose tariffs of up to 100% on India as one of the top five importers of Russian energy. The passing of this act highlights major gaps in India's lobbying strategy in Washington, involving a shrinking lobbying presence, an absence of bill-level engagement, and an excessive focus on trade deal negotiations. Draining Political Capital Since 2025, India-US ties have been strained following Operation Sindoor, and the Trump administration's tariff announcement. This meant that while the EU, Japan, the UK and South Korea secured quick deals, India's diplomatic and lobbying efforts were getting drained in prolonged negotiations and lobbying focused on the executive. This took focus away from the Hill, which India seems to have judged had little to offer under unified Republican control. India's paid congressional operation in Washington has also shrunk from a multi-firm network to a single account. Until early 2025, India retained Cornerstone Government Affairs, whose records indicate consistent Senate and House engagement on issues of defence. BGR Government Affairs also tracked key bills, statements and discussions about India in the Congress, while also engaging members and staff on bill specific lobbying. While Cornerstone's engagement ended in early 2025, BGR's ended in December, leaving Mercury Public Affairs (MPA) as the only firm working on the Hill. MPA's engagement strategy has been broad, without any issue or bill focus. The executive engagement has also declined since India terminated its contract with SHW Partners in June 2026. Thus, when India needed to position its Russian energy imports as an energy necessity forced by the Iran war rather than a policy choice, it had few allies left on the Hill. By the time the bill re-emerged after the sudden demise of Senator Lindsey Graham, India lacked the bill-level lobbying bandwidth, public image or political capital to secure an exemption. How Did Others Fare? The act targets the top five importers of Russian energy. Apart from India, these include China, Slovakia, Azerbaijan and Hungary for crude, and China, France, Japan, Hungary and Belgium for gas. For the US, imposing tariffs on China has proven to be a difficult strategy due to its reliance on Beijing's rare earths. Therefore, the imposition of these tariffs on China is unlikely. Hungary, France, Japan and Belgium are likely carved out of the gas tariffs, as the act exempts countries that account for less than 15% of Russia's gas exports and are reducing them. Hungary had already secured a one-year exemption from the Trump administration in November 2025 for the Druzhba and TurkStream pipelines. Japan's Sakhalin-2 exemption was extended until December 18, 2026. This gives Tokyo adequate time to engage the executive, and a buffer to engage Congress when it reconvenes on November 9 after the mid-term recess. South Korea used a general 30-day US waiver issued in March, and its embassy then secured assurances that non-dollar payments for Russian naphtha would not trigger secondary sanctions. For each of these parties, consistent lobbying and continued engagement in both Congress and the executive were vital in securing these exemptions in times of crisis. This also extended to Ukraine. After the Senate passed this bill in mid-August, the House was in recess. Given the short time frame, it was believed that the bill was unlikely to pass the House due to a gridlock over tariffs. But the strong Ukrainian lobbying effort pushed the bill through on the very last day of session in September. This further highlights the impact of lobbying in Washington. Narrow Window The act provides target countries with a 30-day buffer to reduce their imports. The House has already adjourned until after the elections on November 3. The Senate is scheduled to begin its own recess on October 2. Neither chamber will be sitting when the first duty falls due in mid-October. This means that India has a very narrow window of less than two weeks to engage with the members, while parallelly negotiating with the executives who determine the waiver. Congressional support also matters most after the first 180-day reassessment, when the USTR is tasked to re-evaluate the status of target countries on a recurring basis. The Russia Sanctions Act is a testimony to the importance of congressional engagement for India. Therefore, there is a growing need for a change in India's strategy of engagement with US institutions that involved engagement with newer factions and members, and timely deployment of lobbying and diplomatic efforts.

The AI Boom Has Run Into A Big 'Debt' Trap Problem. Inside The 5% Danger Line

DEEPANSHU MOHAN

Big Tech's four largest hyperscalers - Microsoft, Alphabet, Amazon, and Meta - are set to spend somewhere between USD 720 billion and USD 760 billion on capital expenditure in 2026, up roughly 77% from about USD 410 billion in 2025. This is, by any measure, the largest single-sector capital deployment in the history of American business - and it was originally supposed to be a story about corporate cash flow, not sovereign credit. That is no longer true. As of September 24, 2026, the 10-year Treasury yield is holding around 5.12%, near its highest level since July 2007. Two weeks earlier, on September 14-15, the 10-year yield briefly surpassed 5% for the first time since 2023 - a level analysts had flagged for months as the threshold at which the AI trade and the fiscal trade would collide. It has not meaningfully receded since. It is important to note that if long-term interest rates decisively breach the 5% threshold, the impact could derail the AI boom. Global investors have been giving Washington a "free pass" on those numbers till now because of an implicit bet that AI-driven productivity growth will eventually outrun the debt. The 10-year yield crossing 5% is the market beginning to test that bet. From Free Cash Flow to Debt Markets For most of the AI buildout's first two years, hyperscalers funded it the easy way: out of operating cash flow. That era is over. Consensus estimates show AI capex hitting 94% of operating cash flow minus dividends and buybacks in 2025-2026, up from 76% in 2024 - and the shortfall is being plugged with debt. The cost of that debt is rising in lockstep with the Treasury curve it's priced off. Of 91 hyperscaler bonds issued in 2026 with comparable pricing data, 78 were trading at higher yields by late July than when they were issued - a sign that the market is repricing hyperscaler credit risk in real time, not just riding the Treasury curve passively. Oracle is the cautionary case. S&P downgraded Oracle to BBB in July 2026, one notch above junk, citing elevated debt levels, and its fiscal 2026 free cash flow came in at negative USD 23.7 billion - the gap between what its cloud business earns and what it is spending on data centres, chips, and leases. Oracle's credit default swaps hit a record high on August 4, 2026. There's also a shadow layer that doesn't show up in on-balance-sheet debt at all. The five largest hyperscalers held USD 969 billion in total undiscounted future data-centre lease commitments at year-end 2025, of which USD 662 billion sit entirely off-balance sheet, equal to 113% of the same companies' combined on-balance-sheet debt. Whatever the headline debt figures say, the real leverage embedded in the AI buildout is considerably larger. The 5% Yield Threshold and Earnings Yield Compression The equity risk premium is the whole ballgame for a high-multiple growth sector. As the risk-free rate (the 10-year yield) rises toward and past 5%, the ERP compresses unless earnings yields rise in step - which, for AI infrastructure names trading on hyperscaler-adjacent multiples, they generally have not. A stock trading at 30x forward earnings has an earnings yield of roughly 3.3%; against a 5%+ risk-free rate, that arithmetic implies a negative ERP unless investors are pricing in extraordinary future growth to compensate. That is precisely the bet embedded in AI infrastructure valuations today. The market has already demonstrated how sensitive it is to this threshold in practice. When yields retreated, so did the pressure - on September 21, the Nasdaq hit a record close as yields fell back below 5%, with AMD's market cap crossing USD 1 trillion for the first time. But that relief was short-lived: by September 24 the 10-year was back above 5.1%, and as one strategist observed of the mid-September episode, the AI trade was "already broken before yields hit 5%" - the yield spike just widened the selling. The Revenue Gap vs. the Capex Sinkhole Sequoia partner David Cahn's "USD 600 billion question," first posed in 2023 at USD 200 billion and updated through 2024 and 2026, calculates the annual AI-industry revenue required to justify the capex being deployed - and that gap is widening, not closing, in 2026. On the revenue side, the growth is real but dwarfed by the spending it's meant to justify. AWS is running at roughly USD 150 billion annualised, up 28% year-over-year; Google Cloud is around USD 80-90 billion, up 48-63%; Azure AI is at a USD 37 billion run rate, up 123%. Impressive growth rates on a revenue base that is a fraction of the roughly USD 750 billion in annual capex it's supposed to underwrite. Allianz Research put a number on the mismatch: the divergence between AI capital expenditure and revenue growth is running at roughly 46% in 2026 - already exceeding the 32% divergence observed during the 2001 telecom capex bust, a cycle that ended in one of the more brutal multi-year tech corrections on record. Not every hyperscaler is equally exposed.

Saudi Arabia restarts oil exports through East-West pipeline

Madinah: Saudi Arabia has resumed crude oil exports through its East-West Pipeline after repairs following drone strikes on Friday, September 11, Bloomberg reported on Monday, September 28. Satellite imagery released after the attack showed extensive damage to a pumping station on the pipeline in the desert southeast of Madinah. Saudi Aramco tested the 1,200-kilometre pipeline before gradually restoring crude flows. Export shipments have now resumed, according to people familiar with the matter cited by Bloomberg. The pipeline has a capacity of about 7 million barrels per day. Around 2 million barrels per day is normally directed to refineries on Saudi Arabia's west coast, while the remaining capacity is available for exports. The route provides Saudi Arabia with an alternative way to transport crude to the Red Sea when shipping through the Strait of Hormuz is disrupted. Riyadh has also increased crude shipments through the waterway this month. Aramco CEO Amin Nasser said last week that the company had operational flexibility and logistical capabilities to meet customer commitments despite geopolitical disruptions. He added that Aramco was exploring additional export routes and expanding storage capacity outside Saudi Arabia to support supplies to global markets. Houthis threaten Saudi bridges Yemen's Houthi group could target bridges in Saudi Arabia in retaliation for airstrikes it claims were carried out by the Saudi military, a military source in Sana'a told Lebanese outlet Al-Akhbar on Monday. The source alleged that Saudi airstrikes had targeted bridges and other civilian infrastructure in Yemen while claiming the sites were being used as missile launch platforms. "Civilian bridges are not used for military purposes," the source said, accusing Saudi Arabia of what it described as "utter bankruptcy". Al Muajjiz is a terminal south of Yanbu. "We also observed refined-product loadings. In total, we visually identified 40 tankers, regardless of their activity or proximity to these terminals." Two trade sources separately estimated crude loadings from Yanbu at about 2 million barrels per day since last week. Oil throughput on the pipeline is about 2 million barrels per day, according to an industry source, and around 2.65 million bpd according to ship-tracking firm Kpler. This is far short of the pipeline's 7 million bpd capacity. Throughput will climb to between 3 million and 4 million bpd in the coming days, Kpler said. A full return to the pre-attack rate of roughly 5.5 million bpd could still take another month, it said in a note on Monday. Crude inventories at the Yanbu terminal rose by roughly 1 million barrels on September 22, the first build since the attack, according to Kpler. The restart of crude loading at Yanbu added to signs of rising Middle East oil shipments following a recovery in exports via the Strait of Hormuz.

Jawa, Yezdi and BSA celebrates India's Festive Season with Portfolio-wide Updates

Mumbai, 29 September 2026: Jawa, Yezdi and BSA Motorcycles mark India's festive season with a series of updates across their motorcycle range. Apart from the biggest evolution yet of Jawa 42 OG other major updates include the refreshed range, new colourways, visual enhancements and rider-focused refinements. These latest developments reinforce the unique character of each marque while remaining true to the heritage, authenticity and riding philosophies that define them.

The portfolio-wide updates build on a year of strong product momentum across Jawa, Yezdi and BSA. Throughout the year, all three marques have strengthened their presence with new motorcycle launches and meaningful product enhancements, further expanding their appeal across riding segments. From Yezdi's refreshed Untamed Trinity and the introduction of the BSA Scrambler 650 to the expansion of Jawa's All Stars family, 2026 has been a landmark year across the three marques. These latest updates build on that momentum, offering enthusiasts more ways to experience the distinct character, heritage and individuality that define each brand.

For Yezdi, the year gained momentum with the introduction of the Scrambler on 23 April, followed by the launch of the refreshed range on 30 July, bringing together the Untamed Trinity. Rooted in Yezdi's instinctive, fearless and untamed character, each motorcycle is built around a distinct riding philosophy while remaining united by the brand's spirit of exploration. The 2026 updates introduced meaningful rider-focused enhancements across the portfolio, headlined by the Adventure's tubeless cross-spoke wheels and new Yellow Falcon colourway, alongside the Green Mamba Roadster and Grey Panther Scrambler. Together, the refreshed range strengthens Yezdi's commitment to creating motorcycles for explorers, rebels and free spirits who choose experiences over routine.

BSA expanded its presence in India with the introduction of the Scrambler 650 on 23 July 2026, bringing the marque's authentic scrambler heritage to a new generation of riders. Inspired by BSA's rich British motorcycling legacy and engineering pedigree, the Scrambler 650 combines timeless design, everyday versatility and capable performance in equal measure.

The festive season updates build on this momentum, further strengthening BSA's growing portfolio in India and reaffirming the brand's commitment to delivering authentic British motorcycles that remain true to their heritage while meeting the expectations of modern riders.

For Jawa, 2026 has been a defining year in the evolution of its modern-classic line-up. The journey began with the launch of the All Stars 42 FJ on 26 August, followed by the unveiling of the All Stars 42 Bobber by Mr Anand Mahindra at the Global Chess League on 4 September. The All Stars Jawa 42 OG was unveiled on 9 September at Mumbai's historic Ballard Pier, the very place where one of the first Jawa motorcycles arrived in India.

Mumbai's Iconic Yazdani Bakery Shuts Down

Mumbai's iconic Yazdani Bakery has temporarily shut operations for renovation, marking a new phase for one of the city's best-known old Irani bakeries. Located in Fort near Horniman Circle, Yazdani Bakery announced that it would close from September 29 to carry out renovation work at the premises. The owners of the bakery have indicated that the move is aimed at refurbishing the establishment. "This bakery was built for the people and that's what we intend to do. For generations, you've made Yazdani part of Mumbai's story. Now, it's our turn to give something back," the bakery said in a message on Instagram announcing the temporary closure. Established in 1953, Yazdani is known for its traditional breads, cakes and old-world bakery setting. The establishment has continued to attract customers for its mawa cake, brun maska and other baked products. The renovation comes as the family seeks to give the nearly seven-decade-old establishment a fresh lease of life while retaining its traditional identity.

From Parkinson's to Potholes: 9 Tamil Nadu Students Turn to AI to Solve Everyday Problems

Sep. 29, 2026 – Can a three-minute WhatsApp video help workers learn without interrupting their work? Can a smartphone warn commuters about potholes and waterlogged roads before they encounter them? Can an AI-powered wearable help people with Parkinson's remain active and independent?

Three teams from Tamil Nadu—4 Percentage, JARVISS and Rogue—are attempting to turn these possibilities into reality. Their ideas have now taken them to the Top 20 of Samsung Solve for Tomorrow 2026.

Through MicroLearning AI, SafePath AI and NeuroStride, nine young innovators from Chennai and Coimbatore are using artificial intelligence, sensors and wearable technology to solve everyday problems in workplace learning, road safety and healthcare.

■ LEARNING ON THE SHOPFLOOR—IN JUST THREE MINUTES

For Sajith J, Mithran B and Kavin Nanadha M K of Coimbatore-based team 4 Percentage, the challenge was clear: conventional training programmes can be difficult to fit into the schedules of factory and frontline workers.

Their solution, MicroLearning AI, converts complex information into short, two-to-three-minute learning videos that can be delivered through WhatsApp in workers' native languages. The platform is designed to make workplace learning easier to access, understand and complete without requiring employees to step away from their jobs for extended periods.

By combining AI with the familiarity of WhatsApp and regional-language content, the team hopes to make training more practical for workers across industries.

■ HELPING COMMUTERS SEE ROAD HAZARDS BEFORE THEY REACH THEM

Chennai-based team JARVISS, comprising Sanjay Kumaar, G B Aswindbaghat and Varunprasath K, is developing SafePath AI to help commuters navigate potholes, waterlogged roads and other hazards more safely. The platform uses smartphone and IoT sensor data to detect road hazards, assess their severity and recommend safer routes. It is also being designed to alert the relevant authorities, creating the potential for quicker identification and resolution of unsafe road conditions.

Rather than asking commuters to react after encountering a pothole or flooded stretch, JARVISS wants to give them useful information before they reach it—turning everyday smartphones into tools for safer mobility.

■ USING AI TO SUPPORT PEOPLE WITH PARKINSON'S

For Chennai-based team Rogue, the challenge is deeply human: helping people with Parkinson's manage involuntary tremors while retaining greater independence in their daily lives.

Team members Manoj Kumar Kasinathan, Jena R and Chriswin William D are developing NeuroStride, an AI-powered wearable designed to distinguish involuntary Parkinson's tremors from intentional muscle movement. The device then seeks to provide targeted electrical stimulation to support more controlled movement.

The team's larger ambition is to develop an accessible, non-invasive solution that can help people with Parkinson's perform everyday activities with greater confidence.

The three Tamil Nadu teams are among the 20 finalists selected from across India under the fifth edition of Samsung Solve for Tomorrow. More than half of this year's Top 20 participants come from Tier 2 and Tier 3 cities, reflecting how youth-led innovation is expanding beyond India's traditional technology hubs.

The finalists will receive continued mentorship from Samsung experts and the Foundation for Innovation and Technology Transfer at IIT Delhi. The support will help them refine their prototypes.

Delhi HC sets aside FSSAI order on Red Bull's 'energy drink' tag

New Delhi: The Delhi High Court on Tuesday, September 29, set aside an order of the Food Safety Standards Authority of India (FSSAI) directing Red Bull to stop using the words 'energy drink' on its product. Justice Amit Mahajan passed the order while noting that the FSSAI passed the order without giving any opportunity to the company to file a reply or give any explanation. "The petition is allowed. The impugned order (of FSSAI) is set aside. The respondent is at liberty to pass a fresh order after according a hearing to the petitioner," the court said while dictating the order and noted that principles of natural justice have been violated. The court added that it remained undisputed that the June 30 order of FSSAI directing petitioner Red Bull not to use the term 'energy drink' in its product was passed without giving any opportunity to it to file any reply. It further said that FSSAI is free to take a fresh decision in the matter after following due process by issuing a show cause notice to Red Bull and granting it an opportunity of hearing. The court was informed by FSSAI that no separate show cause notice was given and that the June 30 letter itself was a notice and that the concern was only with the use of the words 'energy drink', and not with the product itself. The court passed the order on a plea by Red Bull challenging a June 30 order of FSSAI directing the company to discontinue using the term 'energy drink' on its beverage products. The court, therefore, allowed Red Bull's petition challenging the FSSAI's June 30 order, on the limited ground that natural justice principles had been violated. The petitioner company submitted that it had been using the 'energy drink' descriptor for its beverage products in India since 2002 and that FSSAI had itself previously recognised its use for the relevant category of caffeinated beverages. The court noted that the FSSAI passed the order without giving any opportunity to the company to file a reply or give any explanation.

Spain announces ban on evictions after protests over 87-year-old woman's eviction

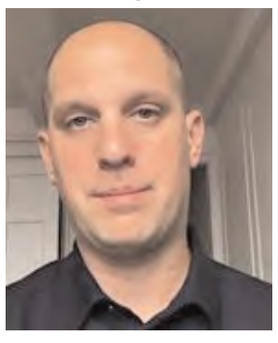

Spain's coalition government has approved new housing measures following protests over the country's housing crisis, sparked by the eviction of an 87-year-old woman from her home in Madrid last week. Ministers met on Tuesday to discuss the proposals, which include a ban on evictions until 2030. Announcing the measures, Health Minister Mónica García said they would bring relief to more than five million people - but opposition politician Míriam Nogueras said the agreement left "small landlords out in the cold". The proposals - which have been presented in the form of two decrees - come into effect immediately, but must be approved by Congress within a month, although the government hopes to hold the vote as soon as this Friday. Pedro Sánchez's leftist coalition government lacks a majority in parliament and has struggled to get right-leaning parties to approve previous decrees. In April, a decree seeking to roll over rental contracts was blocked by right-leaning parties. García said other measures agreed upon on Tuesday included the rolling over of contracts until 2028; stricter regulation of short-term and room rentals; and banning the purchase of housing by investment firms. "It is time to intervene in the speculative housing market and start striking a balance between ordinary citizens and vulture funds," García said. Referencing the protests, she added: "Thanks to the mobilisations and the encampments. Without you, this would not have been possible." But Nogueras, spokeswoman for the centre-right Catalan nationalists of Junts party, said: "We all agreed that evictions - where the property is owned by a fund, a vulture fund, run by someone managing millions of euros - obviously need to be stopped. "Lumping together in this category those who have invested their savings in a flat, a restaurant or a property - putting them all in the same basket - is a mistake," she told Spanish public broadcaster RTVE. The minority government, which is made up of the Sánchez's ruling Socialists and junior partner the Sumar alliance, has 30 days from the decrees' publication to reach an agreement in parliament. Housing Minister Isabel Rodríguez urged political parties to support the decrees after the eviction of 87-year-old Maricarmen Abascal last week. "We all have our eyes on the text, on the small print, to make sure this is the Maricarmen decree," said Alicia del Río, spokeswoman for the Sindicato de Inquilinas, the organisation which has been leading housing protests. The two decrees approved by the cabinet contain enough to at least suggest that the government has been listening carefully to the demands of the activists who have been protesting in Madrid, Barcelona and elsewhere in recent days. The temporary ban on evictions, the rolling over of rental contracts and the ban on investment firms - or "vulture funds" as the government has termed them - buying property are all the kinds of policies that have been discussed by housing activists in recent days. Pablo Bustinduy, minister of social rights, described the measures approved by the cabinet as "a first step towards the economic and social transformation of the country". Bustinduy and his Sumar alliance had entered the negotiations with Sánchez's Socialists determined to take a stand on this issue, which is one they feel strongly about. Sumar's tough stance was a major reason why talks between the coalition partners on the decrees went down to the wire ahead of Tuesday's cabinet meeting. While the relatively bold new measures may please many on the left, they have raised the hackles of the Junts, whose support is again likely to be needed to approve them. Junts and other parties on the right tend to be reluctant to intervene in the housing market, particularly if it means tipping the balance of the law in favour of tenants and against landlords, many of who are their natural electorate. The question now is whether the social momentum generated by the Maricarmen Abascal case will override such reservations and manage to ensure this package of measures becomes law. Ahead of the government's announcement on Tuesday, the lawyer for Abascal, who has become a symbol of Spain's housing crisis, said she would be allowed to return to her home after reaching a deal with the company that owns it on Monday. Abascal, who was admitted to hospital after being forcibly removed from the apartment on a stretcher, was unable to attend the meeting and is yet to sign the deal. Abascal's father first rented the flat in 1956 and she had continued to live in it after her parents died, with a cap on the rent, until investment company Urbagestión bought the property in 2018. It raised the monthly rent to more than her monthly pension, leaving her unable to pay it. Abascal's case is not unique. In the north-eastern city of Zaragoza, another woman's eviction was temporarily suspended on Tuesday, the European Pressphoto Agency reported. Esmeralda Tejero, 51, has lived in a flat in the city for eight years with her 11-year-old daughter, but stopped paying her rent some time ago as she could not afford it on top of her daily living costs, she told Catalan newspaper el Periódico on Monday. Protests calling for housing relief measures broke out last week in Madrid and have spread to other cities including Barcelona, Seville, Malaga and Cadiz. Thousands marched through the capital on Saturday demanding stronger protection for tenants in the face of a housing shortage and soaring rents. They have warned that they would continue to protest if the government does not meet their demands.

ISRAELI SETTLERS ATTACK WEST BANK VILLAGE AND BLOCK PALESTINIAN FAMILY'S RETURN HOME

More than 100 Israeli settlers have carried out attacks in a Palestinian village in the occupied West Bank, stopping a family escorted by the Israeli military from returning to their homes, which had been seized weeks ago by settlers. Two houses belonging to the al-Tubasi family in Jalud, south of Nablus, were set on fire in the raid on Monday night and Israeli security forces were also targeted by settlers. Human rights groups say the events show how Israeli authorities are failing to take effective action against settler violence. "It was extremely terrifying, beyond words. It's hard to imagine the situation," Mahmoud al-Tubasi told the BBC. "My feeling now is that I am happy to have escaped death. I genuinely expected they were going to kill us." Al-Tubasi, 60, his wife Aida, 51, and their 33-year-old son, Wael, had returned to their properties accompanied by Israeli forces after Israel's High Court ruled earlier this month that they must be allowed to go back. The family was forced to leave this summer after weeks of settler harassment and attacks. Extremist settlers had set up an illegal outpost close to Jalud and besieged three houses, including two belonging to the al-Tubasis' sons who are married with young daughters. Al-Tubasi said that he was called at about midnight and told that there was coordination with Israel's military for his family to go back to their houses. He received a message from Israeli officials saying that if he wanted to reclaim his property he had to go immediately with the army and Israeli border police. By torchlight, the family inspected one home. A video shared with the BBC shows that the settlers had already extensively damaged it - smashing holes through doors, tearing out electrical fittings, ripping up tiles, breaking windows and leaving rubbish strewn about. The toilet was smashed and appeared to be full of human waste. A large number of extremist settlers arrived in Jalud after alerts were posted in WhatsApp groups they use to coordinate action, saying that the Palestinian family they had forced out was returning and should be stopped. "As soon as we entered the house, which had already been completely destroyed, settlers started throwing stones at us. The army responded by firing tear gas at them, but there were so many settlers, more than 150, that the army could no longer control them," al-Tubasi told the BBC. The grandfather says that a group of Israeli soldiers protected his family from the settlers who tried to approach them, using pepper spray to force them back. Settlers slashed the tyres of a military van they were put in and then they were transferred to an armoured military vehicle. As the family was being driven away, the settlers set fire to their car and both of their houses. Video shot from a distance shows smoke billowing from them.

'I was lured into a trap': Evan Gershkovich on moment that led to 16 months in Russian jail

US journalist Evan Gershkovich has said that he knew he was being set up by Russia when he was arrested by FSB agents and accused of being a spy. In an interview with Radio 4's Today programme, Gershkovich spoke about the moment he realised he had been "lured into a trap" when masked men surrounded him at a restaurant in 2023, and detained him. "I'm not interrogated, I'm not tortured… I'm accused of espionage," he said, describing a sense of relief: "They've set me up and fabricated this case so that I can be a valuable hostage - a pawn in a greater game". Gershkovich, now 34, was sentenced to 16 years in prison, but freed 16 months later as part of a high-profile prisoner swap deal. Gershkovich had been living in Russia since 2017, and was the Wall Street Journal's foreign correspondent in Moscow when he was arrested - he is now based in Berlin, Germany. He and his employer have always maintained that the charges were false. On the day he was arrested, Gershkovich was in Yekaterinburg - about 1,600km (1,000 miles) east of Moscow - meeting someone who he thought was a source for a story. They were sitting in a half-empty dining hall "and a group of about half-dozen masked men marched in and said 'I think we booked that table'." An odd phrase, Gershkovich said, but on reflection it is clever because it "freezes you in place". The two men stood up and Gershkovich was told he was under arrest by the notorious and powerful FSB, Russia's domestic security service.

ESTONIA BLAMES RUSSIA FOR ARSON AT DEFENCE COMPANY SUPPLYING UKRAINE

Russia was behind an arson attack on an Estonian defence company in the capital Tallinn last month, authorities say. Prime Minister Kristen Michal said the attack on Milrem Robotics - which supplies Ukraine with unmanned military vehicles - was ordered by Russian special services, but gave no details. Moscow has been accused of launching sabotage attacks in a number of Nato countries that have been helping Ukraine since Russia launched its full-scale invasion of its neighbour in February 2022. Russia denies such allegations and has been quick to reject the Estonian accusation, too. But EU countries have rushed to Estonia's support, adding such attacks will not deter them from helping Ukraine. The attack on Milrem Robotics occurred on the night of 14-15 August. Estonian Foreign Minister Margus Tsahkna said that, based on information collected by the country's Internal Security Service, "we can conclude with certainty that the arson attack... was an act of sabotage ordered by the special services of the Russian Federation". Security service chief Margo Palloson told broadcaster ERR that Russia was "constantly planning, looking for opportunities, trying to find people who would carry out attacks", but that last month's arson attack was its first successful attack this year. The foreign minister said the perpetrators had been arrested and Palloson said they were Latvians who had been living in Russia and taken part in previous attacks. Three suspects were arrested in Latvia and extradited to Estonia earlier this month. Margus Tsahkna said that "this act of sabotage is part of Russia's broader campaign across Europe, aimed at intimidating us and weakening our support for Ukraine". French President Emmanuel Macron responded to Estonia's assessment, saying "the multiplication of these hostile acts represents a dangerous escalation by Russia, which will only lead it into a dead end". He mentioned the incident at Leipzig airport in Germany in August, in which an explosive-laden drone was found near Ukrainian cargo planes. "Russia needs to know that it will not overcome our unity or our determination to continue supporting Ukraine," Macron added. An EU spokesman said the 27-member bloc would not cease supporting Ukraine. Nato chief Mark Rutte urged European governments to stay calm and continue supporting Ukraine. "Russia continues its reckless campaign of hostile actions against Nato allies. It is trying to weaken our resolve and stop our support for Ukraine. But Russia is failing. It is failing on the battlefield in Ukraine and it is failing to undermine our unity and support for Ukraine," Rutte said. In August alone, Russia was either accused or suspected of the Leipzig airport attack in Germany, a major fire at a warehouse of a defence firm in Bulgaria, a large explosion at a munitions factory outside Rome in Italy, an attempted arson attack on a Ukrainian-owned drone manufacturer in Slovakia, and two suspicious fires in Poland - the latest in a country which has reported several such attacks.

DUTCH POLICE ARREST SUSPECTED MEMBER OF GROUP THAT CLAIMED FBI HACK

Dutch police have arrested a suspected member of the ShinyHunters cyber-crime group that claimed to have stolen sensitive information on all FBI bureau staff - around 38,000 people. After the alleged attack last week, the group claimed to have every agent's name, role, badge number and personal details including home address and phone numbers. In a statement, Dutch police said it had arrested a 24-year-old man from Amsterdam on suspicion of being part of the group, which has also claimed other hacks. The suspect was arrested on 15 September, before the alleged FBI attack. He is also suspected of attempted incitement to commit two murders, police said. Police said they seized his devices and found a "large amount of information" on his laptop, including "details about two murders that were to be committed abroad" that they suspect he may have ordered. The suspect has been held since his arrest. Dutch officials have not ruled out further arrests. Stan Duijf, who leads Dutch investigations into cybercrime, said in a statement: "The ShinyHunters group is responsible for a large number of national and international victims.

ARGENTINA THREATENS LEGAL ACTION AGAINST UK OVER FALKLAND ISLANDS OIL EXPLORATION

Argentina's president has threatened to launch a legal challenge against the British government unless it halts oil exploration work off the coast of the Falkland Islands. In a social media post, President Javier Milei set a two-week deadline for the Sea Lion oilfield project, a joint venture between Israeli and British companies, to be scrapped. The companies insist they have valid licences issued by Britain. The comments heighten tensions between the UK and Argentina over the sovereignty of the archipelago, known in Argentina as Las Malvinas, more than 40 years after a British military task force ejected Argentine forces which had invaded the territory in 1982. Milei said that if the two-week deadline was not met, he had "instructed the Foreign Ministry and legal teams to initiate international arbitration" against the UK over what he called "the illegal plundering of our resources through the Sea Lion Project". He continued to warn the UK that if the "illegitimate exploitation" of the region didn't end within two weeks, Argentina would take the matter before the International Tribunal for the Law of the Sea. The International Tribunal is an independent judicial body based in Hamburg which is responsible for the fair application of the United Nations' Convention on the Law of the Sea. The move comes soon after Milei roundly criticised the UN in his speech at the General Assembly for failing to act over the sovereignty of the Falkland Islands. He said the UN had become "a useless organisation" which only serves "arrogant parasites dressed up as well-intentioned bureaucrats". Since then, the UK Defence Secretary, Wes Streeting, said that Argentina "lacks the ability" to seize the Falklands by force. Milei had previously said the Sea Lion oilfield was a "clear and present danger". The Sea Lion oilfield, around 130 miles (209 km) from the Falkland Islands, contains an estimated 1.7 billion barrels of oil. Two oil companies – Britain's Rockhopper Exploration and Israel's Navitas Petroleum – are due to begin extracting from the oilfield within two years. Both companies have in the past stressed that Sea Lion holds valid licences from the Falkland Islands.

INDIA'S WOMEN WIN FIRST ASIAN GAMES ATHLETICS GOLD IN RELAY

Nagoya: The Indian quartet of Kiran Pahal, Poovamma Machettira, Prachi, and Vithya Ramraj produced an exceptional performance to claim the gold medal in the women's 4x400m relay at the 2026 Asian Games here on Tuesday. The Indian team won the top prize with a time of 3:29.69 minutes, giving the country its first gold medal in track and field events at the ongoing games. Bahrain and China finished second and third, respectively. Earlier, Gurindervir Singh, Animesh Kujur, Sneha Sathyanarayana and Harita Bhadra won the bronze medal in the 4x100m mixed relay final after clocking a season best time of 41.06 seconds. India's Pooja Singh fared well below her personal best with a leap of 1.84 metre but that was enough to clinch a bronze medal in women's high jump. This was after India's Gulveer Singh continued his spectacular run of form at the ongoing games by winning a bronze medal in men's 5000m with a time of 13:32.75, completing a hat-trick of podium finishes in the Japanese city. This is Gulveer's third podium finishes at the 2026 games, having won silver medals in men's 1500m and 10000m events earlier in the multi-sport extravaganza. Gulveer thus became the second Indian man and fourth from the country to win three medals in track and field events in a single edition of the continental games. Before Gulveer, Lavy Pinto (New Delhi 1951, 3 medals), PT Usha (Seoul, 1986, 4 medals) and KM Beenamol (Busan 2002, 3 medals) had achieved a similar feat. After Gulveer, the Indian quartet ended third with a time of 41.06 in 4x400m mixed relay, having finished second behind China in the heats. China won the gold with a time of 40.78 seconds, while Thailand took silver after finishing in 40.87 seconds. India's Dev Kumar Meena created a national record in men's pole vault with an effort of 5.50m but that was only enough to take him to seventh position. India's Pooja Olla and Mohammed Afsal finished seventh and eighth respectively in men's and women's 800m. India's Gulveer Singh continued his spectacular run of form at the ongoing Asian Games as he won a bronze medal in the men's 5000m with a time of 13:32.75 on Tuesday, September 29, completing a hat-trick of podium finishes in the Japanese city. This is Gulveer's third podium finish at the 2026 games, having won silver medals in men's 1500m and 10000m events earlier in the multi-sport extravaganza. Gulveer thus became the second Indian man to win three medals in track and field events in a single edition of the continental games. In the inaugural edition of the Asian Games in New Delhi, India's Lavy Pinto won gold in 100m and 200m and silver in the 4x100m relay. While PT Usha's four gold medals and a silver in the Seoul Games in 1986 still remain intact, middle-distance runner KM Beenamol won three medals at the 2002 Busan edition.

Toronto Maple Leafs GM John Chayka Apologized To Matthew Knies After Months Of Trade Speculation

The Toronto Maple Leafs traded Matthew Knies to the Columbus Blue Jackets just before the 2026-27 season, bringing Kirill Marchenko to Toronto in a major deal. Toronto also sent Steven Lorentz, Emil Andrae and a 2027 second-round pick to Columbus. Marchenko had 27 goals and 40 assists in 76 games for the Blue Jackets last season and has signed a six-year, $75 million extension with the Leafs. Maple Leafs general manager John Chayka said Tuesday that he apologized to Knies for the noise around his future. He also explained why Toronto decided to make the deal and what Marchenko can bring to the team.

What Did John Chayka Say To Matthew Knies After The Trade?

Chayka said the Maple Leafs had only seriously considered one move involving Knies, despite the trade talk that surrounded the forward during the off-season. Chayka said, "I apologized to him for the noise over the last several months. "I don't think it was necessarily fair to him. This was the only thing we seriously considered as a management group."

He further said, "You know, these things happen. He understands it's something that happens. He's a professional athlete and he's a smart kid, but he took the news well. It's a good young team he's going to. I think it's a good fit for him."

Knies had spoken about the rumors during training camp and said he was "fortunate that I'm still here." He eventually became part of the deal with Columbus, ending his time in Toronto.

The Maple Leafs received Marchenko, goaltender Elvis Merzlikins and forward Miles Wood. Columbus also got Lorentz, Andrae and a second-round pick in the 2027 NHL Draft.

Why Did Toronto Want Kirill Marchenko?

Chayka explained that Toronto viewed Marchenko as a player who could bring more scoring and different options to the lineup. Marchenko had 27 goals and 40 assists in 76 games for Columbus last season.

LeBron James Opens Up On Future As Philadelphia 76ers Chapter Begins

LeBron James has finally spoken about what comes next, but the Philadelphia 76ers star is not ready to look that far ahead. James used his first Sixers media day to make one thing clear: his focus is on the present.

At 41, James is entering his record 24th NBA season and does not want to put a date on retirement. Speaking in Camden, New Jersey, on September 28, he said he wants to be the best version of himself while he is with Philadelphia. He also made it clear that building this team will take daily work, patience and a willingness to step outside comfort zones. LeBron James Keeps His Future Open With The 76ers James was asked about his future during his first media appearance in a Sixers jersey. He did not confirm whether Philadelphia would be his final team or whether this would be his final NBA season. "I don't want to speak on the future right now," James said, adding that he wants to live in the moment. His comments came after signing a two-year, $8 million deal with Philadelphia that includes a player option for the second season. The NBA's official website reported that James is entering his 24th season after averaging 20.9 points, 6.1 rebounds and 7.2 assists last season. He said his goal now is to help his new team every day. James also knows that talent alone will not be enough. He spoke about practice, film sessions, travel and spending time together as important parts of building chemistry. "We have to be comfortable with being uncomfortable," he said.

Klay Thompson And Megan Thee Stallion Breakup: Viral Instagram Live Claim Debunked

Klay Thompson and Megan Thee Stallion are back in online headlines, but this time the story comes with a major warning. A viral social media post claims Thompson spoke about their breakup on Instagram Live. There is no verified evidence that he made the comments being shared. The video attached to the claim shows Thompson on a boat, while the words added to the post make claims about his relationship with Megan. Hindustan Times previously checked a similar video and found no proof that Thompson had publicly made such accusations.

Klay Thompson Instagram Live Claim Has No Verified Support

The post began spreading again on X on September 29, with a claim that Thompson had explained his breakup with Megan during an Instagram Live. The message included serious personal accusations, but there is no reliable report or verified video showing Thompson saying those things about Megan.

That matters because Thompson has largely stayed quiet since the breakup. People reported in September that Megan later described the split as "very rough" while speaking to InStyle. She also said she felt she was "losing myself a little bit" during the relationship, but Thompson has not publicly given his own detailed account.

The video itself does not provide proof of the claim. Complex previously reported that footage of Thompson on a boat was real, but it showed him simply enjoying time on the water. It did not contain the breakup explanation now being attached to it online.

Megan Thee Stallion And Klay Thompson Split Happened In April

The real breakup story is much clearer. Megan and Thompson were publicly linked in 2025 and made their red-carpet debut together at Megan's Pete & Thomas Foundation Gala in New York on July 16, 2025.

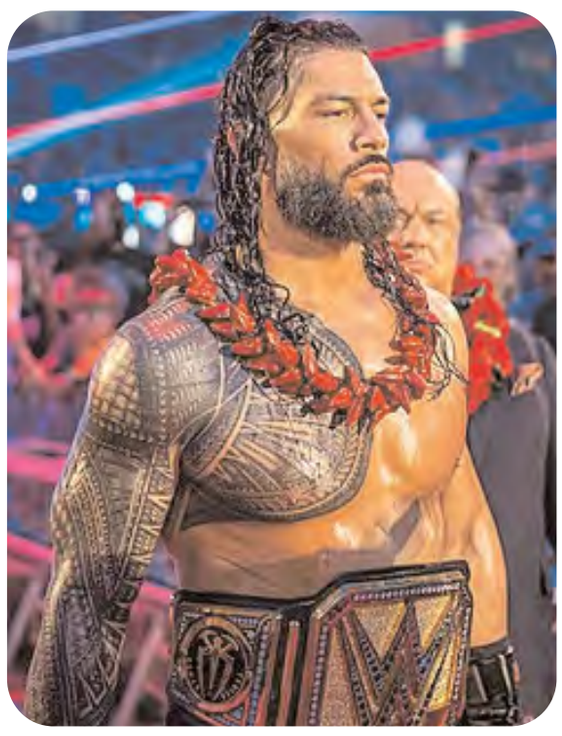

Luka Doncic's Sweet Lakers Media Day Moment With Daughter's Bracelets

Luka Doncic had one little problem before posing for his Lakers team photos, and it had nothing to do with basketball. The Lakers star was wearing colorful bracelets made by his daughter Gabriela, but he had to take them off for the official photo session. The bracelets did not stay off for long. Doncic put them back on as soon as the photos were done. When a reporter asked if he would wear them during Lakers games, he explained that he was worried they could break. "No, because they might break, and she wouldn't be happy about that." The moment came during Lakers Media Day in El Segundo on September 28. Luka Doncic Keeps His Daughter's Bracelets Close The small moment quickly became one of the more personal clips from Lakers Media Day. Doncic was preparing for the team's official photos when he removed the bracelets from his wrist. Once that part of the day was finished, he put them straight back on. The reason is simple. The bracelets were made by Gabriela, Doncic's older daughter, and he clearly wanted to keep the gift with him.
